Construction Progresses On Brand-New Farm Show Complex

Officials believe the new Farm Show facility will bring renewed focus on production agriculture.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Construction continues at the Farm Show Complex amidst the events that continue as scheduled in the building.

Dennis Grumbine, executive director of the Farm Show, sees construction and expansion as necessary with the renewed focus on production agriculture.

As part of this focus, a recently-formed Commercial Agriculture Exhibit Committee plans several innovations for the 2003 Farm Show. These options include a proposed "farm feature" of three days within the eight days of the show.

Overall, the broad scope of competition and exhibits combine to make the event unique and a one-stop venue for far families.

"Not many places have the diversity that we have," said Grumbine. "That is what makes our show what it is." Production-to-plate aspects of agriculture, for example, are on display at the

New York Broilers/Fryers
ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers remained light to no better than fair as dealers limited orders to current needs. Offerings of the 3.5 pound and larger sizes were fully adequate to available. The 3 pound and lighter birds ranged adequate to well cleared. Movement through retail and distributive channels was slow. The market tone was no better than steady on the 3.5 pound and larger birds, but at least steady on the balance.

April 17, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

In the Southeast, mediums advanced 1 cent. All other prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady to instances fully steady. Demand into all channels remained light to good. Supplies of the larger sizes were generally available. The lighter weighted eggs ranged adequate to closely balanced for present needs. Breaking stock offerings were adequate for the moderate demand. Light type fowl were at least sufficient for trade requirements.

National Broiler Market At A Glance
Atlanta, Ga.
Report Supplied By USDA

Midweek opinions on markets were generally steady. Demand continued to be no better than moderate at both retail and distributive outlets. Offerings of whole body product were adequate for additional needs. Parts movement was fair with supplies of boneless breast in better balance, bone-in breast sometimes short of needs, wings adequate, and dark meat supplies viewed as in line with current call. Fast food interest was just fair. Export business was slow as participants remained confused on the rules of engagement. In production areas, live supplies were desirable at adequate weights.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
April 17, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3940-1.5102 Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3824-1.5218 mostly 1.4057-1.4405.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9550-1.0250; Class III - spot prices - .7500-.9700.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 0, Out 117; last week - In 0, Out 37; last year - In 0, Out 140. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 0, Out 0.

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, March 2002 uniform prices: Northeast $13.05, Mideast $11.93, Southeast $13.34, Florida $15.20, and Western New York (a state order) $12.52 at the base city or county in the orders. (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported.) Milk production is generally steady from the Middle Atlantic area south.

Output in the Northeast is slowly increasing along seasonal patterns. Many contacts are commenting on the volumes of milk to be processed and few expected milk output and supply to be this heavy. A drought condition and temperatures in the nineties exists in much of the Middle Atlantic area and parts of New York. The heat is retarding the milk production gains of the past few weeks. Without significant rainfall in the near future, crops as well as the milk flow may be affected.

Bottled milk sales are generally termed as slow. Florida's Class I milk need is very low as the "winter residents" have, for the most part, left the state. This created a large jump in milk volumes leaving the state for processing. Manufacturing plants are operating at or near capacity levels. In some instances, butter owder plants are clearing milk or condensed skim to other plants.

The condensed skim market remains weak. With inexpensive NDM available in the marketplace, the spot demand for wet solids is almost non-existent. Quite a few loads of Eastern condensed skim are being shipped to the Midwest for processing. Without spot sales, more local dryers have had to step up drying schedules.

The fluid cream market also remains weak. Supplies are excessive and spot demand is seldom better than slow. Prices have moved lower as both multiples and the CME average butter price have moved lower. Many loads of Eastern cream continue to move to Midwestern butter makers.

Between all the milk, condensed skim and cream that is moving inter-region, trucking is becoming more of an issue, and a costly one at that. Ice cream output is starting to improve. However, spot cream purchases are slow to develop. This week's hot weather did stimulate soft serve sales. Cream cheese production is about steady. Churning is heavy and excess cream supplies far exceed the region's plants capacity.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

FULL PINK MOON, APRIL 26

GOOD KNIGHT

On April 24, 1953, British statesman and writer Winston Churchill was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II, making him Sir Winston Leonard Spencer Churchill That same year, he received the Nobel Prize for literature Considered a great wartime leader and known for his "bulldog" spirit in hard times against the Nazis, Churchill was a close ally of President Franklin D Roosevelt, although the two did not always agree An avid fan of world history, Churchill observed that "when nations are strong, they are not always just, and when they wish to be just, they are no longer strong"

In War: Resolution. In Defeat: Defiance. In Victory: Magnanimity. In Peace: Good Will.

–Winston Churchill British statesman and writer (1874–1965)

TIP OF THE WEEK

PORTUGUESE KALE SOUP

1/4 pound Italian sausage
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 medium onions, chopped
4 cloves garlic, minced
6 boiling potatoes, peeled and chopped
7 cups chicken stock
1 large bunch kale, stemmed and chopped
salt and pepper

Brown the sausage, drain, and slice Heat olive oil in a stockpot, and sauté the onions and garlic Add potatoes and stock Bring to a boil, and simmer for about 30 minutes until potatoes are done Puree half the soup for thickening, then pour back into the pot Add sausage, kale, and seasonings, then simmer for another 10 minutes

Makes 4 servings.

OPINION

Where Is Pa.'s Poultry Industry Youth Convention?

We would be wise to follow in the footsteps of the Virginia Poultry Federation.

Through a cooperative effort with extension service and industry, the Virginia Poultry Federation began, some time ago, an Industry Youth Convention in early May.

The purpose: bring about 150-180 kids together to learn about the careers and lifestyles of the poultry industry.

Pennsylvania doesn't have a program like that. But it should.

At the same time, more job opportunities for graduates of poultry science are available. And according to Phillip Clauer, Penn State senior extension associate, 4-H youth and specialty programs, getting youth involved in poultry is critical because "we don't have the students we need to fill those positions," he said.

Clauer spoke last week during the annual Penn State-sponsored Poultry Sales and Service Conference at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Clauer noted the many ways 4-H projects and FFA career development programs help educate youth from K-12.

The convention in Virginia brings together youth for judging events and other activities. A critical component is the "job shadow," a person with college education representing a company that takes about 2-6 teen-agers for a few hours a day to show them what the company representative actually does for a living. That could include processing plants or feed mills or visits to a poultry farm. "Make it a fun activity," Clauer said. "It would be exciting and an excellent public relations thing for the whole industry."

Youth are required to have an excused absence from school because the event has an educational component. The visits to the company are conducted on a Thursday, normally when most businesses are in full operation.

Each county 4-H club is permitted to place two teams with 4-5 extra individuals.

Those "job shadows" worked well, "because everybody had a job, and we just did it, and it was fun," said Clauer.

Clauer noted that for Pennsylvania to do something similar, they would need contributions in terms of supplies and time from industry.

We think it's a great idea. Any takers? If so, call Clauer at (814) 863-8960 or e-mail him at pclauer@psu.edu.

What's Going On In The Cattle And Hog Markets?

MILLIE BUNTING
Market Staff

Editor's Note: Here are one market analyst's opinions about what's going on with the volatile cattle markets.

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "What's the market?"

We can quickly find answers to that question today with a phone call or the Internet. But for the last two weeks on a daily basis, the answer resulted in cries of disbelief from beef and pork producers as well as market watchers.

The question now is why?

On the surface, the beef trade was improving and pulling out of the fiasco in the futures trade from false foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) rumors that sent prices crashing over into the live cattle market. That is re-

To Continue To Conserve Water

Recent rains have improved the moisture conditions in the soil, making our lawns green and making it seem like the drought is over. However, we are still in the midst of a drought emergency.

The Susquehanna River at Safe Harbor on April 17 had a flow of 51,500 cfs (cubic feet per second) compared to normal flow for April of 79,300 cfs. On April 16 the Conestoga River at Lancaster had a flow of 283,000 cfs compared to the April normal of 765,000 cfs. So while our stream flows have improved a bit, they are still dangerously low for this time of year.

The groundwater level in the USGS observation well in Lancaster County did rise by 12 inches in the last week. Again, however, the levels are still well below where they normally should be. While the last 30 days did produce normal rainfall, we still have a deficit of 15 inches since April 2001. So we still have a long way to go and conservation is still critical as we head into the summer months.

To Apply Fungicides To Strawberries

Gray mold for Botrytis blight is the most serious disease affecting strawberries. The causal organism, Botrytis cinerea, can live both as a parasite and as saprophyte on decaying plant debris.

Botrytis blight usually starts as a blossom infection, which then later invades the fruit, causing them to rot. Rot may first appear at the base of the fruit or when the berry is in contact with the soil, other damp surfaces, or other rotten fruit. The rot can destroy the berry within 48 hours.

As ripening increases and the humidity remains high, a characteristic gray, fuzzy coating or web produced by the fruiting fungus covers the strawberry fruit. As the disease progresses, spores are produced and are easily blown or splashed onto healthy foliage. Once the fungus gets established in a field it can produce spores continuously throughout the season.

Moisture is necessary for the spores to germinate and infect plants. Therefore the disease is favored by humidity and cool conditions. If you need to irrigate and you are using overhead irrigation, it is important to irrigate during the sunny part of the day and shut down the irrigation while there is still enough afternoon sunshine to dry off the plants and fruit before nightfall. This will limit the ability of the Botrytis spores to germinate and infect the fruit or blossoms.

Because most Botrytis infections begin in the blossom, it is essential to apply fungicides during the bloom period. Research has shown that if the blossom sprays are applied in a timely manner, spraying during harvest does little to improve control and may not be needed. However if the blossom sprays are missed, sprays at harvest time alone will not be very effective because the infections started during the blossom period.

Apply the first spray at 10 percent bloom; apply again at full bloom and late bloom. There are a number of products labeled for Botrytis control in strawberries, including Elevate, Captan, Thiram, and Topsin M. Read and follow the label directions, especially the days to harvest restrictions.

To Monitor Your Asparagus Field For Asparagus Beetles

The recent surge of unusually hot weather has jump-started asparagus production. Unfortunately it has also spurred the emergence of asparagus pests.

Two types of asparagus beetles could be found at this time in your field and can do significant damage to your crop. Both the asparagus beetle and the spotted asparagus beetle overwinter as adults and begin feeding immediately following emergence. The asparagus beetle emerges before the spotted asparagus beetle.

The adult asparagus beetle has a black body with a metallic blue head. On each wing cover are three rectangular metallic yellow spots that often have red markings along the margin. The spotted asparagus beetle adults are orange with six black spots on each wing cover. The adults of both species range in length from ¼ to 4/10 of an inch in length.

Both begin laying eggs within a week after emergence. The asparagus beetle deposits its dark brown, oval-shaped eggs on the spears in rows of 3-8 and the eggs are attached by one end to the spear. The spotted asparagus beetle lays its green eggs individually. In three to eight days, the eggs hatch and the larva feed for 10-14 days as they develop through four instars. The larvae of the asparagus beetle are dark gray with a black head. The larvae of the spotted asparagus beetle are cream colored with a light brown head. When fully developed, the larvae crawl to the ground where they burrow into the soil and spin a silken cocoon. Here they pupate for 5-10 days before emerging as adults to complete the life cycle. Typically there are two life cycles completed in Pennsylvania each year.

The asparagus beetles cause damage to the crop in several ways. Adults and larvae feeding on the spears and tips cause scarring. Frass from both of the stages can stain the spear and eggs on the spears are very unappealing. Any of these problems can make the spears unmarketable. The spotted asparagus beetle larva feed on asparagus berries. This damage has little economic significance in production fields. It would be a problem in seed production, however.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

OUTSIDE THE LINES

Background Scripture:
Romans 12.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 12:4-8.

"Coloring outside the lines" has become commonplace in recognizing independence and creativity. When it comes to the values and mores by which we live, however, staying within the lines remains the norm.

Children and youth want to dress and act as their peers do. Adults pretty much live by the norms of our society. Many assume that Christians are just like everybody else, except they go to church.

Paul, however, offers a different standard: "Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that you may prove what is the will of God. . . ." (Ro. 12:2). Christians are not to live just like everybody else. We are to live by different values and standards, not for the sake of being different but so that God's will may be manifest in our lives.

Some of us may question whether there is such a deep divide between Christianity and the world. But Paul goes on to count some of the ways in which Christians are called to color "outside the lines. For one thing, Christians are to use their God-given gifts and endowments for the sake of the body of Christ" (12:4-8).

How does that differ from the world? The world doesn't acknowledge God as the source of our gifts, nor does it call us to rise above the level of "look out for number one!"

Genuine Love

We are also called to be different in the quality of our love for one another: "Let love be genuine . . . love one another with brotherly affection; outdo one another in showing honor" (12:9).

Love in our society doesn't reach much beyond self-gratification. Christians are also called to embrace that which is good and refuse that which is evil (12:9b). That is in stark contrast to society's advice: "If it feels good, do it."

In the midst of a society that worships "letting the good times roll," we are called to a different level of enjoyment: "Never flag in zeal, be aglow with the Spirit . . . Rejoice in your hope" (12:11,12a). There is a big difference between "having a blast," a fleeting moment, and experiencing Christian joy, a transforming condition.

Another marked difference has to do with the way we regard those in need. Especially in our world today, those in need are often judged too slothful to pull themselves up by their own bootstraps. Paul paints a different picture: "Contribute to the needs of the saints, practice hospitality . . . weep with those who weep . . . do not be haughty, but associate with the lowly" (12:13,15b,16b). The real "losers" in this world are those who haughtily keep themselves unstained by those in need.

Whose Vengeance?

The most glaring difference between the world and Christian discipleship, however, is in the way we are to react to those who have or might harm us. Two thousand years later and the Christian norm is still revolutionary: "Repay no one evil for evil . . . . Beloved, never avenge yourselves, but leave it to the wrath of God; for it is written, 'Vengeance is mine, I will repay, says the Lord'" (12:17,19). The world adamantly disagrees, claiming the right to vengeance as if it were our birthright.

Not only are we called to abstain from vengeance, but as Christians we are called to embody Christlike love for our enemies: " . . . if your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, given him drink; (12:20). In saying, "for by so doing you will heap burning coals upon his head," Paul is indicating that Christian love is not so much feeling loving, but doing the loving thing regardless of how we might feel. Do you want to feel the pleasure of pouring burning coals on his head? Do something really loving!

The world loves the "eye-for-an-eye" standard, but you cannot overcome evil with more evil. You can hold it in check for a while, but coloring outside the lines, responding only with good, can truly defeat it.

PLEASANT GAP (Centre Co.) — Recently several people with a common interest in preserving antiques decided to form an organization called Nittany Farm Museum in Pleasant Gap, close to State College. This nonprofit organization relies on membership dues along with private donations. One of the main goals is to provide a permanent place for antiques to be displayed in a museum for the public to view year-round, but also provide land for antique shows. The group signed a one-year lease agreement with a chance to purchase the 52-acre Smeltzer Farm on 465 East College Ave. in Pleasant Gap. The farm includes a large barn along with several out buildings and a sided log house. The property has public sewer, water, and natural gas at both ends of the property. It is conveniently located within minutes of Interstate 80.

April 27-28 will feature the museum's first event, an antique tractor plow party along with antique displays and horses at the Smeltzer Farm. On Saturday, April 27, the show hours are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday hours are 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday night from 6 p.m.-9 p.m. there will be square dancing. There will be plenty of good food, fun, and family entertainment. There will be plenty of parking ($2 per car) and admission is free.

"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."

"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
April 12, 2002
Butter Markets Hit Spring Flush

- Grade AA butter falls to $1.15/pound.
- Cheese prices holding steady
- Global price of butter depressed.

Butter markets are predictably depressed this week. Butter prices were holding in the $1.25 per pound range just before and after Easter/Passover because of strong commercial demand. However, prices are weaker this week because of strong butterfat production and limited demand for the available cream. Grade AA butter prices in Chicago fell from $1.22 per pound last week to $1.15 per pound by the end of this week.

The reason for the price drop is because butterfat production is very strong and demand for cream from ice cream processors is just beginning to pick up. The market is dealing with excess butterfat, which is being churned into butter. The combination of strong production and high carryover stocks is putting downward pressure on the butter market. USDA reported this week that butter inventory figures this time of year are twice the level of last year.

Butter prices normally decline in the spring months since cream and butter supplies are normally much higher than market needs. In 2000, Grade AA butter prices were $0.97-$1.10 per pound in Chicago during March and April. Last year, however, milk and butterfat production was depressed during the spring months. Grade AA butter prices rose to $1.50-$1.96 per pound during March and April of 2001.

Cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange held steady this week. Blocks rose from $1.24 per pound on Monday, April 8 to $1.25 by Friday, April 12. Barrel cheese prices rose half a penny per pound from $1.21 on Monday to $1.2150 by Friday. Cheese production levels are strong for this time of year, but demand is sufficient enough to clear the markets each week.

Global butter prices have been depressed in recent months. Butter prices (82 percent butterfat) for New Zealand and Australia for the first half of April ranged from $950-$1,050 per ton. That is an average of $0.45 per pound, well below the U.S. wholesale butter price of $1.15 per pound. The milk production season in New Zealand and Australia is winding down. USDA reports that they are 4-5 percent ahead of the prior season.

So what does it cost to export butter from New Zealand to the U.S.? If it is for butter outside our TRQ quota, the applicable tariff is 30.9 cents per kilogram, or $0.68 per pound. The transportation cost of butter from that part of the world to the U.S. is $200 per ton, or 9 cents per pound. With a global price of $0.45 per pound, you can price New Zealand butter right now into the U.S. market for just $1.22 per pound, which at this moment is above the U.S. price.

The relative difference between the U.S. and import price will change quickly in the next few months as demand for ice cream heats up. Ice cream is a big user of cream, which will be in short supply when the weather gets hotter. That will likely create an incentive to import more butter.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

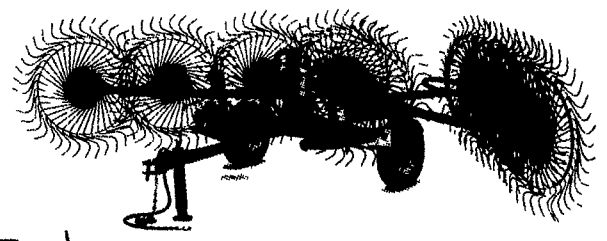
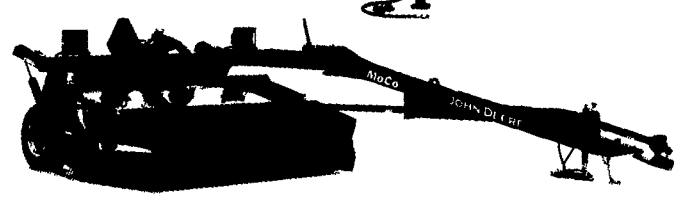
Square Balers

7 Series Round Balers

Complete line of rakes and tedders





6 Series Rotary MoCos

Speed production. Boost quality. Save money.

Looking to improve your hay operation? You can, with John Deere hay equipment. Producers have relied on John Deere for more than 100 years to deliver the performance, durability, and high-quality output they demand. And these machines pave the way for greater success in the field:

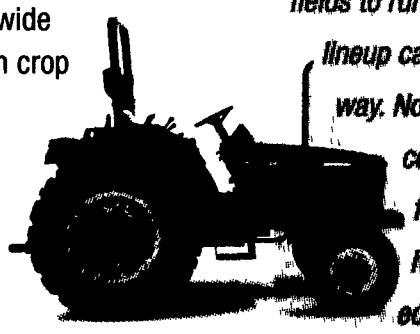
Consider the 6 Series MoCos. An all-new, heavy-duty rotary cutterbar cuts lower to the ground at a flatter angle to get a cleaner cut from every acre. And patented shearhub technology limits costly damage and downtime.

Get rotary cutting technology in rear-mounted rotary disk mowers, too. They're built to handle the toughest crop or roughest field conditions.

John Deere rakes and tedders improve drydown times and gently handle hay to minimize leaf loss. You control moisture levels and form perfect, fluffy windrows – so bales come out perfect, too.

Looking for a better baler? Check out the 7 Series Round Balers. MegaWide™ pickups with MegaTooth™ design help you swallow wide windrows and wind-blown crop in stride. What's more, CoverEdge™ net-wrap goes over the edge of the bale, giving you 15 percent more protection than other net-wraps. You lock in nutrition and increase palatability, even in the outer portion. For square bales, John Deere square balers remain the champion of the field with their legendary reliability and performance.

Need a high-quality hay tool? Stop by your local John Deere dealership today.



John Deere 5020 Tractor Series: More comfort, more control, more everything! From cutting fields to running bale elevators, this rugged, reliable lineup can tackle any hay chore that comes your way. No other tractors in this class offer more comfort, convenience, reliability, or value for your money. Select the 45- to 75-PTO horsepower tractor that's right for you: economical straddle mount, isolated open operator station, or deluxe cab models.

Dauphin County Celebrates 50 Years Of Conservation

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — At their annual awards banquet March 19, the Conservation District celebrated its 50th anniversary.Significant events at the March banquet included a Governor's Award presentation by Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection Secretary David Hess and presentation of annual conservation awards. Receiving awards for conservation farming were Faber and Beverly Walters of Grateful Acres Farms in Grantville (2000 Conservation Farm of the Year), and Karl and Murray Laudenslager of Lauden Farms in Halifax (2001 Conservation Farm of the Year). Both farms earned the awards by displaying outstanding commitment to conservation of natural resources. On their farms, the Laudenslagers and the Walters employ multiple conservation methods designed to protect water resources and conserve soil.

The Doc Fritchey Chapter of Trout Unlimited, serving Dauphin and Lebanon counties, received an award as the 2001 Conservation Organization of the Year. Trout Unlimited has undertaken extensive projects designed to protect and restore the health of local streams, including Spring Creek in Harrisburg and Stony Creek in Dauphin.Honored with the award for the 2001 Watershed Organization of the Year was PACWA, Powell's and Armstrong Creeks Watershed Association. PACWA was formed by citizens committed to protecting the Powell's and Armstrong creeks watersheds. The group participates in water monitoring efforts, watershed education, and stream restoration projects, and in the future hopes to complete an overall watershed assessment using the data they have collected.

Also at the banquet, PA DEP Secretary David Hess was on hand to present the president of PACWA, Arlie Steigman, with a Governor's Award for Excellence. Describing Arlie as "a force of nature," Hess explained that she has been involved in environmental projects for a large part of her 86 years.

Farm Family Program Planned

NICHOLSON (Susquehanna Co.) — Northeast dairy farmers are invited to the program, "Proud to be a Successful Family Farm," planned for Friday, April 26, at 10 a.m. at Levi Ransom's dairy farm near Nicholson.

The program includes Ed Gallagher, Dairylea; Ken Bailey, Penn State University; Questions for Ed and Ken; Jeff Hyde, Penn State University; Jeff Harding, Monsanto; and Tim Snyder, Penfield.

Directions to Ransom's: On Rt. 81, take Lenoxville Exit 206; take Rt. 374W 2-3 miles; take a right onto Rt. 2016, proceed 2 miles; farm is on your right. Or Rt. 92 to Glenwood Route 34E; go 1/2 miles, take a left onto Rt. 2016; go 2 miles; farm is on your right.

Oregon Dairy Days June 11-13

OREGON (Lancaster Co.) — Oregon Dairy Days are scheduled June 11-13 at the Oregon Dairy Farm Market at Rt. 222 and Rt. 272 near Oregon.

This year, the Lancaster County Conservation District will also host its annual Conservation Expo in conjunction with Oregon Dairy Days.

The Chamber's annual Family Farm Days event is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

"Last year, more than 10,000 people received a personal tour of this dairy farm and enjoyed the many exhibits," noted Brent Landis, Lancaster Chamber agricultural services coordinator. The event "serves as an excellent event to better inform our community on the importance of agriculture and your business."

Landis noted that many marketing opportunities are available, including booth spaces, banners, sponsors, and advertisements in the program. Reservations are due by May 15. All sponsorships determined on a first-come, first-serve basis. Register at the Chamber's Website at www.lancaster-chamber.com or contact Brent Landis, The Lancaster Chamber, 100 South Queen Street, P.O. Start your plants off right with Messenger

Messenger® is a unique new compound that increases crop yields while improving overall plant health and vigor. Messenger is made from a naturally occurring protein (harpin) that triggers processes inside the plant that activate the plant's own defense and growth systems. Plants activated by Messenger exhibit a higher rate of photosynthesis, which in turn enhances nutrient uptake. As a result, Messenger treated plants grow faster and stronger. Messenger also activates the plant's natural defenses so they are better able to fend off a broad spectrum of bacterial, viral, and fungal diseases. Bottom line: healthier plants, higher yields.

Give your plants the strongest start possible—apply Messenger before they leave the greenhouse, or if they are direct seeded, soon after emergence when plants have at least two true leaves. Make repeat applications to maintain a higher level of growth and protection.

To find out how Messenger can add to your bottom line, contact EDEN, your local ag supplier, or one of these certified Messenger retailers:

Maryland State Fair Online

TIMONIUM, Md. — In an effort to make entering exhibits in the Maryland State Fair easier, fair officials are encouraging Open Class (non 4-H) Livestock, Home Arts and Farm and Garden Exhibitors to register on-line. "Our goal is to make entering the fair less time consuming and much more convenient," said Maryland State Fair Vice President and General Manager Howard "Max" Mosner.

Starting Wednesday, May 1, Open Class Exhibitors may access the Maryland State Fair Internet Entry System by going to marylandstatefair.com, clicking on State Fair Features, selecting the specific department and following the easy instructions.

Only livestock entries require an entry fee that may be made with a credit card on the secured website. In addition, the 2002 Maryland State Fair Premium Book, that provides a complete listing of classes, competitions, rules and regulations, may be accessed by going to marylandstatefair.com on the Internet.

The 121st Maryland State Fair runs from Friday, Aug. 23 through Monday, Sept. 2 at the Timonium Fairgrounds in Baltimore County. Admission is $5 for adults and children under 12 are admitted free.

For general information, call (410) 252-0200, ext. 227 or visit the Maryland State Fair Website at marylandstatefair.com.

Galen Kopp

YOUR DAIRY HAS A 'STEAK' IN THE BEEF BUSINESS

Galen Kopp
Lebanon County Extension Agent —
Dairy/Livestock

Most dairy producers think of their income as only coming from the "white gold" they send down the farm lane. Dairy producers benefit when they view themselves as important contributors of valued beef products, and approach culling as a positive, productive, and profitable function of dairy herd management.

About half of all beef produced from cull dairy cows is processed and merchandised as whole muscle cuts for value-added food favorites such as fajitas, Philly steaks, deli and fast-food roast beef, marinated specialty items, economy steaks, and more. Lean non-fed ground beef, when mixed with fed beef trimmings, accounts for 43 percent of all beef consumed in this country.

Marketing cull cows below a 2.5 body condition score (BCS) is too low. Cows below a BCS of 2.5 are too thin. Timely culling decisions increase producer revenues in two ways — by weight (pounds) and by value (per pound). The double benefit makes a difference of $144 between the early, voluntary decision and a forced decision 30 days later.

Most dairy producers think of things related to milk sales. Think of it this way. That $144 in beef value on condition alone is equivalent to 1,100 pounds of $13 milk. Add the cost to keep her milking, and she would have to make 60 pounds a day for those 30 days to offset her declining beef value.

Every dairy producer should make every effort to produce high quality beef just like they do to produce high quality drug-free milk. Surveys from processing plants show that 58 percent of all dairy cow rounds have injection site lesions. That costs the producers approximately $4.2 million annually.

Drug residues in meat are the responsibility of the dairy producer just like they are for milk production. Antibiotic meat residues violations are very small and are declining in dairy cows and beef calves but still have the highest rate of violative residue among all classes of cattle.

Culling and treatment decisions are not just about producing milk anymore. It is a human health issue both in reality and public perception. Dairy producers are accountable for ensuring the safety of their product. Ultimately, the final product of the dairy animal is beef. In some cases where animals were treated and the withdraw period cannot be met, the best option is euthanasia.

Producers should consider the industry's public image and trust when making decisions to keep, treat, or cull dairy cattle. Making a decision to cull a cow is never easy emotionally, but should always be made on a sound management criteria with the safety of everyone in mind. All of which will improve beef quality, consumer confidence, and dairy profits.

Annual Hive Inspection

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes reminded Pennsylvania's beekeepers that the annual bee inspection program will begin May 13 to check hives for brood diseases and parasitic mites.

"Bees are a valuable resource for Pennsylvania agriculture," Hayes said. "The state's inspection program helps our beekeeping industry protect honeybees from diseases and mites that could devastate a productive hive."

Amendments to the Bee Law in 1994 require beekeepers to register with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The apiary registration program helps maintain an accurate list of beekeepers. The registration program enables the department to notify beekeepers of potential dangers to their apiary.

All registered beekeepers are inspected at least once in the two-year registration period. A fee of $10 should accompany the registration form and covers all apiaries owned by the beekeeper.

"In recent years, there has been a dramatic decline in the number of bees and beekeepers," Hayes said. "With fewer beekeepers and a corresponding increase in honey prices, it might be a good time to consider beekeeping."

What's Going On In The Cattle And Hog Markets?

portedly being investigated at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME). We have yet to hear from the Commodities Futures Exchange Commission, which was created to monitor such activities and has become a bloated bureaucracy.

It seems as if some speculators in the CME futures trade were just looking for a chance to turn over huge profits. Before beef producers had a chance to really recover from that, along came the plummeting hog prices on both the CME and in the country.

The commodity futures market was created for the farmers to hedge (for risk management!?), but the speculators dominate the futures trade and, more often than not, the futures drive the live prices, not "supply and demand."

Analysts and market watchers have noted several reasons for the debacle, but none felt they were severe enough to cause so drastic a crash. Market fundamentals were not all that bad. From their comments and my own observations, the answer to "why?" follows.

"Top Ten" reasons, not necessarily in order of importance, for the wreck in the cattle and hog markets:

1. Heavy production of beef and pork. The average slaughter weight of cattle is more than 30 pounds heavier than a year ago. Numbers killed year-to-date, April 12, are 1.1 percent lower but beef tonnage is 3 percent higher. (Post-Easter demand for beef was good. Beef prices were advancing when the bottom dropped out of the cattle market. The Choice carcass cutout value was more than $119.)

2. Accumulated "tremendous" supply of chicken because of Russian embargo. (On April 13, the ban was lifted on all but four states.)

3. McDonald's announcement that they would use imported beef.

4. Farm Bill. The Johnson Amendment proposal that packers cannot own livestock for more than 14 days before slaughter. (I thought that would make it pass, but someone else offered that packers were showing "they had the power" in the market. Senators know "where the beef is" and they know about "pork" — so many think they will rule in favor of the packers. There are more livestock farmers than packers, and their votes should count for something!)

5. More cattle were put on feed earlier because of the drought and, thus, they will be sent to market earlier.

6. March 1 hog and pig inventory released March 28 was decidedly bearish and indicated more hogs than expected.

7. Bearishness in hog market spilled over into the beef market.

8. Worldwide recession has cut into demand for U.S. meat exports.

9. A lot of Canadian hogs have come across the border to depress our hog prices, but that was not mentioned in any reports I read.

10. The BSE supposedly found in Japan cut into the export of high quality beef to Japan.

Supply and demand no longer determine the price or rule the marketplace. (Just keep an eye on the trends in futures trading!) We can't go back to the way it was. We can't always look to the terminal markets for the day's prices. We know that. What we also know is that there is an ever-increasing federal government bureaucracy created to look after the livestock producers' interests and it is just not getting the job done.

The mandatory packer price reporting system has been in effect for one year. Is price discovery any better? How many cattle and hogs are controlled by packers from outright ownership to contract arrangements? Some analysts believe the ownership issue has created a cloud over the entire price discovery scenario.

A few analysts are saying the hog and cattle prices will continue under pressure through the summer months. They see no positive indications that will pull the markets out of the ditch. One analyst offered that the packers are going to have to raise the bids for cattle soon because they are short-bought for near-term slaughter.

At midweek, April 17, the downslide in market prices has stopped. April lean hog futures advanced the daily limit of $2 and closed at $50.35, up $8.90 from a week ago. Eastern cornbelt hog prices on a carcass basis advanced $2 Tuesday and were steady Wednesday, ranging from $34.50-41.00, with a weighted average price of $37.76. Marketings are reported light because farmers are busy in the fields.

In Lancaster County, at New Holland's Auction Monday, 49-54 percent lean, 220-280 pound hogs sold $25.25-29.00, a few to $29.25, $4 lower than the previous week.

On the cattle front: In the USDA's late report Wednesday, 65-80 percent Choice steers in the midwestern feedlots were quoted selling at $66.50 live and $106.00, dressed basis. It also noted not enough were sold to establish an accurate trend. On the CME Wednesday, April cattle futures closed at $66.075, up 60 cents for the day and down $1.35 from a week ago.

In Lancaster County, on Tuesday's auction, fed steer prices advanced to wipe out the $1 decline registered Monday. High Choice and Prime 2-4, 1205-1475 pounds, steers ranged $68.50-71.75, mostly $69-71.75 with a few fancy singles to $73.50; and Choice 2-3, 1110-1480 pounds, steers sold $66.35-69.10, mostly $67-69.10, high dressing to $70.75. Heavyweights sold: High Choice and Prime 3-4, 1490-1535 pounds, $67-69.25, one 1,605-pound $66.00; Choice 2-4, 1485-1585 pounds $64.10-68.75, 1595-1640 pounds $60.50-62.75.

Despite all this volatility, the rains have come and lifted the farmers' spirits. The sun is shining. The tractors (and mules) are in the fields. Planting has begun.

And so it goes. Whether the market goes up or down, there's work to be done.

PENNSTATE College of Agricultural Sciences

From the Department of Dairy and Animal Science

This regular column from Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science features the research findings, student opportunities, and reports on other important topics generated in the Department. WEB-BASED DELIVERY SYSTEMS
Karen Vines
Distance Education Coordinator
Department Of Dairy And Animal Science

The official mission of Penn State's College of Agriculture Sciences is to create, analyze, and share knowledge to enhance the food and agricultural system, natural resource and environmental stewardship, and economic and social well-being, thereby improving the lives of people in Pennsylvania, the nation, and the world. Traditionally, this has been accomplished in the classroom through extension workshops and presentations or through printed material such as publications or newsletters.

As the population's access and comfort level in using computers is increasing, we must recognize the Internet as another tool to use in improving the lives of our clientele.

The creation of the Distance Education Coordinator position in the Department of Dairy and Animal Science this past June indicates how the department is seizing this opportunity. Distance education provides opportunity to focus on the customer, letting them determine the time and location of delivery of educational materials.

Opportunities provided through use of new technologies range from providing basic information on a Webpage to the offering of Web-based interactive courses that individuals can complete for college credit without having to step on campus. Many new opportunities currently exist and others are being developed. This article will highlight some of the new opportunities.

Webpages

Webpages serve as the primary introduction for many people to the Internet. They provide a means for getting information out to a large number of people. Information may be "static" — i.e. rarely changing. Earlier pages basically provided contact information for a company or business.

Today's pages tend to be much more dynamic and interactive. Content on many popular pages changes by the hour and can be tailored to meet your specific preferences or needs. One of the main advantages provided by the web over print-based media is the ease with which changes can be made as situations change or new information becomes available.

The Department of Dairy and Animal Science developed its original Website in 1996. Christian Vinten-Johansen currently serves as Webmaster and is looking for new ways to enhance the use of the site. The site serves as a collection of information about activities within the department as well as providing access to research-based production and marketing information related to the various livestock species within the department. Links to student organizations hosted by the department are also provided on this site. The site is located at http://www.das.psu.edu.

A recent effort resulted in the development of a nutrient management Website. This site serves as a repository for information useful to livestock producers within the state related to animal nutrient issues. The site was initiated and has been developed by a committee within the department of Dairy and Animal Science with assistance from the Information and Communication Technologies Unit in the College of Agriculture. Content has been provided by subject matter specialists in the following departments: Ag and Biological Engineering, Ag Economy and Rural Sociology, Crop and Soil Sciences, Dairy and Animal Sciences, School of Forest Resources, Poultry Science, and Veterinary Science. The USDA Pasture Systems Water Shed Management Research Laboratory also provided material for the site. This site is located at http://nutrient.psu.edu.

Interactive Tools

Interactive tools allow the client to utilize information specific to their situation and to tailor the educational materials presented to aid them in the decision-making process. One example of an interactive tool is the Food Industry By-Product Website, which was designed to meet the needs of both livestock producers and the food industry in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

RINGOES, N.J. — The New Jersey Holstein-Friesian Association (NJH-FA) will host the National Holstein Convention in Atlantic City June 23-27 at the Taj Mahal Hotel and Casino.

"We're on course and doing very well," national convention chairman Joe Valen, Somerset, N.J., told Lancaster Farming.

Valen provided updates from all planning committee activities late in January this year at the NJH-FA meeting attended by more than 50 members, families, and friends at the Amwell Valley Fire House in Ringoes, N.J.

Valen reminded those who want to attend that registration deadline is May 15.

Said Valen, "The National Holstein Convention will provide a unique opportunity for agribusiness representatives to gather with Holstein breeders from around the country in Atlantic City. More than 3,000 are expected to attend this exciting event."

The host association has picked the theme, "New Jersey and You in 2002," adopted from the state's popular tourist slogan, to emphasize the importance of N.J. to the U.S. food-producing industry.

Following are schedules and sign-up forms.

New Jersey and You in 2002!
Cultural Day Tours

New Jersey is such a small state there couldn't be anything there for me to do!

1. Dolphin/Whale Watching
Are you up for a three hour tour? Don't worry Gilligan will not be your first mate on this 3 hour ride on the S.S. CRUISE N 1. This will be a relaxing cruise on the open waters off of Atlantic City. While taking in the beautiful sights be on the lookout for Dolphins and Whales. The tours will leave the Trump Taj Mahal hotel at 12:30 PM and arrive back at the hotel at 4:00 PM for a cost of $35.00 per person.

2. Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island
New Jersey's finest landmark. Did your family come through Ellis Island? Was the Statue of Liberty the first thing your ancestors saw when they came to America? Learn about the trials and tribulations people went through to come to the great melting pot. See the Statue in all her glory. The cost is $35.00/person, lunch is on your own. Transportation to Liberty Island leaves the hotel at 7:00 AM and will return at 5:00 PM.

3. Historical Tour - Washington's Crossing/Trenton Barracks/Princeton Area/Monmouth Battlefield.
New Jersey: "the Cockpit of the Revolution." More battles of the War for Independence were fought in New Jersey than any other state. Join us as we follow in the footsteps of General Washington and his gallant continentals. Cross the Delaware to defeat the dreaded Hessians in Trenton. March north to stop the British at Princeton. After touring the old college town, nose east to catch the main English army at the Battle of Monmouth. You will walk the ground where the freedom we all value so much was won for us. A box lunch will be included for a cost of $35.00/person. The tour will leave at 7:30 AM and will return at 5:30 PM.

4. Fishing
So you want to fish in a big pond. This eight-hour trip will include fishing 12 to 15 miles off shore, poles, bait, tackle and lunch. Fluke, Sea bass and Blue fish are some of the fish that run this time of year. This trip is 7:30 AM to 5:00 PM and the cost is $65.00/person.

5. Battleship NJ and the State Aquarium
Want to see the marine life but not sure you want to get on a boat? The State Aquarium has over 800 species of water life. And see one of the finest vessels that set afloat with 16 battle stars. The USS New Jersey was the most decorated battleship in naval history. You will be responsible for your lunch. The cost per person is $35.00 and the bus will leave at 8:00 AM and return to the hotel at 5:00 PM.

6. Fishing
If you want to fish for larger sea life there is a boat available to go anytime during the convention. This is the best time of year to fish for Bluefin Tuna, which can range between 50 to 80 lbs. Please contact Rich Norz at norzhillfarm@earthlink.net for more information. The boat is limited to 6 people per trip

Please make three choices in order of preference, number one being your first choice. Space is limited on some trips and availability will be on first-come first-serve basis.

Don't miss this opportunity to sample the history and beauty in the state of NJ. It isn't every day that you get to see the Garden State!

certainly an evening to anticipate.

Proceeds from the fundraising dinner are used to protect the interests of the Pennsylvania poultry industry and its suppliers. Strong advocacy for the industry has never been more important. Support also strengthens the alliance with PennAg Industries Association, a leading voice for agribusiness in Pennsylvania.

The cost per ticket is $100 with tables of 10 and 12 also available. Tickets may be purchased by contacting the PennAg Poultry Council at (717) 651-5920. Absentee tickets are also available for those who would like to support the banquet but are unable to attend.

Advertisement opportunities are available in the Banquet Program and Pennsylvania Poultry and Egg Buyer's Guide.

The program is set at the dinner plate of 1,500 people in Hershey and the buyer's guide is sent to more than 1,100 people later in the year.

The program and buyer's guide provide an opportunity to put a company's name in front of literally thousands of prospective customers. All advertisements appear in both publications for no additional cost.

Ticket purchases are accepted until Friday, April 26.

Trust Announces 18th Annual Gourmet Gala

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Historic Preservation Trust of Lancaster County announced that it will conduct its 18th annual Gourmet Gala at the historic Landis Valley Museum Sunday, May 19, from 4:30 p.m.-7:30 p.m.

The event is conducted each year at a historic venue of interest, and includes samplings of varieties of cuisine including gourmet appetizers, entrees, desserts and beverages from a number of fine restaurants, caterers, wineries, and microbreweries in the area.

The Landis Valley Museum, a model 19th Century crossroads village, is listed on the National Register of Historic Places, and is widely regarded as one of the best preserved living history museums in the nation. The Gourmet Gala will be held in and around the museum's vintage barn, with other activities including complimentary carriage rides and craft demonstrations offered for the enjoyment of guests.

Landis Valley Museum, which includes 26 historic structures on a rambling 100 acres, is located along the Oregon Pike at Kissel Hill Road, Manheim Township. Gala tickets provide complimentary admission throughout the site for the day of the event.

Musical entertainment will be provided throughout by the band Gadjo Playboys, which specializes in 1930s and 1940s jazz. Admission to the Historic Preservation Trust's Gourmet Gala is $50 per member, or $60 per nonmember. Tickets may be obtained by phoning the Trust office at (717) 291-5861.

Va. Avian Influenza Threatens Delmarva

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Low pathogenic avian influenza (A.I.), a dreaded, infectious poultry disease, continues to spread in the turkey and chicken industries in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley and is creating a threat to Delmarva's chicken industry.

More than 50 Virginia flocks have tested positive and close to one million birds have been or soon will be depopulated.

Because of this threat, the April 23, 2002 Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) Booster Banquet in Salisbury, Md., has been postponed.

DPI's Emergency Poultry Disease Task Force and Board of Directors' unanimously voted for this action. If conditions later improve, an effort will be made to reschedule the banquet.

About 1,600 DPI members and guests were expected at the dinner. "While people in the chicken industry might be disappointed about this change, they realize that holding the banquet now just creates another risk, a risk that is too great for our industry," said DPI President Hank Engster.

DPI's Emergency Poultry Disease Task Force continues to monitor and evaluate the Virginia situation. The local poultry companies have instituted increased biosecurity related to truck travel and egg movements to Delmarva.

Additional bird testing on Delmarva has begun. State governments are instituting policies to restrict the movement of birds and manure. Allied industry suppliers are restricting travel. Growers are working hard to improve their biosecurity.

Everyone needs to be involved in keeping A.I. off of Delmarva.

Low pathogenic avian influenza is not a health threat to humans, but it is a threat to Delmarva's chicken industry. And while it is low path now, it could mutate at any time into a very deadly form for chickens.

Milk Marketing Board Announces March Class I Price

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for March Class I milk (beverage) as an average of $15.67 in the western areas of the commonwealth, and an average of $16.16 in the central and eastern areas of the commonwealth. These prices include the over-order premium of $1.65 per one hundred pounds of milk.

Farmers, whose milk production is pooled under a Federal Order, will receive a marketwide blended price based upon the value of all classes of milk. However, the blend price received will vary as the component composition of a farmer's milk differs from the established benchmarks of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids.

Since 1988, the PMMB has mandated over-order premiums on Class I milk due to adverse conditions affecting the Pennsylvania dairy farmer.

Web-Based Systems

Livestock producers can use the tool to gather information regarding the use of food industry by-products as livestock feed and the food industry can use the tool to promote by-products that are available for use as livestock feed. Harold Harpster received a grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for development of this soon-to-be released site at http://psbyproduct.psu.edu.

Extension Programming

The recently released Dairy Advisory Team Website developed from a project which began in the fall of 1996 to assist dairy consultants in setting up advisory teams on dairy farms. The site, which is located at http://dat.das.psu.edu/ continues this program but is targeted more to producers themselves.

Although the initial purpose of the project was to assist producers in the dairy industry, the materials provided on this site are applicable to most any agricultural entity or small business. This site differs from the traditional Website in that the material is organized in a manner that makes it easy for a producer to go through the information, step-by-step, as would be presented in a traditional class or workshop. However, because the information is presented online, the participant determines the time and location of the workshop.

In addition, the producer sets the pace, determining which areas are of most importance to them at any given time. The organization of materials is also conducive for future use as reference material.

The Future

New examples of programs utilizing the latest technology are being developed as funding and resources are available. In addition, efforts are under way to develop Web-based courses that would allow students around the globe access to courses provided by the Department of Dairy and Animal Science. These courses will make it easier for students throughout the commonwealth to receive a Penn State education by giving them the flexibility in setting class times and location.

Eight Va. Counties Eligible For Loans

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently named eight counties in Virginia as eligible for USDA emergency farm loans because of losses caused by drought that occurred last year.

"This assistance will provide much needed relief for Virginia farmers who have suffered from losses due to drought conditions," said Veneman.

Prince Edward County was named as a primary disaster area on April 4. Also eligible, because they are contiguous, are Amelia, Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Lunenburg, and Nottoway counties.

This designation makes all qualified farm operators in primary and contiguous disaster counties eligible for low-interest EM loans from the Farm Service Agency, provided eligibility requirements are met. Farmers in eligible counties have eight months from the date of this declaration to apply for the loans to help cover part of their actual losses.

Milk Premium Hearing Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board will conduct a hearing May 1 for Milk Marketing Areas 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive testimony and exhibits concerning whether an adjustment should be made to the current state-mandated over-order premiums of $1.65 per hundred pounds of Class I milk due to expire June 30.

The hearing will commence at 9 a.m. in Room 202 of the Agriculture Building, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg.

Farm Friends Group To Meet

BUTLER (Butler Co.) — The Farm Friends Group celebrates the end of another season on April 25 at Hartner's Restaurant in Cranberry Township at 6:30 p.m. Cost is $5 per person.

Featured speaker is Shelly Mayer, executive director of Professional Dairy Producers, Wis. Shelly and her husband and three children also own and operate a 75-cow dairy farm. Her presentation will focus on balancing business with quality of life.

Reservations with the Butler County extension office by Monday, April 22, at (724) 287-4761 or Monsanto at (800) 300-6209.

New Dean Named For UD College Of Agriculture, Natural Resources

NEWARK, Del. — Robin W. Morgan, who has served since July as acting dean of the University of Delaware (UD) College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, has been named dean of the college, effective July 1, acting Provost Dan Rich announced March 26.

Morgan, a molecular biologist and professor in the Department of Animal and Food Sciences, joined the UD faculty in 1985. Her research, which she conducts at the University's Delaware Biotechnology Institute, centers on the virus that causes Marek's disease in chickens.

"The College of Agriculture and Natural Resources can anticipate a very bright future under the leadership of Dean Robin Morgan," Rich said in announcing the appointment, "and I look forward to continuing to work with her."

He said the search committee, chaired by Engineering Dean Eric W. Kaler, recommended Morgan for the position based on "her strong qualifications as a scholar and teacher and her excellent contributions as acting dean — contributions that have earned the respect and admiration of colleagues across the University and beyond the campus." The search committee also "made special mention of her open and direct style of communications, a quality that enhances her ability to work with the diverse internal and external constituencies that the college serves," Rich said.

Morgan has served as acting dean since July, when Dean John Nye left the position and returned to the faculty. Nye has remained in his role as director of cooperative extension, a job he will continue through June.

"The time I spent as acting dean was critically important because it allowed me to experience the job firsthand," Morgan said. "It gave me a look at the dean's responsibilities and helped me determine some areas on which to focus immediately. It certainly will ease the transition."

Among the priorities she noted for the college are selecting an associate dean to lead cooperative extension; enhancing the support for graduate programs, with a special emphasis on recruiting top students; continuing the significant contributions the college makes to the Delaware Biotechnology Institute (DBI); and increasing the number of named professors.

Morgan said she plans to launch a search as soon as possible to fill the associate dean's position, adding that cooperative extension is an arm of the college that provides substantial outreach to the agricultural and broader community — in areas from farm management and youth programs to nutrient management and poultry health.

Of DBI, where a number of the college's faculty members are affiliated researchers, Morgan cited the importance of cross-disciplinary work in the sciences.

"Some of the most exciting areas of research today involve more than one discipline," she said. "It's important to have that collaborative research, and the college is committed to ensuring the success of DBI's program."

The college itself, she said, is stronger than ever, with excellent students, faculty and programs that encompass far more than traditional agricultural subjects. And, with a relatively small undergraduate population of about 700, students and faculty tend to form close bonds, she said.

Morgan said her tenure as acting dean has enabled her to get to know the larger Delaware agricultural community, interacting with farmers, business people and policy makers in all three counties. "The opportunity to travel around the state and meet people in the community has been the best part of the past year," she said. "I've met so many people who are so committed to agriculture and to the environmental sciences — and so willing to work hard — that it's made me even more committed to supporting those efforts."

Morgan said she plans to continue her research, working with "my excellent collaborators," and, although she no longer is able to visit her lab daily, she stops by three or four times a week to oversee the progress of research. She said she has stopped teaching "except for a few guest lectures," but continues to advise about 20 students.

"I enjoy teaching very much, and I miss the challenge of being in the classroom," she said, "but you move on to other things and new challenges."

Morgan is the first woman dean in a college that once was largely male but whose undergraduate student body today is more than 60 percent female. She said she often attends professional meetings at which she is one of only a handful of women — occasionally, she's been the only woman — but that her gender rarely is an issue.

"I've found the community to be very accepting," she said. "It's not something I focus on, and I don't think others do, either."

Morgan also broke new ground in 1985, when she was the first molecular biologist to join the college, a program that has grown over the years. When she began doing research at UD, she recalled, Worrilow Hall then had no darkroom and certain other facilities she needed. In contrast, her lab today at DBI is "the nicest I've ever worked in," she said.

Her research is focused on Marek's disease virus, a herpes virus that causes infectious T-cell lymphomas in chickens. In addition, since 1997, Morgan and Joan Burnside, professor of animal and food sciences, have been analyzing the chicken genome, identifying DNA sequences that represent genes expressed in chicken tissue and posting them to an online database to share with researchers around the world.

Before coming to UD, Morgan earned her doctoral degree in biology from Johns Hopkins University and completed postdoctoral work at the University of California at Berkeley.

In addition to Kaler, members of the search committee for the dean's position were Robert Baker, Delaware Farm Bureau; John Boyer, E.I. du Pont Professor of Marine Biochemistry/Biophysics; Burnside; Judy Hough-Goldstein, chairperson of entomology and applied ecology; Tom Ilvento, chairperson of food and resource economics; Yan Jin, associate professor of plant and soil sciences; Ed Kee, instructor in plant and soil sciences and a Cooperative Extension specialist; and Ken Lomax, chairperson of bioresources engineering.

The College of Agriculture and Natural Resources includes about 700 undergraduate and 140 graduate students and approximately 70 full-time faculty members. It encompasses the departments of Animal and Food Sciences, Bioresources Engineering, Entomology and Applied Ecology, Food and Resource Economics and Plant and Soil Sciences.

Blueprint For Small Farms

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — A dairy farm meeting, "Blueprint For Success On Small Family Dairy Farm," is scheduled for Thursday, April 25, from 10:30 a.m. to 2:15 p.m., at the Chuck and Amy Theobald Farm (Riverside Farm), at Creamton, along Route 170, North of Prompton.

Presentations include: Jeff Harding, Monsanto Company, "Farm Management Practices That Make A Difference," Dr. Jeff Hyde, assistant professor, department of ag economics and rural sociology, Penn State University, "A Review of Pennsylvania Family Farm Performance From 1995 to 2000," Dr. Ken Bailey, associate professor, department of ag economics and rural sociology, Penn State University, "Pennsylvania's Position in the U.S. Dairy Industry!" and Dr. Tim Snyder, dairy nutritionist, Pennfield Feed Corporation, "Feeding for Production and Component Yield!"

A light lunch, catered by "The Red Schoolhouse" (Mike Eldred and staff), will be served from about 12:15 p.m. to 1 p.m. Participants in this dairy farm meeting are asked to make their lunch reservations with the Wayne County Cooperative Extension by April 22, by calling (570) 253-5970, ext. 239.

Beef Education Goes Chute-Side

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

MARIETTA (Lancaster Co.) — Participants got firsthand experience with cattle at the chute-side portion of Pennsylvania's Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) program recently.

All injections should be in front of the shoulder, in the area above the neck vertebrae, but below the neck ligament, which forms the "injection triangle."

As the second facet of the Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) program, the three-part presentation included chute-side, hands-on experience, a record-keeping review, and necropsy.

The evening program, conducted at B&R Cattle Co., Marietta, focused on illustrating the effects of residues and carcass defects caused by injection site blemishes. Approximately 50 producers and 20 4-H'ers participated.

A certified BQA producer must administer all injections in the neck region of the animal, regardless if the injection is subcutaneously (SQ) or intramuscularly (IM) given. The neck region, said Tammy Weaver, Fort Dodge, is where the lower-cost cuts of beef are from.

Injection sites generally cause tissue damage. The meat then becomes toughened by the scar tissue caused by the lesions, even as far as several inches away from the injection site.

"Twenty-five percent of the time our consumers are telling us that their beef-eating experience is not a good one. Most of the time it's a tenderness issue," said Weaver.

Meat cuts from the neck area are usually ground into hamburger, said veterinarian Gary Wurtz, Valley, Neb.

"Even baby calves need to have that injection in the neck," he said.

Since muscle cells are not produced as a calf grows, but simply increase in size, "anything you inject in these calves' muscles causes permanent scarring" that will increase in size, Wurtz noted.

4-H'er Barbara Pfender, 13, Quarryville, had her first experience with administering a shot to a steer with the help of Paul Slayton, left, Pennsylvania Beef Council, and Ron Ranck, right, B&R Cattle Co.

Producers are advised against using the more traditional injection site of the hindquarter, which has valuable meat cuts. Additionally, the loose skin behind the animal's elbow is not an ideal site. The area is too loose for efficient absorption of the product, said Wurtz.

Properly handling vaccines is the first step to ensuring the animal receives full potential of the treatment. Weaver said that producer should ask for ice packs to transport vaccines from the point of purchase, since vaccines should be transported and stored in a closed, refrigerated container. "You want to make sure that the vaccine never reaches room temperature. If it does, it will be completely ineffective."

Weaver also advised producers to check if the vaccination has changed colors, since that may indicate an inactivation of the vaccine because of adverse environmental (temperature, sunlight) conditions.

Cleaning needles with a chemical disinfectant may also inactivate a vaccine. Sterile water or a small amount of product being used can rinse the needle. Chlorination found in tap water can be detrimental to the vaccine.

Besides vaccine care, Weaver addressed administration procedures. "Needles are cheap — buy the disposable kind," she said. Additionally, if the needle begins to bend, "don't bend it back into place, since it may break off in the animal," she said.

Later in the program, Wurtz told BQA participants to sacrifice the animal if a needle breaks off inside of the muscle, since it may lodge in a piece of meat that is marketed to a consumer.

BQA consultant Bill McCoy led a session detailing record-keeping.

BQA-certified producers agree to keep records of feed medication and additives, and cattle health product records two years after the transfer of ownership.

Information such as the date of the sale of medication, the supplier, the product name, quantity, cost, lot number, serial number, expiration date, procedure on the animal, date given, withdrawal date, when booster will be needed, and the processor initials are examples of the information a producer should note.

Wurtz emphasized the end product as key to the BQA program. According to Wurtz the "B" in BQA, for instance, stands for not cows and calves or feedlot steers but on-the-plate beef. the "Q" stands for quality, not grades, but a wholesome product. "A" is the assurance, the guarantee that "what you are producing is safe and unadulterated." he said. "That's where the written words, that contract that you signed, comes in."

On a calf that was given several varieties of injections in various places 10 days ago, Wurtz performed a necropsy and demonstrated to participants the tissue damage caused by injection sites.

Heat with Corn!
Made in USA
Burn Shelled Corn In This Biomass Furnace
A BETTER ALTERNATIVE
The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat. The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace several times a day The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal. BQA Chute-Side

Producers should administer shots in the "injection triangle" in front of the shoulder. If the injection ends up in the neck bones, the needle will cause soreness in the calf's neck, cause him to avoid the feed bunk, and cost the producer rate of gain.

Subcutaneous injections, given under the animals' "tented" skin, allows producers more room to get more injections into the animal. Shots should be four finger-widths apart.

Not only injection administration but also careful animal handling can make a difference in injection absorption. Because the animal's lymph node, which controls the animal's immune process, is in the front shoulder area of the animal, it can damaged when the animal charges into the head catch gates. A damaged lymph node reduces response to the medication or vaccination.

Wurtz recommended that producers administer no more than 10 cc's per injection site "to make sure that all 10 cc's of the product are absorbed and utilized."

Quality assurance is important for all aspects of a beef program, he said. The sale of market cows and bulls accounts for 25 percent of all beef consumed by the U.S., according to BQA manual information. "Even our brood cows," he said. "We need to be careful with them since they are also going into someone's food supply."

The chute-side session is part of a two-part program to both educate and certify the commonwealth's beef producers. The curriculum teaches management practices which will not only enhance the quality and safety of the beef but also increase consumer confidence in beef.

According to McCoy, as part of a voluntary program that will become mandatory, seven regional veterinarians throughout Pennsylvania will randomly select certified producers to check that "you are doing what you attested to in the contract," said McCoy.

Pennsylvania BQA is funded by the Pennsylvania Beef Council and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The program includes a classroom segment with a written test and the chute-side training.

The commonwealth's BQA representatives have met with beef industry leaders in other states. Consequently Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland are adopting Pennsylvania's manual.

Questions about the program can be e-mailed to pabqa@pabeef.org.

Last year the Farm Show was recognized globally by taking home three out of 11 awards given to agriculture events around the world.

"That is the most recognition that's been bestowed on the Farm Show in its time," he said.

The awards recognized the show's involvement with production agriculture "and the way we display them and the broad-based participation that we get in our competitive exhibits."

Educating the nonfarm public is a critical role of the event. "Public policy is terribly important, and to pay attention for one week out of the year to agriculture is important to the future of agriculture," he said.

"We tell them (Farm Show attendees) how important our largest industry is in Pennsylvania, and how important it is to them, to have a constant supply of food and fiber right here at home."

Besides the non-farm public, however, the event is integral to unify the agricultural population.

"The reason that the Farm Show means what it does is the cultural and social aspect," he said. "It pulls together the social fabric of the rural community."

Pennsylvania has the largest rural population of any state in the union, noted Grumbine.

"All of us can relate to an agriculture heritage somewhere. When you have rural population as large as we have here, there is some attachment to the rural society and we like that. We have a sense of pride that the industry is in good hands."

"I believe that the Farm Show gives a lot back to the agriculture community in Pennsylvania," said Glenn Wenger, president, Wengers of Myerstown, a family owned and operated farm and construction equipment business.

The junior livestock sale, he said, benefits 4-H and FFA members with not only the livestock sale, which yields a premium for their livestock projects, but also the Farm Show scholarship program, which provides money for college-bound students.

This past year, proceeds from the sale over the market price for the animals were in excess of $100,000.

According to Wenger, in 2002 the program awarded nine scholarships of $2,000 each. To date the program, which began in 1993, has awarded approximately $169,000 to students.

The food court is another example of the event's importance to Pennsylvania agriculture, he said. Various agriculture organizations from across the state take the opportunity to market their commodities to the thousands of event attendees.

"Each year those organizations combine to raise more than half a million dollars. Those funds go a long way toward their budget for the programs they provide for their members throughout the year."

In addition, more than $300,000 of premium money is awarded during the event.

"So when you add this together, you get to more than $1 million that the Farm Show puts back into the ag community," he said. "The Farm Show is not only a place to exhibit equipment and meet customers, it's a great two-way relationship."

Not only financial benefits but also relationships and ideas are by-products of the show. "The other angle is that the Farm Show does a lot to bring the agricultural community together in Pennsylvania," he said. Friendships are kindled and renewed during the Farm Show. "It's a family-oriented event. It adds to the fabric of agricultural life in Pennsylvania."

Also "a lot of good ideas are generated through meetings that take place during the Farm Show. This is a show that gives back a great deal to the agricultural community, our friends, and our family that participate in the Farm Show.

"I think it's important that agriculture input suppliers — equipment, feed, seed, and fertilizer suppliers are all industries that benefit from agriculture in Pennsylvania — participate. That's the driving reason why I am involved with the Commercial Agriculture Exhibit Committee," he said.

"The new building gave us a real impetus to restructure the exhibition of commercial farm machinery supplies and products," said Don Hoover, sales and marketing, Binkley & Hurst Bros, Inc. Hoover is also a member of the Commercial Agriculture Exhibit Committee.

"While there are a lot of strengths of the Farm Show, for years one of the developing areas that needed improvement was commercial involvement.

"Farm show management acknowledged that and solicited the help and input of some of the participants.

"Our committee is made up of a good cross-section of the types of companies and businesses that we want to have represented. We are excited about the potential of filling the new hall with production agriculture equipment and suppliers of agriculture supports.

"We've come a long way from our initial discussions with farm show management and are very pleased with our progress on the implementation of some of our ideas since that first meeting. We believe farmers and exhibitors alike will appreciate our efforts when they attend the 2003 Farm Show."

Ten years ago, said Hoover, the Farm Show "was more of a manufacturers' show." Today manufatureres are moving away from exhibitions and shows "and it is falling to dealerships and distributors to be responsible for exhibition and promotion and demonstration of farm machinery," he said. Hoover added that Farm Show management is looking to those who will be exhibiting to give some input for the next Farm Show.

The Farm Show Commercial Agriculture Exhibit Committee is comprised of Tom Yohe, general manager, Hoober, Inc.; Don Hoover, sales and marketing, Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc.; Bill Burgess, general manager, Lancaster Farming; Glenn Wenger, president, Wengers of Myerstown; Bob Oberheim, manager, Ag Progress Days; and Dennis Grumbine, Farm Show executive director. Bob Weaver, former Bush Hog and Richardton representative, is serving as the committee's sales and marketing director.

Lancaster Farming will publish additional updates on Farm Show Complex construction, plans, and events in future issues.

'Profit Protection' Topic Of Ag Banker Conference

monopolize the program," according to an USDA/Farm Service Agency (FSA) representative.

Robert Bonnet, chief, Guaranteed Farm Loan Branch, USDA/FSA in Washington, D.C., spoke about some proposed programs and changes to programs facing ag lenders during the start of a two-day Penn State-sponsored seminar.

Bonnet spoke to about 60 bank agri-industry representatives Tuesday at the 36th annual Pennsylvania Agricultural Bankers Conference in the Nittany Lion Inn at University Park.

The conference theme, "profit protection," applies to not only those who manage farm loan programs at banks and farm credit institutions, but also to young and beginning farmers.

The proposed system has no annual needs test, simplified the claims process, has a five-year eligibility portal, and certifies up to $16,000 maximum with 80 percent guarantee to lending institutions.

Another important proposal in the works, according to Bonnet, is an "electronic loan," or e-loan, program. Beginning in June this year, Bonnet noted, those who want loans would be able to apply online with full and complete registration forms available over the Internet.

The link will be available through USDA. Though the "signature-necessary" issue to legalize the documentation is still being considered, users of the Website may be able to find out more at www.fsa.usda.gov.

Gary Snider, farm business consultant with Farm Credit of Western New York, noted major changes to come for dairying.

More than ever, processors are looking to differentiate quality in the product. For large-scale dairies, that is part of the business plan.

But for the producer with 40 cows and 500,000 somatic cell count, it could be a different type of "differentiating," Snider noted.

The best profitability could come from what Snider calls an "investor dairy," and more of those type of multifamily or co-owned and operated dairies are coming on line.

More dairy operators are dealing directly with handlers through investor dairies, which include a "critical mass" of dairy farms in the western part of New York state, he told those at the ag banker conference.

Snider said that the typical "turnkey" model for an investor dairy includes a 1,400/700 cow model (beginning with 700 cows, and a second 700-cow facility about 150 feet away), under contract management, with a general manager to oversee employees and a general manager to oversee company service and marketing.

"I see a trend to greater specialization," said Snider, which include heifer-rearing facilities or custom operations (customer cropping, harvesting, etc.).

The smaller producers, those with 100 cows or less, may be able to specialize within the industry, such as simply milking cows, growing feed, or raising heifers.

In a study conducted by the Western New York Farm Credit, the larger farms, those with a turnkey-type system, have "double the return on assets as smaller farms," noted Snider.

He spoke of one large operation that recently installed a 60-stall rotary milking parlor, what Snider calls a "merry-go-round." The rotary parlor inserts one cow to each milker every 8.5 seconds and will be able to process 375 cows per hour.

Snider said his observations about the large-scale dairies are that the business was already successful before expansion, the owner studied those who expanded and learned from them, the whole family supported expansion ('it's no time for a family squabble," said Snider), all aspects of the expansion were analyzed, and everything is budgeted (the capital budget is put together before the start). Additional borrowing capacity was retained, a realistic timeline was established, and the owner manages people as well as cows.

For the transition to the larger type dairies to be effective, mangers must look at other facilities ('leave the county, leave the state, and talk to people," Snider said), and study the overall management of the farm.

The most important profit center, noted Snider, is the replacement herd. Those replacements should be placed into the milking stream at 23 months or less. Cull rates have to be cut to 30 percent or less.

The safest way to grow, Snider said, is first with a good calf barn, then build a heifer barn, build the first dairy barn, build a new parlor, then add a second dairy barn. It's the "safest road to expansion," Snider said.

"Black holes," or problem areas to look out for, include budgets that aren't achievable, building and maintaining cow numbers, holding production levels to pre-expansion levels, building delays and cost overruns, manure handling systems, understanding capital replacement needs, and others. Also, running out of borrowing capacity can be real trouble.

Debt per cow should be less than $3,500, net worth should be greater than 40 percent, and the herd must have high productivity, between 22,000-23,000 pounds on the rolling herd average.

To be successful in farming, the farmer's ability to lead defines the 2000s, noted Snider.

For many years, dairy farm managers have believed the "land was the legacy," noted Brad Hilty, information management specialist with Dairy Alliance. "But the business should be."

Hilty noted that while we give awards for centuries of farming and the heritage, the business itself should be the legacy.

"Our accounting systems are a mess," he said, with too much emphasis on the "tradition" of dairy farming rather than the "business."

Rather than saying a producer is a dairy farmer, they should be saying they are a "farmer who operates a dairy business," Hilty said.

Hilty provided a review of the results of the Dairy Farm Business Summary from BusinesSense date collected last year. Hilty said he believes that producers "learn from producers," and that the Alliance strove to "train chief financial officers (CFOs) in operating a dairy business."

That included making use of best management practices in business and information management, standardizing information management practices, a systematic approach to business analysis, and looking at the business accounting.

Pennsylvania needs to step up production by two billion more pounds of milk, because critics indicate we have to boost productivity to keep processors in the state. California continues to grow by leaps and bounds — while Pennsylvania still has a smaller herd size than New York (New York averages about 100 cows per herd).

Dairy CFOs should focus more on cost of product, or COP, and look at ways to help spread costs across various herd sizes and management schemes.

"We need to challenge producers to manage investments wisely," said Hilty.

Copies of the presentation from Hilty can be obtained through e-mail by contacting him at bhilty@psu.edu.

NFU Calls For Investigations Into Falling Cattle Prices

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union has asked Congress, the administration and the Commodity Futures Trading Commissioner to investigate the forces behind falling cattle futures.

A letter from the NFU Board of Directors suggests the current downward trend in cattle futures markets may be due to collusion and price manipulation following the recent foot and mouth disease (FMD) rumor and the proposed legislation to ban packer ownership of livestock.

"NFU believes these issues are signs of broader threats to open markets by monopolistic practices of large packers and processors," said Dave Frederickson, president of NFU. "The growing trend of market concentration continues to threaten the viability of independent farmers and ranchers, and the NFU board of directors has challenged Congress, the administration and the industry to take action."

Analysts estimate the FMD rumor cost the industry as much as $50 million after prices dropped $1.50 per hundredweight for market cattle.

Meanwhile, NFU has heard from producers who testified to a fall in livestock prices last month as possible retaliation for legislation in the Senate farm bill banning meatpackers from owning livestock for more than 14 days prior to slaughter.

Feb. 13 the Senate passed S.1731, which included the provision that bans packer ownership of livestock. An Oklahoma Farmers Union producer said he received active bids for his cattle through Feb. 18, with bidders promising an excess of 84 cents per pound for approximately 625-pound cattle. When markets reopened on Feb. 19, the market opened has proceeded to drop by 10 cents per pound.

Correction

Lancaster Farming received erroneous information regarding the sale highlights of the recent Pennsylvania Bull Performance Test in an article in the April 6 issue. The correct information: The second high-selling bull was a Red Angus sold by Nancy Myers of Dallastown to Charles Gaffney of Roscoe, N.Y.

Vegetable Processing Plant Announces Plans For Delaware Location

DOVER, Del. — Governor Ruth Ann Minner announced recently that a major food company plans to open a vegetable processing facility near Bridgeville, Del. The facility would generate more than $3.5 million in annual income for local farmers.

Pictsweet Frozen Foods, a division of United Foods, Inc., expects to complete construction on a $3 million processing plant on Cannon Road, north of Route 18, by 2003. The 18,000 square foot facility would process between 9,000 and 10,000 acres of locally grown vegetables annually.

"This is a major advancement for our agricultural community," Gov. Minner said. "Growing Delaware's vegetable processing industry will provide our farmers with a significant opportunity to increase profits. I am very pleased that we have been able to attract two new processing plants to Delaware already this year."

Pictsweet's Bridgeville plant will handle the washing, grading, and hydrocooling of lima beans, peas and sweet corn for shipment to the company's Tennessee processing plant. There, they will be frozen and packaged for shipment to customers around the country.

Wesley F. Eubanks, vice president of operations for Pictsweet Frozen Foods, said, "The combination of climate, good soils, irrigation, and quality growers is the main attraction for locating this facility in Delaware. The dedication to lima bean production by the state is also very important to the long term viability of an operation such as this."

The new facility would operate from June through October, initially creating approximately 10 part-time and three full-time positions. Pictsweet anticipates that it will begin harvesting lima beans in Delaware this summer, using a subcontractor to process the vegetables. Pictsweet will work with area growers to harvest approximately 2,000 acres of produce, resulting in more than $640,000 in new income for Delaware farmers this year.

In 2001, Delaware farmers produced more than 55,000 acres of vegetables, generating approximately $60 million in cash farm income.

The Delaware Economic Development Office has been working to bring Pictsweet to Delaware since 2001 as part of its initiative to grow Delaware's vegetable production industry.

Ed Kee, University of Delaware Extension vegetable crops specialist says, "Pictsweet has been working with the university on vegetable crop production issues since 1996. Thanks to this interaction, company officials became very familiar with local growers, the region's vegetable production, and the University's research programs. Their positive impression of our agricultural assets made Delaware a strong contender when Pictsweet began its search for new sources of supply."

In January, Gov. Minner announced that Michigan-based Kenny, Inc. would begin operations at a new pickle grading facility in Bridgeville this July. Kenny has contracted with more than 14 local growers to provide more than 870,000 bushels of produce for the upcoming growing season. This represents approximately $3.2 million in farm income.

Farm Credit Reviews Prosperous Returns

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — MidAtlantic Farm Credit celebrated a successful year by hosting eight sectional stockholder banquet meetings April 1-10.

According to Ralph Robertson, Farm Credit director, the member-based focus of decision-making policies resulted in track-record achievements and successful returns on stock of more than 20 percent.

Farm Credit's diversified portfolio is almost equally divided among what is called the "top five" — grain, poultry, dairy, landlords, and livestock. This diversification lowers risk-taking.

Twenty months ago, Farm Credit began ongoing consolidation. Reducing the number of offices trimmed operating costs, saved taxes, and strengthened the organization. Planned merging changes continue to be put into action, Robertson said. Within the next year, the 31-member board will be reduced to 23.

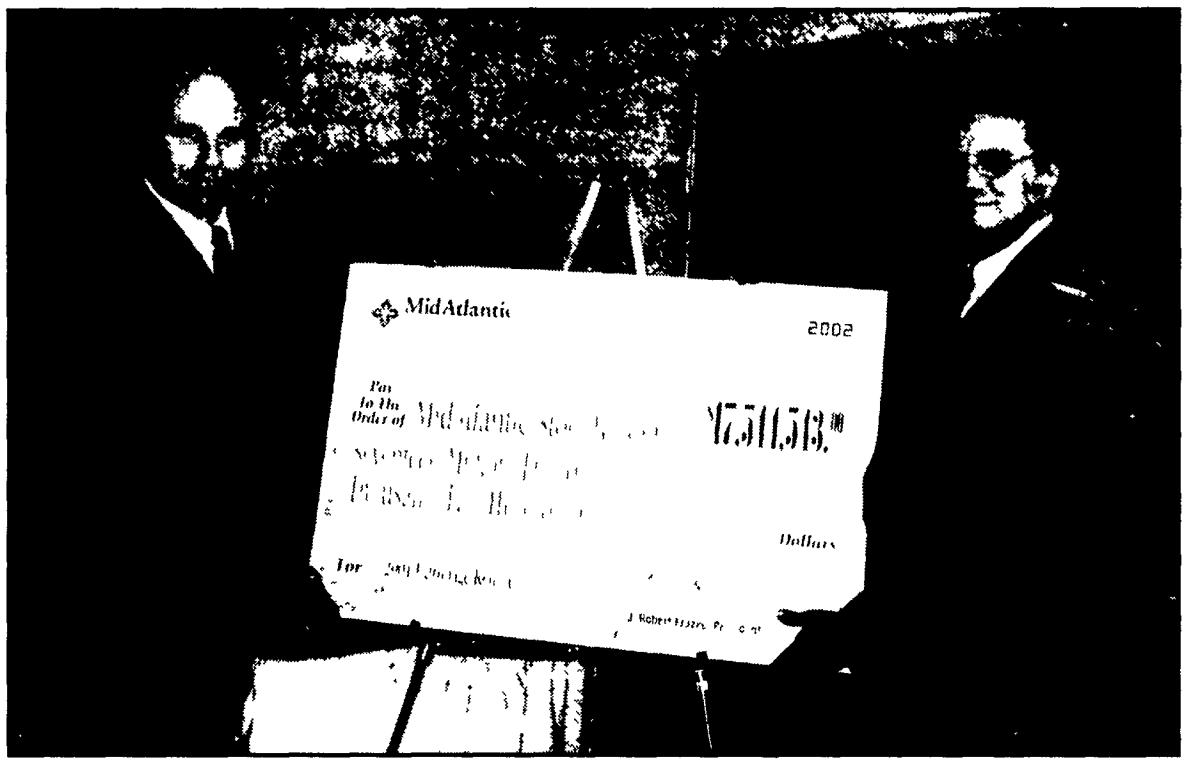
Bob Frazee, CEO, said that members cooperation continue to make stocholders' vision a reality.

This past year's financial success was partly due to the dramatic decline in interest rates, the lowest in recent memory. This enabled improved cash flow and lowered borrowing costs for members.

The lower interest rates spurred refinancing opportunities.

Last year, 300 new members joined MidAtlantic.

Internal duties include reorganization to equip Farm Credit to serve the needs of large and small operations.



An oversized check for $17,544,543 held by Ralph Robertson, director, right, and Bob Frazee, CEO, demonstrates the amount returned to stockholders of MidAtlantic Farm Credit.

Profits also increased in part because of a finalized IRS settlement, which returned monies from an escrow account.

"September 11 shaped 2001," Frazee said. The events showed that anything can happen, but also rekindled a renewal among the nation to concentrate on what is important in life, Frazee said. Farmers, he said, are accustomed to dealing with crisis as a result of changeable weather, economy, and government polices.

The company slogan for the year, "The Time Is Right," signified that the time was right for consolidation and for moving to a holding company to benefit from deferred taxes.

"We strive to be the premier cooperative lender. I promise we are working for you," Robertson told the stockholders.

Elections were held at each of the eight regional meetings, which included Dover, Del., Princess Anne, Md., Denton, Md., Allentown; New Holland; Level, Md.; Westminster, Md.; and Hagerstown, Md.

After the votes from all regional meetings were tallied, the following members were elected to the board of directors: Gary Grossnickle, Walkersville, Md.; Merle Ramsburg, Thurmond, Md.; Douglas Scott, Hurlock, Md.; Dale Ockels, Milton, Del.; James Garber, Mount Joy; Dale R. Hershey, Manheim; Wilmer Hostetter, Oxford; Mervin Sauder, Lititz; Kenneth Stutzman, Kutztown; Rodger Wagner, Oley; George Bundick, Bloxom, Va.; M. Wayne Lambertson, Pocomo City, Md.; Fred Moore Jr., Eden, Md.; Jesse Burall Sr., Monrovia, Md.; Steven Wilson, Parkton, Md.; Raymond Harrison III, Easton, Md.; William Knight Jr., Church Hill, Md.; Leroy Allen Messick Jr., Seaford, Del.; Benjamin Tull, Seaford, Del.; Stephen Burkholder, Alburtis; Dean Groff, Kinzers; Susan Arnold, Salisbury, Md.; and Lewis Q. Riley, Marva.

Featured speaker was Bryan Townsend, Talladega, Ala. The motivational humorist spoke of making good things happen.

Purple Deadnettle Carpets Fields

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — If you've been curious about a short plant with purplish leaves and flowers making a strong showing in some fields and roadsides this spring, Penn State extension agent Paul Craig offered some information this week.

Purple deadnettle is its name, and serious competition is not its game.

Although it forms a dense carpet of striking purple in some fields, it will not pose much of a threat to crops grown in this area, Craig said.

Purple deadnettle (Lamium pupureum) is a winter annual often confused with henbit (Lamium amplexicaule). Both weeds have square stems and belong to the mint family. The leaves of purple deadnettle are triangular in shape and less deeply lobed than henbit. The upper leaves of deadnettle are red to purple in color.

The flowers of purple deadnettle are light purple in color and are arranged in whorls in the axis of the upper leaves.

Purple deadnettle spreads by seeds and is found throughout the U.S. and Canada. It germinates in the fall or spring. Like henbit, it does best in thin turf or open ground. It is usually found in moist fertile soils, growing best in the cooler weather of late fall and early spring.

Proper cultural and fertility practices will reduce competition from purple deadnettle.

Allied Milk Producers Conduct Annual Banquet

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN (Somerset Co.) — The 52nd annual meeting of Allied Milk Producers' Cooperative Inc. was conducted April 2 at the Masonic Temple in Johnstown with more than 100 members and families.

Allied Milk Producers has been in existence since 1950 for the purpose of promoting and advertising the dairy industry to include the consumption of dairy products, according to Dorothy Naugle, dairy marketing specialist who has been with the cooperative for the past 16 years.

Allied Producers include 200 dairy producers from nine counties, including Armstrong, Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Clearfield, Indiana, Jefferson, Somerset, and Westmoreland. These business owners ship their milk to 13 different markets, some of which include Gallikers, Land O'Lakes, and Schneiders Dairy.

According to Naugle, the annual banquet and meeting allows the farmers to get together and enjoy one another's conversations as well as contribute suggestions or complaints about the organization.

In addition, it allows them to hear a speaker who often talks about current issues in the dairy business, said Naugle.

This year, Dr. Paul Knepley from the Bureau of Animal Health at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, spoke to the crowd concerning farm bio security.

"Biocontainment provides the best safeguard at keeping the bad guy off your farm," said Dr. Knepley. "It's a reality. You can't have an impenetrable fortress, and it's not cost effective to do that, but there are ways to protect your farm environment."

Knepley first discussed the potential sources of new disease, such as new herd additions, visitors, equipment, and wildlife. He also talked about reportable diseases, such as brucellosis, anthrax, and mad cow disease.

Other speakers that evening included Sara Jennings, Pennsylvania's Alternate State Dairy Princess. Other dairy princesses in attendance were Stephanie Biesinger, Armstrong County; Emily Kirsch, Blair County; Michele Freyer, Clearfield County; Gretchen King, Indiana County; and Jennifer Stahl, Somerset County.

Amy Sylvester, newscaster from Channel 10 News in Altoona, served as MC.

The board of directors includes Dave W. Myers, Cambria County, president; Fred Shankle, vice president, Bedford County; Lowell Friedline, secretary, Somerset County; Janice Itle, treasurer, Cambria County; Richard Kaufman Jr., Somerset County; and James Scott, Indiana County. Naugle serves as dairy marketing specialist.

Naugle explained that even though Allied Producers has been up and running since 1950, the Dairy Tobacco and Adjustment Act of 1983 made it mandatory for dairy farmers to contribute so many cents per hundredweight collected each year for a qualified agent, with five cents going to the National Dairy Board and 10 cents being directed by local producers for advertising.

The Allied Milk Producers' Cooperative Inc., which includes 200 members from nine counties in Western Pennsylvania, conducted its annual banquet recently in Johnstown in Cambria County. Here, some members get together before the banquet to discuss the dairy industry. They are Dr. Paul Knepley, guest speaker from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; Fred Shankle, vice president, Bedford County; Lowell Friedline, organization secretary from Boswell in Somerset County; and Dave Myers, president from Cambria County. Photo by Sandra Lepley

IMPROVE YOUR PASTURES
AND HAVE TONS OF SUMMER FEED AS WELL

STEP 1 Plow or Roundup about mid to late May. This way you can still utilize your spring growth

STEP 2 Fertilize and drill in one (or a blend of several) of the fine forages described at right or plant our high sugar silage corn. Corn does very well where pasture is plowed down. This may also help break up disease or insect cycles in old pastures.

STEP 3 Graze or cut sorghum sudan at 24 in. (Approx. 40 days after seeding and every 30 days thereafter). Warning: never feed sorghum sudan when it's less than 18" tall.

STEP 4 About early Sept. plow or disk in manure and plant a high quality Barenbrug Grass Legume Mix. Always take a soil test before new seeding.

Graze lightly when 6 to 8 in. tall

WHEN FERTILIZED AND GRAZED PROPERLY, BARENBRUG FORAGES HAVE MORE THAN DOUBLED MILK YIELD PER ACRE COMPARED TO TRADITIONAL PASTURE.

CENTURY BROWN MID RIB (BMR) Hybrid Sorghum Sudan from Walter Moss Seed Co. This premium forage has outstanding regrowth and tillering characteristics. The BMR trait increases the digestibility of the stems and reduces lignin by 40 to 60%. Because of this farmers will see increased milk production, or weight gains. The softer leaves and stems make for a more palatable feed.

MEGA GREEN Delayed Maturing Hybrid Sorghum x Sudangrass from Walter Moss Seed Co., is a very high yielding multi-leaf variety designed for hay or grazing. It has the potential to out yield silage corn. When left to grow it can reach heights of 12 feet or more with out making a seedhead. Here in Lancaster Co. I have not seen it go to head at all. Extra leafy leaves can reach 3 in. wide and 4 ft. long.

SOLD OUT

Both Mega Green and Century can be drilled into old alfalfa stands after first cutting to double your hay tonnage yields. Because of the high sugar content cows really go for it and milk well too.

BARKANT FORAGE TURNIP from Barenbrug is a very leafy turnip that has won yield trials including one in Berks Co. PA where it was seeded May 18, 1999 and harvested June 30th and rivaled the yield of Sorghum Sudangrass. It has a RFV of 216. It can also be mixed with Sorghum Sudan.

MEGA MILLET is a new delayed maturing forage type millet similar to Sorghum Sudan but has NO PRUSSIC ACID. Yields aren't as high as MegaGreen but quality is even higher. Mega Millet should be grazed at 12 to 24 inches. Our cows pick up in milk when grazing Mega Millet.

Mega Millet Seed won't be available until about May 1

First Harvestore® of the Year!

Enter Dairy Recipe Drawing To Win One Of These Prizes

June Dairy Month is "moov-ing" into the calendar of events. That means it's time to send in your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing.

June Dairy Month salutes dairy farmers everywhere fro their hard work in providing milk, which we so often take for granted. Lancaster Farming's annual drawing reminds us of all the wonderful dairy products available to produce culinary delights.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and nondairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and of your family is preferred. We and our readers love to "see" the people who send in the recipes.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the picture.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are at least 18-years-old. We require this because children who send in recipes often inadvertently miss measurements, ingredients or a part of the instructions.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address. If we do not have your complete mailing address, we cannot send your prize if you win.

A photograph of prizes will appear in an upcoming issue of Lancaster Farming.

Send entries immediately. Entries must be postmarked by June 3 to be eligible for the drawing. The state dairy princess and alternates will select the winners. Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winners will be printed in the June 29 issue.

Send entries to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522 or e-mail to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com.

Win one of these "cow prizes" offered to readers who participate in Lancaster Farming's June Dairy Month Drawing. Lou Ann Good, food and family features editor, displays some of the prizes totaling $500.

'Letting Go' Brings Devotion To Dairy Industry

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

PETERSBURG (Huntingdon Co.) — With 700 acres to farm and 260 cows to milk three times daily, there's plenty of work at Mowrer Farms. But owners and parents S. Michael and Janet Mowrer do not require their three children to get involved in farming chores.

"If they want to work on the farm, that's great. But I want them to be free to be involved in extracurricular activities. They (the children) have a whole life ahead of them to work. They should have some responsibilities, but it's not fair to kids to be so tied down to the farm that they miss out on activities with friends," Mowrer summed up the philosophy that he and his wife share.

Letting go has enabled each of the three children to pursue many activities, but it has also resulted in a devotion to dairy farming that few kids their ages exhibit.

Nathan, a freshman at Delaware Valley College, plans to return to the family farm after attaining a degree in dairy science.

Daughter Rebecca, who is both Huntingdon County and the state dairy princess, is fiercely proud of her dad.

She said, "He's the sixth generation of his family to farm. Farming is what he always wanted to do, and I'm most proud to represent the industry he loves and tell others that it is farmers who supply their food."

And daughter Abby, although only 14, has already poured many years into dairy promotion through Huntingdon County's dairy promotion program.

"It was actually through Abby that I became interested in dairy promotion," Rebecca said of her younger sister.

"Although I'm older, I was always more shy than Abby. She started helping with dairy promotion a year before I did. I watched her and thought it looked cool, so I joined the next year," Rebecca said.

This is Rebecca's sixth year in dairy promotion after filling county positions as Little Miss, ambassador, maid, and county dairy princess Now she has the ultimate task — state dairy princess.

Although the Mowrers farm is in Huntingdon County, their roots reach to a 104-acre farm in Chester County.

Encroaching housing development and high land costs caused Becky's dad to look for a farm in another county.

Mowrer said, "I looked at various places, but here was most appealing. I liked the way the farm lay. The soil is better suited to farming than a lot of other places."

The acreage extends one mile on both sides of the road to the town of Petersburg. The south side is hilly and the north side is flat and runs along the river.

The buildings were in disrepair and required new facilities to operate.

State Dairy Princess Rebecca Mowrer, right, credits her younger sister with stimulating her interest in dairy promotion.

Mowrer said, "Many years ago, an elderly farmer told me, 'Buy a farm with good land. You can always change the buildings but not the land.'"

After the decision was made to buy the Huntingdon farm, Mike's parents, Horace and Bernice Mowrer, moved to a farm only two miles away. The father and son farmed in partnership until five years ago, when the elder Mowrer retired. The younger Mowrer and his wife are in the process of buying his parents' farm, which they use to raise dairy heifers.

The transition from Chester County to Huntingdon progressed fairly smoothly. The year before they moved to the farm, the Mowrers crop-farmed the land in anticipation of having feed for the herd. They constructed a parlor and a free-stall barn.

In 1990, they transported their 132-cow herd from Chester County. At first the herd had some problems with sore feet attributed to the new concrete. The herd also needed to adjust to the milking parlor, and it took several years to achieve the quality of alfalfa Mowrer wanted.

During this time, the Mowrers were also busy remodeling the

Arbor Day Observance Set For April 26

SPRING GROVE (York Co.) — Arbor Day will be observed this year in Pennsylvania Friday, April 26. It has been designated by the Legislature to recognize the important part trees, and the products, which come from them, play in maintaining the quality of life Pennsylvanians enjoy.

Even before Arbor Day officially arrives, landowners in south central Pennsylvania have been busy planting thousands of evergreen tree seedlings furnished through Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company's annual cost sharing program.

The program, which has been responsible for the planting of over 19 million seedlings in Pennsylvania since its beginning in 1951, shares the cost of the seedlings.

Landowners in Adams, Berks, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Mifflin, Northumberland, Perry, Schuylkill, Snyder and York counties are eligible to participate.

Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company imposes no restrictions of any kind, but since the seedlings were grown in Bureau of Forestry nurseries, landowners must comply with State regulations which prohibit their use for Christmas trees, ornamentals, or windbreaks. All trees become the property of the landowner who decides when they will be harvested.

The Glatfelter company promotes planting trees and the good management of renewable forest resources. Under proper management the forests can continue to provide the public with wood products, clean water, wildlife habitat, and recreational opportunities.

SUN Area Seeks Dairy Princess Royalty

MIDDLEBURG (Snyder Co.) — The SUN Area Dairy Princess Committee is searching for contestants for its annual pageant June 20-22, at the Susquehanna Valley Mall.

To enter the contest, princess candidates must be residents of the SUN Area covering Snyder, Union, Northumberland, and Montour counties, 16-24 years of age, have a connection to the dairy industry, and be willing to promote the industry throughout these counties during the one-year reign.

Dairy princesses participate in school and grocery store promotions, speak to farm and non-farm groups and make appearances on radio and television stations and fairs. Princesses also participate in training seminars and the State Dairy Princess Pageant in September.

Young ladies at least eight years of age can participate in the royalty program as dairy maids or misses. Dairy maids, ages 13 and up, and dairy misses, ages 8-12, must meet the same requirements as the dairy princess contestant and assist her in promoting the dairy industry in the four county area. There is no competition for these levels, but dairy maids participate in a one-day training seminar.

For more information or applications, contact Shannon Yerg at (570)-529-2456.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Age was catching up.

That had been our assumption concerning joint stiffness increasingly noticeable in our beloved resident, 90-pound pooch. Her tendency to eat anything that doesn't bite back couldn't help, because Derra never misses a chance to eat.

"Now that's a solid dog," an acquaintance who stopped by once declared in what had to be the most politically-correct statement of that week. She is so solid that she can knock me right off balance and onto the floor if we get to playing too rough. Her enthusiasm for food is a key reason Derra is a farm dog and not the working guide dog she was originally trained to be.

Raised in the 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy program, Derra was originally introduced to our daughter by a fellow college instructor. The friend, whose daughter was raising the yellow lab pup for her intended purpose in life, often brought Derra along to the campus office as part of her training.

Once trained and "graduated" from the Seeing Eye dog program, Derra was matched with her sightless new owner. It was then that her gluttonous tendencies to snitch food when someone wasn't looking — or in this case, was unable to see — along with a love for chasing squirrels, brought her noble career path to a screeching halt.

Demoted back to dog-civilian life, she was adopted by the grandkids and returned with them from Oregon to the house at the other side of the meadow. Derra shortly earned promotion to full-fledged, resident farm dog, guardian to the barn cats, pest to the squirrels that hung out in the maple trees, and barker at cows, cats, foxes, groundhogs, deer, passing neighbors and sometimes, possibly, just the wind.

And always on the lookout for a handout — or a bucket of calf milk from which to snitch a taste.

For some time, we've noticed an increasing stiffness in her back legs, usually most prevalent after more strenuous-than-usual amount of exercise. Seeing as how age does that to most of us two-legged-types, we attributed it to her years. And her "solidness."

Derra's Seeing-Eye training carries with it a lifetime of minimal routine vet care. During her recent annual checkup and shots, the clinic nearby suggested considering a routine Lyme Disease test. After she had a visibly painful couple of days recently, following some more strenuous than usual exercise, we had her tested.

And Derra Dog indeed has Lyme Disease.

Along with her diagnosis came some startling information: that single, rural vet care clinic nearby says they are diagnosing two cases per day of the deer tick-bite disease. Two cases per day, from a single pet clinic. Lyme Disease in dogs is apparently reaching something of epidemic proportions, at least in this area.

According to clinic staff, routinely testing dogs for the joint-stiffening affliction is a fairly-recent addition to their canine checkups. Some dogs test positive the simple and quick blood test without showing any outward clinical symptoms, like the stiffness which Derra has. The staffer I spoke with suggested that our mild winter has likely been a key contributing factor, since flea and ticks populations escaped the usual cold weather killoff.

Fortunately, Lyme Disease in dogs can be treated, as it can in humans, with antibiotic therapy. Derra got a shot, with a follow-up daily antibiotic routine for a month. Administering the small, round medications to her is a piece of cake, so to speak. Or more likely a bit of cheese, or meat, or bread, even a bite of banana, into which I tuck the little pill. Vaccination against the tick-borne bug will follow Derra's antibiotic therapy.

A second recommendation — that Derra could stand to lose weight — is more difficult and prompted my instant (but not very diplomatic) laughing reply from a split-second of total honesty: "Don't hold you breath..."

She may be a "solid" dog.

Just like we should all want for any family member.

Family Living Focus

Game Plan For A Healthy Family

Inactivity has become an epidemic among children and is a major reason for the growing rate of obesity. About 10 million children in this country currently have serious weight problems, placing them at potential risk later in life from diabetes, heart disease, orthopedic disorders and respiratory disease. By motivating children to be active and providing a well-balanced diet, parents can help kids maintain a healthy weight, improve overall health and well-being, and develop good eating and exercise habits to last a lifetime.

Be a role model: In line skating, kite flying or other play activities are fun for the whole family. If you're involved, you are showing your child that physical activity is a priority.

Television Time-out: Nature walks or tossing a baseball gets kids outside and away from the television. When it's cold outside, opt for active games for small children indoors, like hide-and-seek.

A Daily Dose of Activity: Get kids involved in everyday activities such as walking the dog, washing the car, or weeding the garden. They won't even know they're exercising.

Eat With Your Kids: Sitting down together for meals provides a time to teach good table manners and healthful eating habits.

Examine Your Pantry: Snacks (two or three a day) should emphasize low fat, nutritious food. Keep a bowl of fruit within reach of hungry kids. And limit low-nutrient sodas, replacing them with water, milk or 100 percent juice.

No Food's a Taboo: Prohibiting candy, fast food, and other "junk" makes these items very desirable. If you allow them occasionally, they become no big deal.

Slow Down: Kids and parents are likely to eat less and feel full faster if meals are enjoyed at a slower pace.

Don't Bribe With Food: Giving a child food as a bribe or a reward confuses their signals of hunger and fullness and can cause kids to eat when they aren't hungry.

Diversify Your Menu: Balance meals with a wide selection of kid-pleasing choices from all food groups. Two or three servings of lean meat, and two to three eight ounces of milk each day will provide the protein and calcium requirements for a growing child.

Don't Skip Breakfast: Breakfast provides much of the day's nourishment and energy for active kids. Studies have shown that breakfast can help children perform at peak capacity in the classroom.

Providing good nutrition, exemplary role modeling and encouragement for daily activity can help to ensure a healthy lifestyle for your children now and in the future.

MCDS Benefit Auction Grows With Garden Items

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Spring is in the air at Manheim Christian Day School (MCDS), where students, parents, grandparents, and others are preparing for the annual benefit auction April 26-27.

For this time of the year, it's only natural that thoughts turn to planting, gardening, and outside decor. To fill these needs, the school has compiled a wide assortment of plants, shrubbery, and lawn and garden items that will go to the highest bidder.

Included in the collection are a green wrought iron settee, bird baths, a water lily fountain, and other interesting garden decor items.

Helping to raise monies for the school, many parents and grandparents make or donate items. Great-grandfather Ray Hargraves of student Jerred Hall handcrafted a finely-detailed jewelry box with lined interior sections. The box is made from five different woods: figured maple, black walnut, cherry, bloodwood, and capatherian elm.

For the farmer-at-heart are farm-related antiques and collectibles such as a John Deere tractor lamp, pedal tractor and wagon, and Winross trucks.

In addition to typical auction wares, items include, a marble top plant stand, tiffany lamps, cast iron door stops, antique wicker doll stroller, reproduction Depression glass, tea sets, collector doll, hay wagon, lighted corner cupboard, pottery by Steven dePerrot, Keaton, Westerwald, and Redwood Ranch.

Weekend festivities begin Friday, April 26, at 3 p.m., with chicken barbecue dinners available for take out or eating at tables set up in the school's gymnasium. An assortment of baked goods including the school's famous strawberry pies will be available for purchase. A children's auction will begin at 7 p.m., with class projects auctioned at 7:30 p.m. Winross trucks will be sold at 8 p.m.

A country breakfast, served from 7 p.m. - 10 a.m. will start off Saturday. The auction begins at 9 a.m. Times set apart to auction special items are planned as follows:

- 10:45 a.m. Gift certificates. Included at dinner for 12 at Kramer Mill, comprehensive full orthodontic treatment package, and many food, entertainment, and service certificates from area businesses.
- 11:45 a.m. Art auction. A collection of original, limited, and open edition prints from artists: Arlene Fisher, Andy Smith, Debra Smith, Thomas Hermansader, Jean Ginder, Dan Christ, P. Buckley Moss, Erma Wenger, Julia Swartz, Richard Bollinger, and Walter Parchorke. Also sold at this time will be Cat's Meow items featuring Manheim memorabilia.
- 12:30 p.m. Special items.
- 1 p.m. Quilts 24 — in a wide variety of popular patterns and colors.

An abundance of homemade food, baked goods, and on-site ready-to-eat items will be available throughout the day.

MCDS is located on Route 72, one mile north of Manheim. Look for the big tents. For more information, call (717) 665-4300.

In addition to typical auction items, MCDS's annual benefit sale grows with garden items, bedding plants, and shrubbery. Showing off an assortment of items are MCDS students, Jerred Hall and Molly Groff. Jerred holds a unique jewelry box that his great-grandfather Ray Hargraves prepared for the auction. The box features inlay woods of five varieties: figured maple, black walnut, cherry, bloodwood, and capatherian elm.

Mobile Mammography Unit Offers Exams In Bareville

BAREVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The mobile mammography unit from the Lancaster General Health Campus (LGH) will be at the Bareville Fire Hall on Friday, May 10 from 2 p.m.-7 p.m.

The mammography exam will be done in a private room by a certified mammography technologist. Films will be transported to the LGH Health Campus to be developed and read by a radiologist. Reports will be sent to the patient's private physician and a summary will be sent to the patient.

The approximate cost of this study is about $125. All billing will be handled by the Lancaster Health Alliance. They will bill insurance companies if information is provided. Contact the billing office at the campus with any questions at (717) 290-4259.

If you have no insurance and need financial help, you may be eligible for assistance. Call the local American Cancer Society and ask about the Imaging for Life Program to obtain financial assistance. That phone number is (717) 397-3744.

If you need financial help for this study, you will need to arrange it before the day of the study. There is no need to make an appointment. The study takes about 10 minutes, but you may need to wait if people are ahead of you.

If you are a woman age 40 or over, the ACS recommends a yearly mammography. Women with a family history of breast cancer may need a mammography before age 40 and should check with their physician to see if this study is recommended at this time.

Do not use powder or deodorant under the arms until after the study as it effects the films. If you refrain from caffeine use several days before the study, it will be more comfortable for you.

Call Pat Spangler with any questions at (717) 656-6122 (daytime) or (717) 687-7434 (evening).

Helping Children Adjust To Divorce

Divorce can be very painful to adults as well as children. Both experience loss of their family unit and anxiety over the future. The level of stress encountered is tremendous for all concerned.

Many parents worry about the effects of divorce on children. Most of the research being done on that topic indicates that children can adjust fairly well, given time, understanding, and help along the way. Therefore, there are some things that parents can do to help children adjust to this big change in their lives. Dads as well as Moms can play a very important part in that transition from the marriage to the divorce arrangement.

Here are some helpful suggestions:

• Reassure your children that they are not the cause of your divorce.

Younger children, especially, may feel that their misbehavior may have been a reason for divorce. Clarify to them that this situation involves a conflict between parents and not the children.

• Reassure your children that both parents will stay in contact with them and continue to love them. Some children feel so much loss that they feel abandoned. Relieve their anxieties about the separation and assure them that the parents still intend to be there for them only in a different manner.

• Listen to your children's concerns and encourage them to express their feelings about this new change in your relationship. They may be feeling loss, grief, anger, and confusion. Make a concerted effort to communicate by listening to what they have to say.

• Keep to familiar routines such as reading to them, having a regular bedtime, and enjoying quality time with each other. Their school or day care will also provide the regular routine that they need when their lives are so irregular.

• Cooperate as much as possible with the other parent to avoid conflicts in front of the children. The children who survive divorce most successfully are those who have cooperative parents working together to make sure the children are adjusting positively to all the changes.

• Let your children be children by not imposing adult roles and responsibilities on them. Just the divorce process alone is a burden for children to bear without extra duties to shoulder along with it.

• Seek help from supportive adults, books on divorce, or counseling if needed. Other adults or children who have survived a divorce can understand the feelings and problems associated with it. Excellent books on divorce can be found in the library or bookstore. And, professional help is available from agencies within the community.

Culinary Students Enter Original Veal Recipes In Cook-Off

The Beef Council sponsored the competition to encourage aspiring chefs to create veal center-of-the-plate entrees.

Professional chefs sifted through students' original entries judging recipes based on cooking methods and availability of cuts at retail.

The judges selected Eve Freeman's Honey Dijon Glazed Veal Cutlets and Sherman Flower's Veal Roast Poelage with Mango Stuffing as contest finalists, with both students receiving $250 in prize money for their recipe.

Freeman is a first-year student at The Restaurant School at Walnut Hill College, Philadelphia; Flowers studies culinary arts at Harrisburg Area Community College. Terry Anderson, Le Cordon Bleu, Pittsburgh, received a $100 honorable mention award with his recipe, Veal Shank with Julienne Vegetables.

Freeman and Flowers traveled to the Veal Convention in Williamsport to prepare their award-winning entries. Convention participants sampled both recipes and voted for their favorite. Freeman's Honey Dijon Veal Cutlets was the crowd favorite.

Veal Culinary Competition garnered an additional $750 monetary scholarship for Freeman as the contest grand-prize winner. All entries will be printed in a consumer recipe brochure this summer and posted on the Beef Council website, www.pabeef.org.

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into...there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland/Delaware are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams, rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 45,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3 1/2-foot-by-4 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-4-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio Map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2-foot-by-3 1/2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

Professor Higbee's® Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps"
—John Pitarres, OBSERVER-DISPATCH, Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake .then 'Professor Higbee's Stream Maps' are without question the finest."
—Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman"
—Joe Gordon, TRIBUNE-DEMOCRAT, Johnstown

American Lamb Lean, Light, Tasty

Traditionally lamb has been served as an elegant entree at festive holiday meals and other important occasions. But lamb cuisine can be a great addition to all kinds of meals year round, making any meal a special event.

Here's some ideas:

- Grilled lamb is an entree guests will enjoy.
- Fajita and stir-fry recipes take on a new, delicious flavor when prepared with lamb strips.
- Tasty ground lamb burgers are quick and easy to prepare.
- An everyday dinner becomes more appealing when lamb chops are on the menu.
- Favorite casserole recipes enjoy a flavor boost when lamb is included.
- How about using lamb in popular Italian dishes like lasagna, meatballs, scaloppini, piccata or parmigiana?

Lamb is a delicious and nutritious alternative to other everyday proteins. Lamb provides many essential nutrients, including protein, iron, zinc, and many B vitamins.

HERBED GRILLED LAMB

Herb Marinade:

¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup olive oil
1¼ cup olive oil
1 teaspoon dry basil leaves
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Combine marinade ingredients and pour over lamb. Refrigerate covered 2-24 hours. Remove from marinade and grill or broil 4-inches from moderate heat 10-15 minutes. Turn occasionally and baste with remaining marinade. Serves 6.

Am. Lamb Council

GYRO-BURGER

1 pound lean ground lamb
½ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix seasonings and add lamb. Mix well and form into four patties about ¼-inch thick. Grill over moderate heat 5-6 minutes per side until medium doneness with the juices running clear. Serve on pita rounds or buns with yogurt cucumber sauce.

For yogurt cucumber sauce, combine:

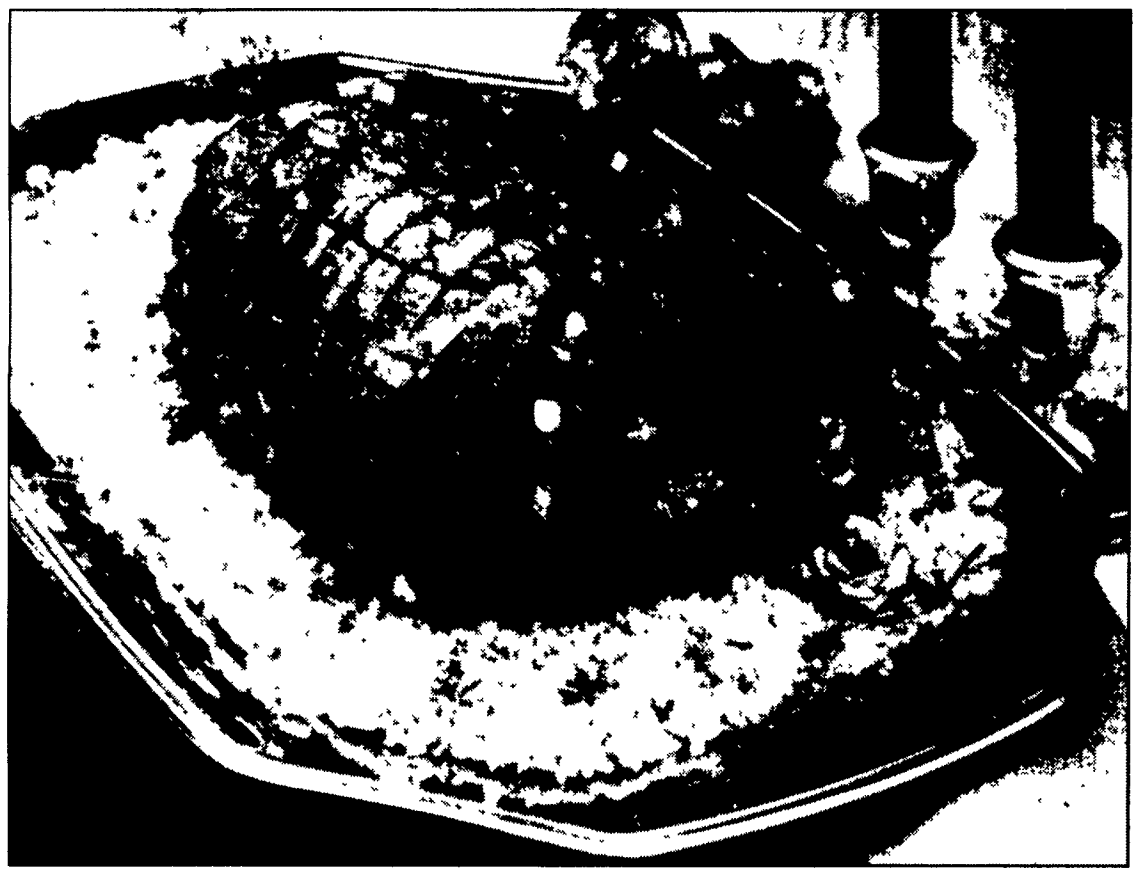
8-ounces plain non-fat yogurt
½ cup finely minced cucumber
2 sliced green onions
¼ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon garlic salt

Refrigerate. Serves 4.

BOSTON LAMB CHOPS

12 loin or rib chops
2 tablespoons fresh, chopped oregano OR 2 teaspoons dried oregano
Salt and pepper to taste
4 tablespoons olive oil
3 small zucchini, sliced
2 medium red onions, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
3 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges
¾ teaspoon dried basil OR 1 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
Linguine pasta, cooled, drained

Sprinkle lamb chops with oregano, salt and pepper. Brown chops in 3 tablespoons olive oil, 4-5 minutes, each side. Remove and keep hot. Heat remaining tablespoon oil. Saute zucchini, onion, and garlic until tender. Add tomatoes and basil. Cook 2 minutes more. Toss together pasta. Arrange on platter with lamb chops. Makes 6 servings.



Invite your friends and family. Serve roast lamb. The tenderness and delicate flavor of today's lamb makes it a favorite selection for gourmet feasts.

SWEET-SOUR LAMB ROAST

5-6 pounds lamb leg or shoulder roast
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons vinegar

Use a fresh or completely thawed leg or shoulder lamb roast. Trim off all excess fat, leaving a thing coating to retain juices and shape. Thoroughly mix the brown sugar, prepared mustard, and vinegar. Adjust ingredients after mixing for individual taste. Line roasting pan with heavy duty foil. Place lamb in pan, cover with marinade, and seal edges of the foil. Roast in 325 degree oven until done, allowing 30-35 minutes per pound. When done, pour off broth, and cool in the refrigerator or freezer. Remove the solidified fat. Warm the broth and pour over the roast and serve as a main dish or for sandwiches. Serves 6-8.

LAMB PATTIES

1 medium onion, sliced ¼-inch thick and separated into rings
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 medium zucchini, cut diagonally into ¼-inch slices
1 medium sweet red pepper, cut into ½-inch strips
1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
⅛ teaspoon ground pepper
1 pound ground lean lamb, shaped into 4 patties
½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese

In large frypan, saute onion rings in oil over medium heat 8-10 minutes or until soft. Add zucchini, red pepper, Italian seasoning, and black pepper. Cook over medium heat 8-10 minutes, or until crisp-tender. Meanwhile, in another frypan, cook lamb patties uncovered over medium heat 9-11 minutes, or until desired doneness; turn once. Place vegetable mixture on serving platter and top with patties. Sprinkle with cheese. Makes 4 servings.

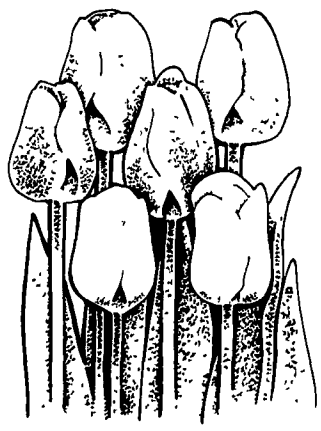
Quick and easy lamb patties offer a tasty alternative to burger grilling.

CARAWAY LAMB MEATLOAF

1 pound lean ground lamb
¾ cup rye bread crumbs, torn
½ cup canned cream-style corn
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 egg whites
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
1 teaspoon caraway seeds
¼ teaspoon black pepper

In a bowl, combine bread crumbs, corn, onion, egg whites, parsley flakes, caraway seeds, and pepper. Mix well. Stir in ground lamb until well mixed. Shape into one loaf, about 3½x7-inches. Place in loaf pan. If desired, shape into four 2x4-inch loaves. Bake the large loaf in 350 degree oven for 45-50 minutes; bake the small loaves 35-40 minutes. Remove from pan and let stand 5 minutes before slicing.

30,000 Tulips Bloom At Hershey Gardens



HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Thirty thousand tulips will come to life over the next few weeks as the beauty of spring bursts forth in an amazing display of color at Hershey Gardens.

This year, the Fan Garden will host the majority of the more than 100 cultivars of tulips intentionally planted to bloom in a succession of brilliant color from mid-April through early May, said Barbara Whitcraft, director of Hershey Gardens.

Additional varieties will also be blooming among the other springtime blossoms in the perennial garden, the beds of the northwest shrub borders, and other areas of Hershey Gardens as well.

The orangey-red blue-flamed Hermitage, the fragrant scarlet Viking, and the white-edged purple Valentine are just a small sample of the many types of tulips visitors can expect to see as they stroll the grounds of Hershey Gardens, a 23-acre botanical display garden now celebrating its 66th season.

Located at 170 Hotel Road, Hershey, Hershey Gardens is opened daily now through Oct. 31. Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. April through Sept., with evening hours until 8 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday between Memorial Day and Labor Day. October hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Admission is $6 adults, $5.50 seniors 62+ and $3 youth ages three-15. Children under three and members are admitted free.

Basic Beekeeping Course Offered

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — The Capital Area Beekeepers Association offers a short course in basic beekeeping, Saturday, May 11, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Nature Center, in Dauphin. The second day will be Saturday, May 18, from noon to 5 p.m., at the Milton Hershey Farm Conference Center and Apiary, Hershey.

This course is sponsored by the association in cooperation with the Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Hiving a package of bees and the opportunity to get hands-on experience in an operating apiary will be two of the highlights of the course. Topics will include bee-ology, diseases, parasites and pests, equipment, hive management, harvesting and marketing, byproducts of the hive, apiary location and setup, colony inspection, and colony manipulation. Table displays of beekeeping equipment, books and periodicals, and other beekeeping topics will be offered.

A random drawing will award a hived package of bees and other door prizes to beginning beekeepers. Refreshment breaks will feature homemade foods made with honey.

The course is planned, organized, and presented by the members of the association to strengthen the association's mission of fostering and preserving the science and art of beekeeping. This course will assist new beekeepers in getting started, as well as provide the latest information to current beekeepers. Many experienced beekeepers will be in attendance to assist in responding to questions and concerns.

A certificate of completion will be awarded to each new beekeeper completing the course.

Preregistration is requested before Monday, May 6. Course fee is $25 per person. Participants are encouraged to bring a bee veil and protective suit, if possible. A brown bag lunch is suggested, although, fast-food restaurants are located nearby. For a registration form, location map, and lodging information contact Sam Albright, 605 South Mountain Road, Dillsburg, PA 17019, or call (717) 432-2628.

Consuming Thoughts

With increased news media coverage about foodborne illness outbreaks linked to fresh fruits or vegetables, people often ask about the best way to wash produce in order to decrease the risk from harmful microorganisms that might be on the food.

Should I use soap or detergent to wash produce? While food scientists agree that detergent solution may remove more bacteria (and perhaps some pesticide residues, as well) from produce, they also caution that soap is not intended for this use. Once it gets onto some kinds of foods, it is more difficult to remove than it is from dishes and it can make people sick.

In fact, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) — the three federal agencies involved in food safety activities — all recommend washing fresh fruits and vegetables with just plain water and not with soap or other products.

Consumers also ask about the produce rinse product sold in stores? To date, it has not been proven that commercial rinse products which claim to remove all sorts of hazards from produce are any more beneficial than plain water.

Another consumer asked if a chlorine bleach/water solution will kill harmful microorganisms on produce? While little research has been done on the effect of weak bleach solutions on microorganisms on fresh produce, most of the work that has been done suggests that chlorine solutions are no more beneficial than plain, potable water. In addition, a chlorine solution may leave residues of chlorinated compounds on the produce, and the amounts and safety of such possible residues have not been studied. Therefore, the use of bleach solutions to clean produce is not recommended.

Other folks ask if they should use a brush to clean produce? Yes! Scrub the rinds of melons or citrus fruit with a brush under running water to rid them of soil particles and possible bacteria, viruses or parasites before cutting into them with a knife. To clean fruits like tomatoes or nectarines that have smooth, shiny skins hold them under running water and rub them all over. Remember that smooth-skinned, clean-looking fruits can also harbor harmful microorganisms.

Microorganisms would be more likely to survive in the stem scar, growth cracks, and any damaged parts of the produce, so it is important to trim away these parts before consumption.

Another questions that is frequently asked is how do you clean fruits and vegetables contaminated with parasites? Unfortunately, there is no easy answer to this questions. It is not yet known where parasites lodge in fruit is like raspberries or strawberries and whether regular washing of these porous fruits can guarantee removal of parasites.

Scientists and regulatory official continue to study this problem. Consumers should remember that while incidents of contaminated produce seem to be on the rise, the risk, or chance of contracting foodborne illness from fresh produce is still low. Washing fresh fruits and vegetables probably reduces the risk of foodborne illness; therefore all produce should be carefully washed in potable running water.

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a self-addressed stamped envelope. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Check your recipe to make sure you copy the right amounts and complete instructions for making the recipe. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, but cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address. You may also e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Notice: Several readers write that they have problems accessing this address. The common mistake is that readers are substituting an "i" for the lowercase "l (L)" needed in two places. If you are having problems reaching this address, please check to make sure you are typing a lowercase "l (L)" in both places and not a lower or uppercase "i" or "I."

QUESTION — An anonymous person e-mailed the following: "Many years ago, I spent my summers on my great aunt's farm, the Bowden & Northrup Peach farm on the main road between Danville and Bloomsburg. My great aunt, my grandmother (her sister), my mother, and my aunt Sara, for whom I am named, made the most delicious peach butter (not apple butter). No one in the family has the recipe. Since I have used (successfully) some of the recipes found in your wonderful newspaper, I thought readers might be able to help me track down the recipe."

QUESTION — Barbie Beiler would like to have a recipe for cinnamon French bread sticks that taste like those served at restaurant breakfast buffets.

QUESTION — A reader wants some diabetic bread recipes that can be made in a bread machine.

ANSWER — In response to L. Wolf, Elkridge, Md., Marie Weaver, Lititz, sent this soup recipe, which is one of her family's favorites.

Cheeseburger Soup

½ pound ground beef
¾ cup onions, chopped
1 cup carrots, chopped
¾ cup celery, chopped
4 cups potatoes, chopped
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
3 cups chicken broth
8 ounces American cheese
4 tablespoons butter
¼ cup flour
1½ cups milk
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup sour cream

Simmer vegetables in chicken broth until tender. Brown ground beef. Make a white sauce with milk, butter, and flour. Remove from heat and add sour cream. Add vegetables, meat, and cheese.

Thanks to Mable Hershey, Marietta, for sending one of her favorite soup recipes.

Creamy Ham And Cheddar Chowder

4½ cups diced potatoes
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup diced broccoli
½ diced onion
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
5 cups milk
1 cup flour
4 cups cheddar cheese, shredded
2 cups diced cooked ham
5 cups water
½ cup butter

Cook veggies and water and spices for 10 minutes or until tender. Make white sauce in heavy pan with butter, flour, and 5 cups milk. Heat over medium heat, stirring until it thickens and boils. Add cheese and lower heat to simmer.

Add ham and undrained veggies. Gently stir to mix veggies through. Bring almost to a boil, but remove from heat before boiling. Serves 12-14. Makes about 16 cups.

ANSWER — A Cumberland County reader sent in this recipe for making homemade plain yogurt, which a Lancaster County reader had requested.

Homemade Yogurt

1 gallon milk
3 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
1 cup plain yogurt
1½ cups nonfat dry milk

Heat milk to 150 degrees. Soak gelatin in ¾ cup cold water. Stir gelatin into milk. Cool milk to 120 degrees. Stir in culture and dry milk. Mix well and put into pint jars. Place on yogurt maker or set jars into pan of warm water and place into oven. Keep oven at 120-130 degrees for about 4-5 hours or whenever the yogurt begins to thicken. Cool. Fruit can be added when cold or just spoon it on top when ready to serve.

Here is another version for making homemade yogurt from C. Faus, Hegins.

Homemade Yogurt

Heat 1 quart cow or goat milk to 180-190 degrees. Cool to approximately 125 degrees. Whisk in ¼ cup yogurt starter~. Put in container, wrap in thick towel, and set in warm place for 4 hours. I place my containers in a cooler chest and set it near a heater.

~For yogurt starter, I buy plain yogurt — be sure it is labeled "active ingredients." After making the first batch, save a little yogurt from it to make your next batch. Eventually this starter does wear out and you will need to buy new starter to keep it going.

We often flavor plain yogurt with thickened fruit when we are ready to eat it. Your creativity is the limit of variations. Some that we use include rhubarb, cherry, and raspberry. Other options for flavoring is adding carob powder, jelly, mashed banana, or diced peaches.

ANSWER — Thanks to Frances Koch, Schuylkill Haven, for sending in another hint for helping to prevent soggy pie crusts: Try baking pie-crusts at 325 degrees for 10-15 minutes.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted vegetable recipes, here is one from C. Faus, Hegins, who writes that it is very good.

Green Bean Casserole

Combine and cook gently:
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter. Remove from heat. Stir in:
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon grated onion
1 cup sour cream OR plain yogurt
Fold in:
1 quart green beans, cooked

Place in baking dish and cover with ½ pound grated cheese. Sprinkle with ½ cup cornflake crumbs mixed with 1 tablespoon butter. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

ANSWER — For the person who wanted a recipe for chocolate pound cake, here is one from a celebrity that a reader sent in.

Alan Jackson's Chocolate Pound Cake With Chocolate Icing

3 cups sifted flour
½ cup unsweetened cocoa
1¼ cups milk
6 eggs
½ teaspoon baking powder
3 cups sugar
½ cup shortening
1 cup butter
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix sugar, shortening, and butter. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well. Combine dry ingredients; add alternately with milk. Add vanilla. Pour mixture into large greased and floured tube pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 1½ hours.

Chocolate Icing

½ cup butter-flavored shortening
¼ cup unsweetened cocoa
2 cups sugar
⅔ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon vanilla

Put ingredients in heavy saucepan. Bring to boil, stirring constantly. Boil 3 minutes. Ice cake while icing is warm, adding small amount of hot water if icing gets too thick.

Online Nutrient Directory Caters To Consumers

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Nutrient-conscious consumers and dietary professionals keen to make informed food choices now are tapping a new data resource available through the Agricultural Research Service (ARS).

Scientists with the ARS Nutrient Data Laboratory (NDL) in Beltsville, Md., recently launched an online directory where users can look up the amount of a specified nutrient within any one of 1,147 food items.

The consumer appeal of the new online directory is evident from the number of e-mail inquiries that have originated from the NDL home page, which has already received more than 100,000 visitors so far this year. To aid consumers, data in the new online directory are served up by commonly consumed portion sizes.

The Nutrient Database for Standard Reference, or SR14, features more than 6,000 food items and provides a foundation for most public and private nutrient databases in the United States.

To access the database, go to:
http://www.nal.usda.gov/fnic/foodcomp.

Click on "Reports by Single Nutrients" — the link is on the left about 10 lines from the top. The resulting page has a table listing nutrients such as protein, calcium, fiber, carbohydrate, cholesterol or fats. By clicking on the button by each nutrient's name, a web visitor can sort the 1,147 food items in the directory according to the content of that nutrient.

For example, a person whose doctor recommends eating more dietary fiber might look up all foods in the directory by fiber content from highest to lowest. A consumer concerned about increasing calcium intake might look up the calcium content of various foods.

The same individual might also choose to view all 1,147 food items alphabetically from A to Z, with a parallel column at right displaying each food item's corresponding calcium content.

NDL does not provide dietary advice, but instead recommends nutrition counseling by qualified professionals referred by dietetic associations, health departments or hospitals.

U.S. Beef Producers 'Deserve A Break Today'

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union (NFU) board of directors, in a letter to McDonald's Chairman and CEO Jack Greenberg last week, urged the fast food chain to reconsider its recent decision to serve imported meat.

McDonald's, a company synonymous with American beef products, is changing its policy to use imported Australian and New Zealand beef in its U.S. restaurants, citing a lack of domestic supply. The Farmers Union Board disagrees and urges McDonald's to recommit to using U.S. beef.

"The United States is the world's largest producer of beef, and as our producers struggle to survive, beef and live cattle imports continue to rise," said NFU President Dave Frederickson. "To borrow McDonald's own catch phrase, American agriculture producers 'deserve a break today'."

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service, beef imports hit a record high in 2001. Imports from Australia alone increased more than 12 percent. The surge in imports has resulted in independent producers losing an ever-increasing share of the domestic market and in profitability.

"If McDonald's chooses to use imported beef in its U.S. restaurants, we believe consumers have a right to know where the meat originates," the Frederickson said. "At the very least, McDonald's should inform customers by labeling the imported products."

The letter, which was signed by the 26 state presidents that make up the NFU board, also described the "ripple effect" the U.S. beef industry has on the rest of the nation's economy.

"Economically, the livestock industry is the largest U.S. agricultural sector," Frederickson said. "More than one million ranchers or farms are actively involved in raising cattle, and $1 in cattle sales generates approximately $5 in additional business activities."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Long ago my father had an awful time trying to teach me to drive a car. I knew nothing about changing gears or using a clutch on our 1931 Chevrolet. And, he had a quick temper, which did not help either. But when I learned, there were many places that I was expected to take my six younger sisters.

There were school activities, church activities, social events, and music lessons. Then for eight years I drove myself and others to Lancaster everyday no matter the weather conditions. I've been reminded by others that I drove through the night to Lewes, Delaware to go deep sea fishing too.

As soon as I had my driver's license, my grandfather would ask me to take him places on a Sunday afternoon. We visited distant cousins, old cemeteries, and simply drove around the county.

In the 1940s, a girlfriend and I took vacations together in her father's new Hudson car. We drove west to Illinois, north to Canada, and I remember driving through the center of Buffalo, New York. I'd certainly not want to do that today.

Recently, I've driven my husband to visit his brother in Berks County. His niece, who lives in Germany, was visiting and she made a meal for us with several German dishes. She was raised in Berks County but has spent her married life in Germany where she raised her children.

Last week I drove my husband and a friend to an American Chestnut Foundation regional meeting in York County. The meeting was conducted in Lutheran Church and was well attended. The meeting was very science oriented rather than practical. People were there from many walks of life.

I am always a bit wary of starting a big trip as I know how very quickly an accident can happen.

Sheep And Wool Day April 27 At Springton Manor Farm

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Springton Manor Farm sheep are losing their wool, and you're invited to the shearing. Sheep and Wool Day will take place Saturday, April 27 from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at Springton Manor Farm, Glenmoore. The event will be conducted rain or shine, and offers fun for the whole family.

This educational event features a sheep herding competition and demonstration by trained border collies. David Todd of Butler, Md. will conduct the sheep shearing demonstrations, while Anita Carr of West Grove, will present the art of wool spinning and weaving. Beekeeper Walter Broughton will be returning with his popular beekeeping exhibits.

Kids will enjoy visiting the newborn lambs and farm animals galore in the farm complex. See a 'Farrier' at work. Science Explorers, Leola, and the Downingtown High School 'Ecology Club' members will provide fun-filled activities and crafts at the Children's Corner.

Folks of all ages will enjoy modern and antique tractors and steam engines, as well as other Old World farming demonstrations, as they take a stroll through the historic farm surroundings.

Admission to Sheep and Wool Day is free. Springton Manor Farm is five miles west of Downingtown, off Route 322 in Guthriesville. For more information, call the park at (610) 942-2450.

Beef Council Showcases Veal

MIDDLETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — More than 3,500 western PA restaurant operators, buyers and culinary students sampled veal at the Greater Pittsburgh Restaurant & Foodservice Show, March 10-11, thanks to a partnership between the PA Beef Council and Marcho Farms Veal, Franconia, PA.

This year marked the Beef Council's return to the show, after a six-year absence, with an overwhelming response from attendees. More than one booth visitor noted that, "the veal samples are the best part of the show!"

At the PA Beef Council exhibit, Charlie Gipe, executive chef of Hersheypark, prepared two veal dishes, Veal Casino and Veal Chop Provencale. The Casino recipe featured versatile veal cutlets with a black olive, artichoke and tomato sauce.

Chef Charlie Gipe demonstrates preparing Provencale sauce as a perfect compliment to a center-of-the-plate veal chop.

Go Fly A Kite!

READING (Berks Co.) — The sky above the Berks County Youth Recreational Facility will be filled with brilliant colors and a variety of shapes and creatures, as all levels of kiters, from beginners to professionals, enjoy the high-flying fascination of kiting.

The 15th annual "Go Fly A Kite!" Day is scheduled for Sunday, May 5 from 12-5:00 p.m. Kite contest registration begins at noon. Judging begins at 2:00 p.m.

Witness exciting demonstrations by hosts, the Sky Pilots Kite Club. Joining the Sky Pilots Kite Club this year will be professionals from all over the East Coast, as this event is now sanctioned by the American Kiteflyers Association.

Children of all ages can join in the fun as they learn to make and decorate their own kite in the Sled Kite Workshop held throughout the day, and later fly their creation in the Sled Kite Contests to win a prize!

More fun awaits them through the day with giant inflatable rides, games, pony rides, clowns making balloon animals, face painting and much more! Entertainment is provided by Robin Flowers & Company.

The Reading Eagle Company is sponsoring the Newspaper Kite Division this year. (Kites must be made from a Reading Eagle Company newspaper and must be able to fly).

The Berks County Office of Aging is adding the Grandparent/Grandchild contest to the Newspaper Kite division to kick-off their celebration of "Older Americans" Month.

Due to the close proximity of the Reading Regional Airport, all kite flying is restricted to 350 feet from the ground. The Berks County Youth Recreational Facility is located in Bern Township on County Line Road across from the Berks West Vo-tech Center. This event is presented by the Berks County Parks & Recreation Department, the Berks County Office of Aging and the Sky Pilots Kite Club. Refreshments are available. For more information or directions, call (610) 374-8839 or visit the Website: www.berksparkandrec.org.

Fishing Rodeo

MERTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Children ages 4 to 15 can learn the art of fishing during the Fishing Rodeo at Hunsicker's Grove in Mertztown on Saturday, May 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

An Outdoor Expo will include displays of outdoor sports such as archery, hunting, biking, hiking and of course fishing. Children can participate in activities other than fishing throughout the day, with a kid's craft and a Fishing Pond where they can catch prizes not fish.

All children must be at least 4 years old and accompanied by an adult.

There will be a 3-fish/person limit. Each person must supply his or her own equipment. No artificial lures allowed - bait only. All PA Fishing Regulations will be enforced.

Hunsicker's Grove is located in Longswamp Township on Smith Lane. (Follow the Fleetwood/Lyons/Topton road to Lower Longswamp. Turn left at the Blue Orchid Inn onto Smith Lane. Continue to stop sign, turn right. Park Entrance is .8 mile on your right, across from the Brookvue Farms sign.)

This event is presented by the Berks County Parks & Recreation Department and the Berks County Office of Aging. For more information or directions, call (610) 374-8839 or visit the Website: www.berksparkandrec.org.

Recommendations For Preventing Accidental Poisoning

- Always store pesticides away from children's reach, in a locked cabinet or garden shed. Child proof safety latches may also be installed on cabinets and can be purchased at your local hardware store.
- Read the label first and follow the directions to the letter, including all precautions and restrictions.
- Before applying pesticides both indoors or outdoors, remove children and their toys as well as pets from the area and keep them away until the pesticide has dried or as long as is recommended by the label.
- If your use of a pesticide is interrupted, properly reclose the package and be sure to leave the container out of the reach of the children while you are gone.
- Never transfer pesticides to other containers that could be associated with food or drink.
- Never place rodent or insect baits where small children can get to them.
- Use child-resistant packaging properly by closing the container tightly after use.
- Alert others to the potential hazard of pesticides, especially care givers and grandparents.
- Teach children that "pesticides are poisons" — something they should not touch.
- Keep the number of the Poison Control Center near your telephone 1-800-222-1222.

> "The new nationwide poison control number is 1-800-222-1222. Share this number with babysitters, new moms, childcare providers, and anyone else who has contact with children."

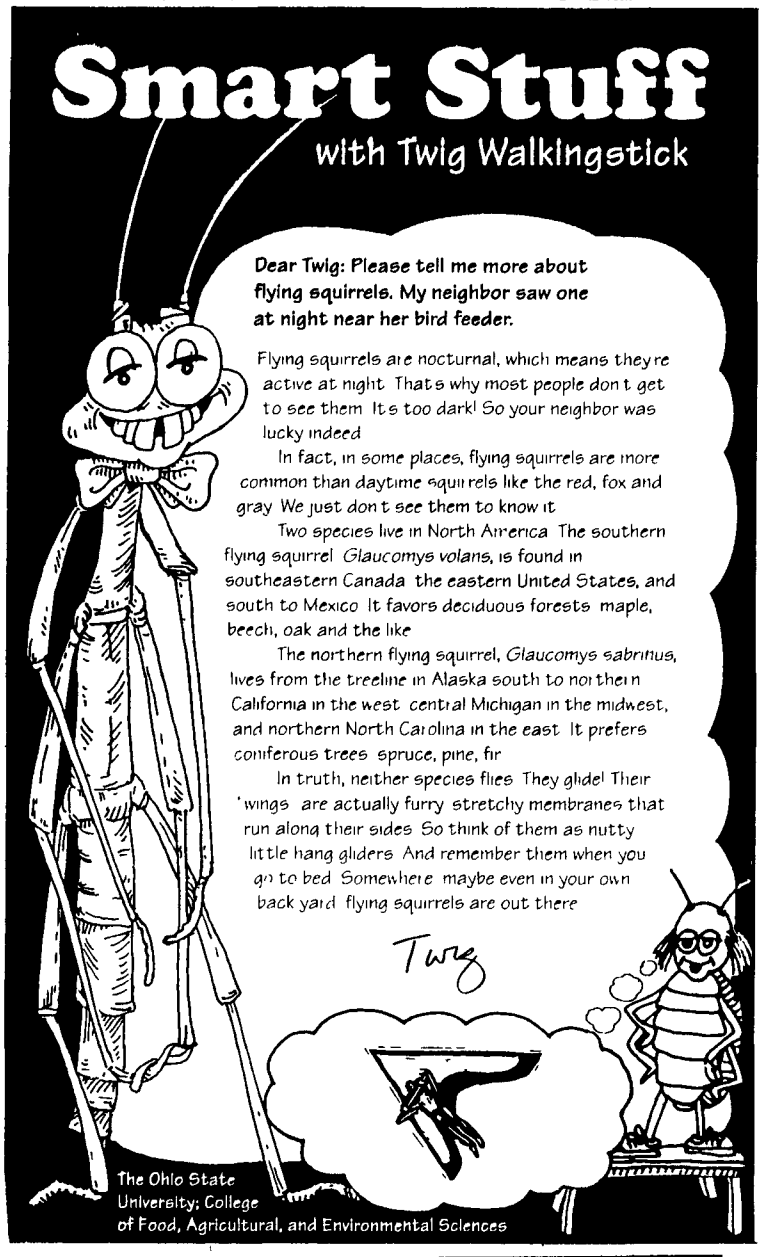
Smart Stuff with Twig Walkingstick



Dear Twig: Please tell me more about flying squirrels. My neighbor saw one at night near her bird feeder.
Flying squirrels are nocturnal, which means they're active at night. That's why most people don't get to see them. It's too dark! So your neighbor was lucky indeed.
In fact, in some places, flying squirrels are more common than daytime squirrels like the red, fox and gray. We just don't see them to know it.
Two species live in North America. The southern flying squirrel, Glaucomys volans, is found in southeastern Canada, the eastern United States, and south to Mexico. It favors deciduous forests: maple, beech, oak and the like.
The northern flying squirrel, Glaucomys sabrinus, lives from the treeline in Alaska south to northern California in the west, central Michigan in the midwest, and northern North Carolina in the east. It prefers coniferous trees: spruce, pine, fir.
In truth, neither species flies. They glide! Their "wings" are actually furry, stretchy membranes that run along their sides. So think of them as nutty little hang gliders. And remember them when you go to bed. Somewhere, maybe even in your own back yard, flying squirrels are out there.

Spider-Man Makes Milk His Hero

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The dairy industry has partnered with Spider-Man and Kellogg's to create a milk promotion of heroic proportions. Targeted toward kids and moms, this event will leverage the hype and excitement of the May release of the first-ever live-action Spider-Man movie to drive incremental white milk gallon sales during April and May.

The national promotion is sponsored by Dairy Management, Inc.™ and implemented locally by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East.

The promotional tie-in with Kellogg's cereals will shower consumers with messages to buy milk from in both the dairy and cereal aisles of the supermarket. More than 42 million specially marked Kellogg's packages, including ready-to-eat cereal, Pop Tart and Eggo, will share an offer for consumers to receive a free CD-ROM with a PC game when buying two gallons of white milk and two participating Kellogg's products. The CD-ROM includes eight hours of game play, movie footage, music and more. Consumers will also see the offer on signage in the dairy case and in the cereal aisle, and in a nationwide newspaper coupon insert, planned for April 21. Broadcast and print media will advertise the event throughout the month of April.

To drive awareness and support for this promotion, a public relations initiative is launching in April, highlighting the importance of breakfast for kids, as well as informing consumers how the dairy checkoff program helps to defend and enhance the image of dairy products and the dairy industry. The initiative also includes a consumer survey to uncover new data on how moms rank breakfast on their priority list. The story will provide busy moms with easy solutions to deliver fast nutrition to her on-the-go family.

Press releases will be distributed to trade media and consumer press kit featuring the survey information and simple breakfast recipes/menu ideas. The Kid's Club section of the www.whymilk.com Website will also highlight the promotion.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Susquehanna County 4-H Jackson Pin Thimblers

The Jackson Pin Thimblers 4-H Club in Susquehanna County conducted their reorganizational meeting April 4. New officers were elected: President Chelsea Smith; Vice President Nicole Tarbox; Secretary and News Reporter Cassandra Summers; Treasurer Katie Klim; and Game Leader Carissa Carpenter.

Leaders Rhaylene Britten and Evelyn Gerchman will conduct the sewing workshop for beginner and intermediate 4-H members on April 20 at the County Office Building from 9 a.m. to noon.

The club will be selling candy as a fund raiser. The candy will include Starburst, Jolly Ranchers, Skittles, and candy bars. Enrollment forms were handed out. They are due to the Extension office by May 1.

Delaware County Extension Annual Meeting April 26

All interested residents of Delaware County are invited to the Delaware County Cooperative Extension Association, Inc. annual meeting and dinner April 26, 6 p.m., at the Redwood Community Playhouse, Upland, Delaware County.

The annual meeting and A Celebration of 100 Years of 4-H will follow a buffet dinner with chicken or vegetarian entree.

The meeting and program (beginning at 7:30 p.m.) are free of charge and open to the public. Call the office at (610) 690-2655 for more information.

Past members of 4-H, whether from Delaware County or not, are invited to attend this celebration and share their memories. Written memories will be printed and displays are being created.

Cumberland County 4-H Meet At Nursing Home

The Cumberland County 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club met March 20 at the Cumberland County Nursing Home. Glenda Farner-Strasbaugh talked about the youth conversation at Penn State and the many opportunities 4-H provides.

The 4-H pledge and pledge to the flag was led by Jackie Gingrich. There were seven visitors, five of which want to become future puppy raisers. Roll call determined seven dogs present and a total of 21 people.

A trip to the Newville Library was finalized for April 13. An outing to Renfrew in Waynesboro has been set for May 5, leaving Claremont Nursing Home at 1 p.m. and returning approximately at 4:30 p.m. A picnic spring meeting was scheduled at the home of Pat Putz on May 19.

Lehigh County 4-H Clubs Celebrate 4-H Centennial

Lehigh County 4-H clubs and 4-H alumni have planned a Centennial Party to take place Saturday, April 27, from 6:30 p.m.-9:30 p.m. at the Jordan Lutheran Church, Orefield. Between 200 and 300 people are expected at the event.

Alumni have been asked to bring memorabilia from their 4-H club days stretching back as far as the 1930s. Displays will include photographs, project books, awards, scrapbooks, and even some projects themselves. One alumna is bringing her 4-H uniform from the first half of the century. Today there is no specific uniform. Another alumna is bringing the outfit she sewed that she wore in the state fashion revue contest.

Current clubs will have displays and scrapbooks on view so alumni can see how 4-H clubs have changed over the years.

A Commemorative Book filled with photographs of 4-H in past decades will be available for $5 at the event. Proceeds from the sale will benefit the county 4-H endowment. Books may also be purchased directly from the Lehigh County Extension office, 4184 Dorney Park Road, Allentown, PA 18104. They are $5 if picked up at the office or $7 if mailed. Checks should be made payable to the 4-H Development Fund of Lehigh County.

Right Grass Seed Needed For Drought-Damaged Lawns

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Due to the ongoing near-drought conditions, many homeowners may need to rejuvenate their lawns. If you want to do some springtime seeding, a turfgrass specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences offers some suggestions.

"The seed to use depends on whether you want to repair damaged areas or put in a new lawn," says Peter Landschoot, associate professor of turfgrass science.

To seed dead patches or thicken your lawn, Landschoot suggests using perennial ryegrass. "Perennial ryegrass germinates and establishes quickly, and can accept light traffic within eight to 10 weeks," he says. "Perennial ryegrass is a dark green, fine-textured species that's very compatible with Kentucky bluegrass. Chances are you already have some in your lawn.

"Unlike Kentucky bluegrass, which takes two weeks to germinate and a few months to establish, perennial ryegrass should mature before the hot, dry summer months, when new seedlings are susceptible to drought."

Homeowners who have a large spreading tree under which the lawn has thinned out may need to reseed with specialty grasses.

"Heavy shade and grass don't go together," Landschoot says. "But if the site receives more than three hours of direct sunlight daily, you probably can establish a fine fescue. Creeping red or Chewing's fescue are all shade-tolerant and do well provided you have well-drained soils."

For best results, plant heavily shaded areas in spring before trees leaf up. Till and rake the soil as if starting a new lawn. "The grass needs time to establish before the trees leaf up and make shade in the summer," he says.

Since most yards are not completely sunny or completely shaded, Landschoot suggests using a mix of species for new lawns. "A diverse seed mix ensures that your lawn will thrive under different conditions," he says.

Sun (with some shade). For a sunny lawn with some trees, Landschoot suggests a mix of 40 to 60 percent Kentucky bluegrass, 30 to 40 percent fine fescues and 10 to 20 percent perennial ryegrass. "The Kentucky bluegrass and ryegrass will predominate in the sunny areas and the fine fescues do well in the shade," he says.

Another good choice for a sunny lawn is tall fescue, a drought-tolerant, low-maintenance species. "Buy a good quality, 'turf type' tall fescue from a reputable dealer," he says. "Stay away from the variety Kentucky 31. Most people are dissatisfied with its large, coarse clumps.

"During a drought, tall fescue will be the only green grass in the lawn," he adds. "But plant tall fescue alone unless you want a lawn with a patchy appearance. Its light-green color and coarse texture don't blend well with the finer turf grasses, such as Kentucky bluegrass, ryegrass and fine fescue."

Shade (with some sun). For a shaded lawn with some sunny areas, Landschoot suggests a mix of 50 to 60 percent fine fescues, 30 to 40 percent Kentucky bluegrass and 10 to 20 percent perennial ryegrass.

"Don't rely on brand names, or choose a seed because the bag says it's a sun or shade mix," he says. "Read the label to find out the grass species included, the percentage of each seed and the date of the germination test. For best results, the test date should be within nine months of purchase. The germination percentage should be at least 80 percent — preferably higher.

"A lot of companies market something called Penn State Mix," he adds. "Penn State has absolutely nothing to do with these companies, the makeup of the mix or the seed. These mixes can contain just about anything — sometimes you'll find it's a good mix, but sometimes it's very poor quality."

Because new lawns are a lot of trouble and expense, Landschoot recommends that you don't scrimp on seed. "Do your homework," he says.

For information on preparing a new lawn, see the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences publications, "Turfgrass Seed and Seed Mixtures" and "Turfgrass Establishment." Single copies are available free of charge from your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

Delaware County 4-H Free Spring Fair

Delaware County 4-H invites everyone to the free Spring Fair and Open House on Saturday, May 4 from 10 a.m.-2 p.m., rain or shine. The fair is conducted at the 4-H Farm and Educational Center on the grounds of the Garrett Williamson Foundation, 395 Bishop Hollow Rd., Newtown Square. Visitors can see and touch the sheep, pigs, cattle, and poultry being raised by 4-H members. Members will have educational exhibits about the 4-H clubs and the projects they have completed during the past year. At 11 a.m., 4-H members will give presentations about their projects. Horsemanship members will be raising money by offering pony rides. Teen Council will earn money by providing hay rides to interested visitors. Bake sale items, snack bar and the farm gift shop will be available throughout the event.

The year 2002 is the 100th anniversary of 4-H in the U.S. In Pennsylvania, 4-H programs are in all counties under the supervision of Penn State Cooperative Extension. The 4-H programs provide youth development opportunities to children eight to 18 years. In the early years of 4-H, programs were targeted to farm families. In recent years, Cooperative Extension has served urban, suburban and rural youth with programs ranging from rocketry to animal care; gardening to resident camp; archery to nutrition; and horsemanship to sewing. Programs are offered through clubs operated by adult volunteers, through schools in classrooms and after school programs, through day and resident camp coordinated by 4-H staff. If you are interested in learning more about 4-H programs, come to the fair or call the office at (610) 690-2655.

North Mountain 4-H Market Goat Club

At the first meeting of the North Mountain Market 4-H Goat Club at the Dresch Farm, new officers were selected. They are Travis Dresch, president; Alex Werner, vice president; Katie Eckert, treasurer; Kate Gerber, news reporter; Chris Werner, secretary. Members of the club picked out their goats. Members signed up for a demonstration such as hoof trimming, castrating, etc., and club notebooks were distributed over rules and regulations for the club.

March 10 at the Dresch Farm, the first presentation was done by Leon and Jesse Stump on hoof trimming. Jesse reviewed on how someone should go about trimming hooves. For example, keeping the trimmer straight and not cutting so far that you would make blood.

At the meeting, March 24, there was a demonstration by Brad Bachman, and Ryan Stouffer on how to castrate a goat. After the demonstration, members of the club got to castrate their goats. Ellen Hanson handed out a brochure on the Goat Field Day at Manheim conducted by Dr. Herr. Ellen also handed out a paper to all the club members on demonstrations.

At the April 7 meeting at the Dresch Farm, there was a demonstration given by Jordan Fischer on how to worm your goat. Then, Ellen Hanson and Doug went over what to look for if your goat would get worms. Ellen also discussed the activities at the Goat Field Day. Different members of the club told a little bit about what they learned.

For community service, the club might go down to a nursing home in Myerstown to make ice cream, or put on a little goat show for the elderly. Another deed of community service is also planting trees at the Dresch Farm.

'Letting Go' Brings Devotion To Dairy Industry

Establishing friendships with people in the new community proved easy because the Mowrers immediately found a friendly church community and became active in the local Farm Bureau. Mowrer is a board member of the county Farm Bureau and had been on the county extension board for several years.

Last summer, the Mowrers expanded the barn and increased the herd size to 260 milking cows. They put curtains are on all four sides of the barn for optimum ventilation. The barn has room for 200 more head. The milking parlor was expanded from a double-7 to a double-10 with automatic takeoff. One person takes care of everything in the milking parlor.

"We saw a big difference in production when we expanded," Mowrer said. Before that, they were running 220 cows through 160 stalls. The added room decreased cow stress and the herd responded with increased production, body condition, and all-around great improvement, Mowrer said.

They also brought the dry cows back instead of using rented facilities. This allows Mowrer to keep better control over them.

"I really recommend not overcrowding," Mowrer said. "It really pushes back first-calf heifers."

The Mowrers also tore down an old bank barn and replaced it with a pole shed used for equipment and hay storage.

Five full-time employees and several part-time have designated duties. One is a herdsman, two are responsible for milking and feeding, another is a mechanic, and another oversees the field work. Mowrer works as manager and fills in wherever needed. He also takes care of weekend milking.

The Mowrers grow their own feed and process it, including high-moisture corn. They take soybeans to be roasted in a nearby mill. The majority of the feed is stored in trench silos.

Mowrer said that he is changing to more no-till practices that work better on the hilly ground.

One of the most frustrating problems is dealing with deer damage. The family has counted as many as 100 deer on their acreage at one time. They can't raise any sweet corn, and Mowrer figures deer easily destroy 20 acres of field corn.

"We live next to two private hunting clubs, and they can't control where the deer wander."

By law, Mowrer can shoot deer on his acreage if they are damaging crops, but the conflict that causes with the hunting club members isn't worth it.

"Sometimes I see the deer use their hooves to kick open the ag bags to eat high-moisture corn right out of the bag," Mowrer said.

Mowrer believes to be successful, "It is important for farmers to stay on top of things and keep up with the times. Don't fall behind."

Mowrer reads a lot to keep up with new technology.

He thinks the biggest future concern is water supply. "Farmers use water more wisely compared to other industries," Mowrer said. "Farm acreage allows water to filter through the ground and replenish the water supply, unlike water runoff from shopping centers."

Several times a month, Nathan makes the 3½ hour drive to the farm to help with the work. Nathan said, "I like college, but I miss the farm. I know that farming is what I want to do."

Mom, a full-time school teacher, helps coordinate Becky's scheduled appearances, and prepares dairy beverages and cheese cubes for her promotions.

Mom is also a community 4-H club leader with 32 kids, meeting at the Mowrers' home.

As a wife, mother, career person, 4-H leader, and a person active in church and community events, Janet said, "It's important to keep life in balance." She credits having a good family to depend upon.

Rebecca said, "This year I'm devoted to doing as much as I can for dairy promotion."

"If they want to work on the farm, that's great. But I want them to be free to be involved in extracurricular activities. They (the children) have a whole life ahead of them to work. They should have some responsibilities, but it's not fair to kids to be so tied down to the farm that they miss out on activities with friends."

Michael Mowrer

She credits Juniata Valley School District for being supportive in allowing her flexibility in fulfilling many promotional activities.

Her "shy" personality is being replaced with confidence, Becky said of the experience she has gained from hundreds of speaking appearances before both agricultural and nonfarming events.

"Being dairy princess has impacted my life in every area. I have grown and matured, and become more comfortable with myself. I know who I am. And I have grown spiritually," Becky said.

In school, Becky participates in speech club, which requires three competitions annually. This year in school competitions, Becky presented the same speech she had used in pageant competition and was named best senior high school speaker in Huntingdon County.

"Occasionally I get butterflies," Becky said, "but I enjoy speaking. I always write my own speeches and try to tailor them to the group."

At school, Becky presents announcements every morning over the school's public address system. She also goes to a county radio station every month, where she is interviewed about upcoming ag events, dairy promotions, and related news, and prepares 30-second radio spots that are broadcast several times daily.

Becky's career goal is to become a midwife or obstetrician, a dream she has held on to since third grade.

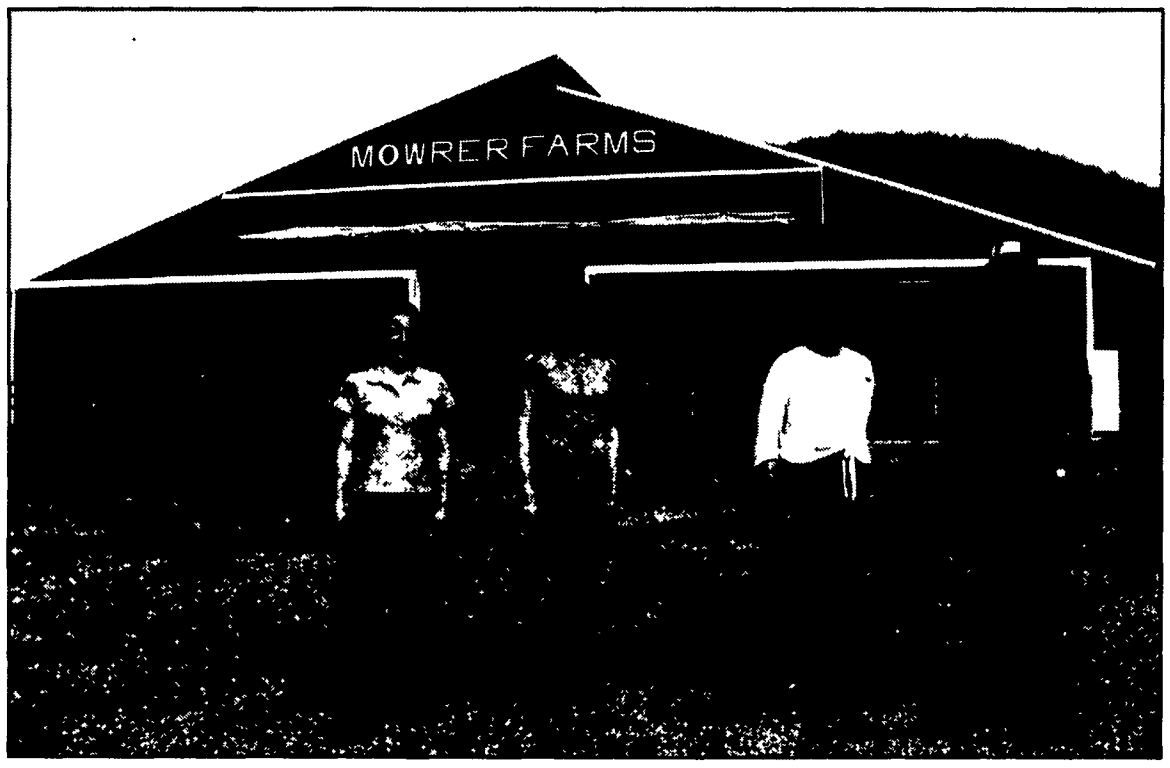
In the meantime, she enjoys telling others about the value of dairy products, the facts about lactose intolerance, and meeting awesome people.

She especially enjoyed promoting milk at events such as the Special Olympics, Easter Seals, Girl Scouts, and Cub Scouts.

One of her more unusual promotions was participating in a talent show at the Huntingdon Fall Festival. Becky presented her skit as her talent.

She said, "I did it more to get the milk message to a different audience than entering it for a talent.

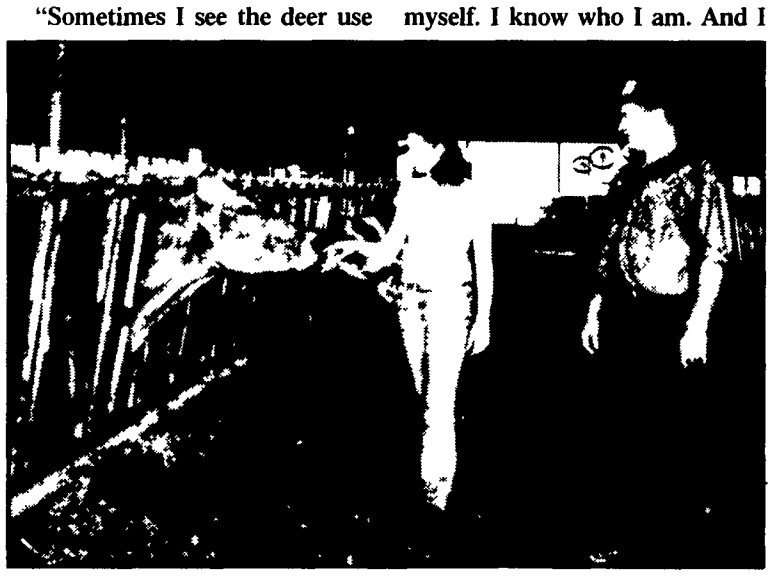
For county events, mom or dad serve as chaperones, and for state events, coordinators for the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Pageant take charge.



The Mowrers recently expanded this barn and added curtains on all four sides for optimum ventilation.

Becky and her brother share interest in raising Beagles. Now at college, Nathan misses the farm and returns whenever he can to help out.

Fulfilling the role of wife, mother, career person, 4-H leader, and someone active in church and community events, Janet said, "It's important to keep life in balance."



Becky has six of her own animals to show. Here she and her dad take a moment to pet the lone Brown Swiss, owned by Becky's sister Abby.

Becky is treasurer and acting vice president of her school's Blue Juniata FFA Chapter. She is a member of the 4-H Beef Club, the Shaver Creek Community Club, and treasurer of the county 4-H council.

"I used to participate in a lot more 4-H clubs and school clubs, but I had to give up those to concentrate on dairy promotions," Rebecca said.

She continues involvement in the schools' SADD, library club, select chorus, senior high band, and chorus. She is also active in her church youth group.

A brochure with the Mowrer family's favorite recipes using dairy products is available. Send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to PDPPS, 23515 Range Rd., Union City, PA 16438.

Here is one you're sure to enjoy during the upcoming berry season. Make sure you clip it.

Strawberry Pretzel Salad

2 cups crushed pretzels
¾ cup butter, melted
3 tablespoons sugar
8-ounces cream cheese, softened
8-ounces whipped cream
1 cup sugar
6-ounce box strawberry-flavored Jell-O
2 cups boiling water
20-ounces frozen strawberries

Mix together crushed pretzels, butter, and 3 tablespoons sugar. Press into 9x13-inch pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 8 minutes.

Combine cream cheese, whipped cream, and 1 cup sugar. Spread over pretzel crust.

Mix Jell-O with boiling water, add frozen berries. Stir until berries soften and Jell-O starts to thicken. Gently pour mixture on top of cream cheese layer. Refrigerate. Sprinkle pretzels over top before serving.

Hans Herr FFA Chapter Hosts County Competitions

CAROL STARK
Special To Lancaster Farming

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Mennonite High School (LMHS) looked as though it had a new dress code recently when many students were seen in blue coats, FFA emblems, ties, white shirts or blouses with the girls in black skirts. The look took the eye of the other students as they passed by.

FFA youth from across the county had come to LMHS for the county FFA competition, which entailed the public speaking, parliamentary procedure, and agriculture issues forum for FFA students to compete on the county level.

LMHS's Hans Herr FFA chapter has hosted the event for the last several years and included participants from Elizabethtown Area High School, Ephrata Area High School's Cloister FFA, Garden Spot High School Grassland FFA, Lampeter-Strasburg High School's FFA, Manheim FFA, and Solanco High School's FFA.

The FFA members were there to win one of the three top levels as they work their way hopefully to the state competition.

Contestants in the creed category memorized the The Creed written by E. M. Tiffany and adopted at the third National Convention of FFA. It was revised at the 38th Convention and the 63rd Convention. Here, FFA members recited the creed and had to answer questions derived from the creed from the panel of judges to see if the students understood what they were reciting. Questions included: what is the future of agriculture? and what are progressive agriculturists?

Alexandra Lauffer of Grassland FFA came in first in the creed event. Kathy Zimmerman of Cloister FFA came in second and Kayla Ballard of Elizabethtown FFA came in third.

In the conservation speech category, students could choose any topic related to conservation. Some of the choices were soil, water, and wildlife issues, and this speech was to be six to eight minutes on these issues.

First place went to Kari Martin of the Cloister FFA, second place to Josh Wenger of Grassland FFA, and third place went to Holly Hoover of the Cloister FFA.

Extemporaneous speeches were a little harder as each contestant was given a topic at the event and had 30 minutes to prepare a four- to six- minute speech.

First place went to Andrew Herr of Manor FFA, second place to John Henson of Grassland FFA, and third place to Katie Sollenberger of Cloister FFA.

In the senior prepared speech event, FFA members were free to select any topic which touched on any agricultural concern. These speeches were six to eight minutes long.

Debra Young from the Solanco FFA was first place in this event, Sheila Weaver of Grassland FFA placed second, and third place from Hans Herr FFA was Michael Hess.

The final category in the Lancaster County FFA competition was the junior prepared speech, which included freshman FFA members.

Grassland placed first with Mandy Good, Heather McCormack of Garden Spot FFA took second, and Megan Rish of Solanco FFA came in third.

PennAg Industries Plans Annual Golf Tournament

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Golfers will have a chance again this year to participate in PennAg Industries Association's annual Divots for Degrees Golf Tournament.

Since 1991, the PennAg Scholarship Fund has awarded 110 scholarships totaling $67,500 by raising money through this annual event.

Approximately 20 scholarships are awarded each year to high school seniors and college students. This year, two high school seniors will receive $1,000 scholarships with the remaining students each being awarded $500 scholarships.

The 13th annual Divots for Degrees is planned for Tuesday, May 21 at Foxchase Golf Club in Stevens beginning with a shotgun start at 1 p.m. Individual golfers can participate for $75 or a foursome can play for $275.

On the day of the event, sign-in begins at 11 a.m. and a picnic lunch will be served at noon. After the afternoon of golf, an evening reception will begin at 5:30 p.m. with dinner and prizes at 6 p.m. The event will be conducted rain or shine.

The scholarships are awarded to the children of employees working within the agricultural industry. Each scholarship is for one year, but students may reapply every year they are attending school. Numerous multiple winners have been awarded scholarships throughout their entire college career. PennAg receives over 50 applicants each year and would like to increase the number of scholarships which can be awarded. The success of the Divots for Degrees event has a bearing on how many scholarships and how much money can be awarded from year to year.

Many agricultural companies provide financial support for the event by sponsoring golf holes, greens fees and various other items. It is because of the generosity of the sponsors that all the money raised is able to go directly into the PennAg Scholarship Fund. Numerous sponsorship opportunities are available and can be obtained by calling Sam Sherk, executive vice president of PennAg Industries Association, at (717) 651-5920. Preregistration for golfers also can be made by contacting Mr. Sherk.

Chambersburg Ag Advisory Council Elects Officers

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The Chambersburg Agricultural Education Department Advisory Council recently met to discuss goals and elect officers.

Donna Hays, environmental education coordinator with the Franklin County Conservation District, was elected president. Vice president is Chris Snavely, owner of Snavely's Garden Corner, Inc. and Dwight Mickey, co-owner of Shatzer's Orchard, is secretary.

There are 12 members of the Agricultural Advisory Council which is required by State and Federal governments for schools receiving funding for agricultural students. Also, many grants available to agricultural programs require approval by the program's advisory council.

The Advisory Council also offers direction, curriculum ideas, resources and support to the local program. This council will be establishing goals and continue to be a work in progress.

Cedar Crest FFA In Speaking Contest

Members of the Cedar Crest FFA Chapter competed recently in the Lebanon County FFA public speaking contests.

In the senior prepared contest, members must give a six- to eight-minute speech about any agricultural topic. Joel Krall placed second and Sarah Krall placed first with her speech about the benefits of soy products.

Conservation public speaking requires members to give a six- to eight-minute speech about conserving our natural resources. Amber Frank placed third, Heather Hawkins placed second, and Beth Kreider placed first while speaking about the dangers of organically produced crops.

In the junior prepared contest, first year FFA members give a four- to six-minute speech about any agricultural topic. Janelle Zimmerman placed second and Jessica Rose placed first, informing the audience about the dangers of silo gases.

The creed contest has first-year members recite the FFA Creed. Mark Balmer placed third, Kevin Kreider placed second, and Heather Balsbaugh won the contest.

Members competing in the extemporaneous contest draw a topic and then have 30 minutes to prepare a four- to six-minute speech. Travis Krall placed fifth and Jeremy Balsbaugh placed second.

The final event was the parliamentary procedure contest. An officer team has 20 minutes to conduct a regular business meeting while using at least six different parliamentary motions. The Cedar Crest team consisting of Kyle Seyfert, Jeremy Balsbaugh, Heather Balsbaugh, Kevin Kreider, Tara Miller, Janelle Zimmerman, Mark Balmer, Travis Krall, Samantha Shepler, and Becky Eisenhauer placed second.

Penn Manor FFA Plans Horse Show

The Penn Manor FFA organization is making plans for the ninth annual Manor FFA Benefit Horse Show on June 2 at the Columbia Riding Club.

They are inviting individuals and businesses in the community to sponsor a class or contribute to this event.

Money earned from the horse show goes toward petting zoos, National FFA Week, the Food For America Program, Ag in the Classroom, and other programs.

For more information, contact Lyddy Becker at (717) 464-9382 (evenings); or Carole Fay at (717) 872-9520, ext. 1593, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

As a junior officer, they follow the chapter officer to better understand the position of a chapter officer.

School District Employees In Cedar Crest FFA Contest

The Cedar Crest FFA conducted their annual quiz contest to celebrate National FFA Week 2002. This contest was open to all Cornwall-Lebanon School District employees. To participate, employees had to answer 10 multiple choice questions about the FFA within one week.

Many employees tied for first and a drawing was held to determine first, second and third place prizes. Winners were: Jo Hopwood, first place; a $30 gift certificate to Hoss's Steak and Seahouse; Rita Hollinger, second place, an FFA collector's tractor; Sue Arnold, third place, an FFA T-shirt.

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Lisa Ann Deardorff writes that a hand pump has been on their farm for at least 60 years. It still pumps water; however, the handle needs to be pumped at least 10-15 times before the water comes, and the handle will not stay down. When pushed down, it pops back up. Anyone able to tell her what is wrong or how she can fix it?

QUESTION — S.E. Brown, Richland, read somewhere that someone makes baskets from old phone books. She would like to know the name and address for the person or organization that does this.

QUESTION — Sara Stoltzfus, Cochranville, is looking for someone to fix the motors in her Niagara massage recliner. Does anyone know of anyone who is able to repair them?

QUESTION — Paul Cherniski, Unionville, wants to purchase an aluminum carport from a manufacturer and assemble it himself. The carports he sees for sale cost about $1,000, but the salespeople do not manufacture them. They order them, sell them, and install them to make a profit. He wants the name and phone number of the manufacturer.

QUESTION — E.G. Rebuck, Klingerstown, wants to know where to purchase rubber fingers for a chicken plugger.

QUESTION — Krista Schaible writes that a Bucks County friend needs information on how to get rid of colonies of bats. Their barn is literally infested with thousands of bats.

QUESTION — Shirley Orfanella, 1125 Slate Hill Rd., Quarryville, is looking for an old wooden "spool" like PP&L used for wire. She would like to use it to make a table.

QUESTION — Ella Ebersol, 311 Newport Rd., Leola, PA 17540, will pay for the following used books in good condition: "Easy Growth in Reading, Looking Forward," 5th reader, Winstone by Gertrude Hildreth (can't determine where the book was printed), and "Around the Corner," a Ginn Basic Reader by Ginn and Company, copyrighted 1948-1953-1957-1961, Phillippines copyright 1949.

QUESTION — Mabel Harnish, Willow St., wants to know how to keep deer out of her garden in the summer without putting up a fence. Deer have already eaten off some tulips in her flower beds this spring. She saw deer tracks in her flower bed and on plowed ground.

QUESTION — Leon Spory, 730 Roaring Run Rd., Boswell, PA 15531-1946, wants seeds for a pole bean called Lazywife. He believes it is one of the best stringless bean he ever tried and is a good producer. He likes to plant a few seeds with the field corn, which eliminates the need for poles.

QUESTION Margaret Marshall, Rochester Mills, wants the words to the poem, "Gossip the Barber," which she remembers was in a prose and poetry high school book in the 1940s.

QUESTION — Curtis Weaver, 1396 Creek Rd., Carlisle, PA 17013, has an Enterprize 2092 sausage stuffer and would like to buy a lard strainer basket and plate to fit inside. Anyone have a used one to sell or know where he can buy it new?

QUESTION — C. Faus, Hegins, has some questions about rhubarb stalks. She writes that in the fall, before frost kills the leaves, she harvests rhubarb stalks. The leaves will not feed the roots after they are killed by frost anyway. Some people say the stalks and leaves have poison in them at the that time of the year. Is this true? If so, why don't they have poison in them when harvested before June 21?

QUESTION — M. Nolt, East Earl, wants to know where she can purchase a cast iron 12- or 14-inch pizza pan similar to a Pizza Hut pan.

QUESTION — Nine-year-old Alvin Stoltzfus collects business cards. He would like if people would send a few from their businesses or a collection of one if they no longer want it. Send to Alvin Stoltzfus, 1195 Mondale Rd., Bird-in-Hand, PA 17505.

QUESTION — Amos Kauffman, 1860 Cambridge Rd., Honeybrook, PA 19344, is looking for a used Kitchen Center Oster mixer for parts. They are no longer manufactured, and the gears are worn in his.

QUESTION — Mary Davis is looking for simple goat milk soap recipe that uses ice cubes.

QUESTION — Ronald Strawbridge, Brogue, wants to know where to purchase cast aluminum name plates, cast on one side only.

QUESTION — Fred Guth, 515 East Freehold Rd., Freehold, N.J., would like information on wooden shallow well handpumps. Likely made of cedar in the the 1800s, they are six or eight feet long in four-inch square sections, bored, threaded, and porcelain-lined, with leather gaskets between sections. Guth's parents had one in use in the late 1920s.

Power Reunion Demonstrates Antique Equipment During Plow Days

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

NEW ENTERPRISE (Bedford Co.) — A sharp wind and gray skies brought smaller then expected crowds to the second annual plow days sponsored by the Power Reunion of Northern Bedford County and held at the Reunion grounds.

About 15 participated using various types of antique tractors ranging from a 1929 Rumely Oil Pull to a 1952 John Deere.

The Rumely is owned by Charlie Smith of the Cove and he was using a plow purchased at a public auction. An old farm catalogue describes the Rumely as follows:

"A 16-horsepower single cylinder engine which is particularly efficient on the medium-sized farm. It supplies 16-horsepower in traction and 48-horsepower on the belt. The engine is rear mounted on the Canadian type open bottom high-pressure boiler. It makes an excellent general purpose engine for plowing, disking, and other field jobs. besides the belt work for threshing and the multitude of stationary engine uses about the farm. Coal, wood or straw can be used as fuel."

Barry Ayers of Martinsburg was the owner of the John Deere. Ayers said he found his plow in the woods.

"I kept looking at it thinking I could fix it up. Finally, I approached the owner, bought it, and got it in working condition."

Keeping with tradition, there were four teams of work horses participating in the plowing contest plus one team of mules.

Joe Nave was demonstrating his plowing techniques using Halflinger/Belgium cross horses. A smaller work horse, Nave says the breed is the only good thing Hitler ever did.

"He found this breed and realized it's potential with the smaller size and yet a lot of strength. The breed had all but died out. So, Hitler ordered the breed to be restored at all horse farms across Germany. It is a good horse and we can be glad Hitler did at least one good thing in his life," Nave said.

Angie and Kenny Zimmerman of Fishertown were demonstrating with their team of three Belgiums.

"They are Joe, Jack and Jake," said Kenny, "and they are a great team." He and Angie plow do all of the work on their 15-acre farm using the horses.

Ron Johnson, vice president of the Power Reunion, said it was his opinion that the three Belgiums and the Rumely were doing excellent plowing jobs.

Darin Helsel is president of the organization.

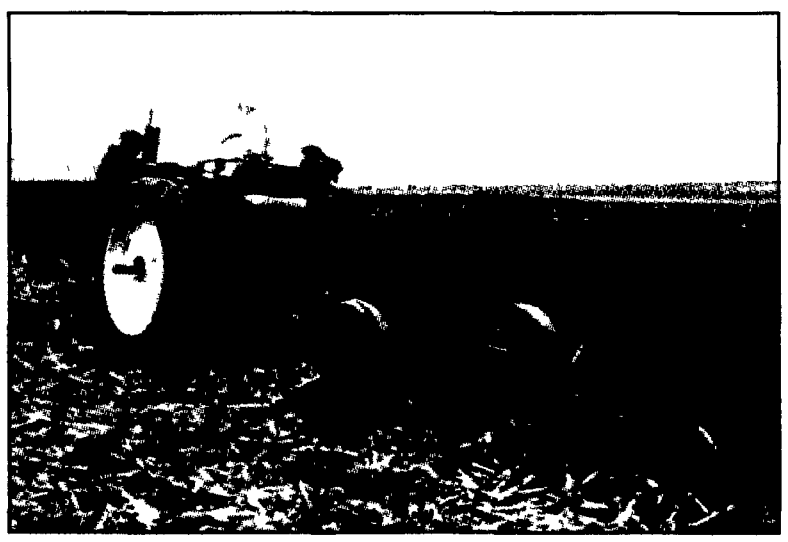
According to Joe Nave, preserving the Halflinger/Belgium crossbreed, shown at right, is the one good thing that Adolph Hitler did during his lifetime.

This fuel-efficient Rumely is owned by Charlie Smith.



The plow to this 1952 John Deere was found in a field. Barry Ayers restored the plow to enter it in plowing competitions.

Wide Variety Of Golf Collectibles

There's nothing new about the game of golf. Actually it was played as early as the 15th century.

What is new is collecting golf memorabilia. There are plenty of bargains for beginning collectors, maybe right in their own attic. Just think about when you had a garage sale, and the first thing you tagged for $10 was your late father's golf bag and clubs that he had hung on to for sentimental reasons. They had belonged to his father and dated to the 1920s. These days, collectors are looking for not only gold clubs but balls, books, and golf-related items.

Golf originated in Scotland, around the East Coast in the area of St.Andrews. In the 18th century people of all walks of life played the game. Clubs and a ball were all it took for this game, which had no specific rules at that time. That included Mary Queen of Scots.

When one of the earliest recorded wooden-headed golf club, c.1759 came to a Sotheby's auction awhile back, it was estimated to sell for $110,000/140,000.

Unlike todays clubs it had an additional lead weight, held in place by a hand-made square nail.

It also had its original ash shaft and part of the listing grip. Early 19th century golf balls had estimates of up to $10,000.

The first rules were drawn up in 1800 when the first Golfing Societies were organized.

In 1833 William 1V granted royal patronage to the Perth Golfing Society.

After that it was known as the Royal Perth Golfing Society & Country and City Club. It gave golfing the social status for the wealthy it enjoyed into the early 20th century.

From the 18th century on golf memorabilia was created. While today's trophies are usually some type of metal, full-sized golf clubs in silver were made in the 18th century, along with balls. They were engraved with tournament winners names.

CLUES: 19th century golf balls were made of a variety of materials. Some were feather-filled, others were hand-hammered gutta percha. While collectors aren't apt to find those at garage sales chances are good for items between 1930s1-1950s.

There are many varied items still available from programs to posters from special tournaments enabling collectors to specialize in a single category, such as paper items. There are ceramics from decanters to figurines. Golf clubs, even from the 1950s, wood with steel shafts, are going up in value. One price guide mentions a 1953 club, McGregor Tourney 6693W driver could sell for $115.

Autographs on programs, photos, and plaques are inexpensive. Exceptions would be a rarity like a Life magazine cover with Ben Hogan, Aug.1955, autographed. It could sell for over $300.

How about specializing in Tiger Woods memorabilia while it is plentiful? A generalized collection could include everything from golf-related games, bag towels from important tournaments and advertising items such as cookie tins, trays, etc. From an art collecting standpoint there are prints, old and new of famed golfers. A collection of famous women golfers and their memorabilia can only go up in value. An early example would be Babe Didriksen Zaharias from the 1940s.

To learn what some of these collectibles are worth there are price guides on golf balls and even golf tees. A general book would be "Antique Golf Collectibles: A Price Guide," by Chuck Furjanic, published by Krause Publications. Check the collectibles book section in your favorite bookstore.

SNYDER REAL ESTATE
PUBLIC AUCTION
Tioga County, PA
Sat., April 27, 2002 11 A.M.

1 mile south of Rte. 49 at Knoxville, PA along Boatman Road in Deerfield Twp.

Directions: Rte. 15 to Lawrenceville, PA (PA/NY state line). Take Rte 49 west to borough of Knoxville. Turn left on Water St. (near C & N Bank), continue approx 1 mile Subject property is on right.

This property being offered for sale at Public Auction is an immaculate, 3 bedroom ranch with 2 full baths (one off the master bedroom), vaulted ceiling in large living room with red brick fireplace (equipped w/gas log), modern eat-in kitchen w/gas char-broil grill. There is an adorable loft over kitchen w/access to outdoor balcony and there is a dining room with hardwood flooring This exceptional house sits on a full basement which features a 'summer kitchen' area, laundry area, a large family room with brick fireplace, walk-in cedar closet, a 'study' area and plenty more space for any purpose. There is a detached two-car garage (24x30) and a paved driveway to state road. This is a unique 'Story Book' type setting as the front lawn offers a clean (fishable) fresh water pond and the back lawn relaxes into a serene 'meditation garden' along the banks of a small brook at the rear of the property This level, FIVE (+) ACRE lot is meticulously landscaped and is home to literally HUNDREDS of assorted trees including evergreens, fruit trees, ornamentals, etc. No photograph could do justice to this charming rural home It is a 'must see to appreciate' property, so call today for an appointment to view. 570-835-4214

TERMS: This property is offered subject to owner's immediate confirmation. 10% down at close of bidding, balance due at closing in 30 days. Full terms will be read on day of auction.

OWNERS:
Mr. & Mrs. Alvin Snyder

NEW! Now Available!
Accu-puls 12V milking systems without inverter, runs strictly off of your 12V diesel batteries. Results are usually better milkout, faster milking, better rest period on milkers, less sore teat ends, less mastitis, which all helps to lower your somatic cell counts and helps produce more and better quality milk.

We specialize in cleaning vacuum lines and servicing milker systems. It has been proven over and over you can't properly clean your line with water only. Armor digest will bring lots of dirt out even after being cleaned with water once every month. Also any galvanized lines cannot be cleaned properly, all vacuum lines should be 2" PVC for proper milking performance and lower somatic cell counts. Any milking system and pulsators should be cleaned and serviced once a year, twice a year is better yet. Farmers could prevent a lot of mastitis and produce more and better quality milk if this was done, prevention is cheap compared to a cure.

Call 717-529-1226 for more information

P.S. Summertime is the best time to clean and service vacuum systems, we can do our best job and clean your line easier when your cows are out in the pasture.

The White Planters 8186 Forward-Fold planter is just one of 60 new models featuring the new 8000 Series row units that improve planting accuracy, reliability and ease of use.

White Planters Introduces New 8000 Series Planters

ATLANTA, Ga. — The 8000 Series planters from White Planters feature new row units with enhanced features to improve planting accuracy, reliability and usability for conventional, min-till and no-till farming. New features include new hoppers, seed meter design, seed-trench openers, gauge-wheel arms, closing-wheel adjustment and overall accessibility.

"Even though the basic White Planters metering system was introduced more than two decades ago," reports Joe Bozung, White Planters general marketing manager, "it is still unmatched for planting precision and accuracy over a wide range of seed sizes and planting conditions. What we've done with the new 8000 Series planters is to improve seeding consistency at the higher speeds and rougher conditions common today, and, at the same time, make the planter easier to use and service, and more reliable."

The new 8000 Series row units retain the proven White Planters positive-air metering system that uses efficient, low, air pressure to gently single out and deliver each seed, and the Edge Drop Seed Disc design that ensures precise spacing accuracy by virtually eliminating seed delay as the seed free-falls just 18 inches (460 millimeters) down the seed tube into the seed trench.

New meter features include a redesigned release tangent that improves accuracy over a wider range of speeds and with a wider variety of seed sizes from small sugar beets to large peanuts and edible beans.

For quick crop changes and cleanout, a new open-frame design provides better access to the seed discs, which can now be easily removed with just one large hand knob, eliminating the need for tools or seed hopper removal.

The standard two-bushel (70-liter) seed hoppers have been redesigned to include a sealed lid as standard equipment, along with a quick release for easy mounting and removal with no tools. An optional three-bushel (100-liter) hopper is also available.

The seed-trench opening system has been given the extra strength and reliability necessary for today's faster speeds and no-till planting. The gauge-wheel assembly has been beefed up, and the double-disc seed trench openers are 20 percent thicker. The proven walking-beam, gauge-wheel design lets them step over larger clods and trash to maintain a more constant seeding depth. The angled, rubber, closing wheels can now be easily adjusted from side-to-side, without changing the wheels' critical geometry in relation to the seed trench, for better seed-to-soil contact and faster germination. In addition, an easy-to-see and use seed-depth indicator and control allows for quick changes to planting depths from to 4 inches (13 to 102 millimeters).

The optional "Seed Smart" sensors can "learn" the size of seeds to more accurately monitor very small seeds at high population levels.

Drapers are also V-belt driven to protect against damage and overload. Draper speed is variable from 300 to 540 feet per minute on 21- to 30-ft. models and 276 to 498 feet per minute on the 35-ft. model.

Operators can choose from headers with 21-, 25-, 30- and 35-ft. cutting widths. A choice of 5-bat metal or 5-bat U II pick-up reel is available on 21- to 30-ft. models. The 5-bat metal reel is standard on the 35-ft. model.

Optional 540 or 1,000 rpm PTO input shafts are optional. Main drive belt pulleys are reversible to adapt to either 540 or 1,000 rpm input.

Goldbach Named President/CEO At First National Bank Of North East

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Jennifer D. Goldbach, senior vice president of retail lending for Lancaster-based Sterling Financial Corporation (SLFI), has been named president and chief executive officer of First National Bank of North East in Maryland, an affiliate of Sterling Financial, effective June 16.

Goldbach has been in banking since 1984. She joined Sterling Financial in 1995 as vice president and manager of mortgage lending. Brenda Bevins, who has been named mortgage lending manager for Sterling Financial, will assume those duties.

The bank's board of directors confirmed Goldbach to succeed John E. Hughes. After 15 years as president, Hughes will assume responsibilities for business development and consult on community and customer relations in his new role. He will remain on the board of First National Bank of North East.

"I grew up in Quarryville, a small community much like North East, and with the wonderful experience I've had with the team at First National Bank of North East over the past several years, I know I'm going to feel at home right away," Goldbach said. "I'm looking forward to getting to know our customers, getting involved in the community, and building on the solid foundation that John Hughes has established."

Goldbach has nearly 20 years of financial services experience. She joined Sterling Financial Corporation in 1995. After five years as vice president and manager of mortgage lending, she became senior vice president of retail lending in 2000. She is former president and a governor of the Mortgage Bankers Association of Central Pennsylvania and served as chairperson of the 2000 and 2001 Pennsylvania State Mortgage Bankers Conferences.

She graduated from Dickinson College with a degree in computer science. She is a member of the board of the American Heart Association, past president of the Child Abuse Prevention Committee of Central Pennsylvania, a former capital campaign volunteer with the Salvation Army, and a member of the Mission Outreach Committee of Salem United Church of Christ. She is a golfer and self-described "serious" Baltimore Ravens fan. She is married and has a child.

King Construction Awarded Building Of The Year

LAWRENCE, Kan. — King Construction Company of New Holland, has been recognized with the prestigious Building of the Year award from the National Frame Builders Association. The awards were presented at the 2002 Frame Building Expo in San Antonio, Texas on Feb. 14 and 15.

King was presented the award in the "Horse Barns more than 3,000-square-foot category" for the facility built for Market Street, Inc. The 33,256-square-foot facility contains an indoor arena, two barns, an office, and apartment, and a reception area. The facility is used for equestrian training. It is a life-long dream of Anne Kursinski, a four-time U.S. Olympic team member and silver medal winner.

The National Frame Builders Association Building of the Year awards are the most prestigious awards presented to builders in the post-frame construction industry. Each year several hundred entries are submitted to become one of the 14 winners.

White Oak Installs New Molasses System

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — White Oak Mills has implemented a new bulk molasses mixer and metering system at its Elizabethtown feed manufacturing facility.

The automated system, which was completed early March 2002, has been designed to provide dairy producers with the most consistent quality in bulk pelleted and textured molasses dairy feeds available in the industry.

New bulk molasses products offered by White Oak Mills include complete feeds, CENTURY III CalfFeeds, flaked top-dresses, and custom feeds (formulated by White Oak Mills or an independent nutritionist).

Meanwhile, the new 45 tons per hour molasses system and increased finished feed bin capacity increase White Oak Mills' manufacturing flexibility and overall efficiency. The bulk molasses unit complements the company's bag molasses system.

Krueger Joins Farm Credit Leasing Team

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Kevin Krueger recently joined Farm Credit Leasing (FCL) as senior vice president and general manager of the company's Commercial Business Unit, which provides cooperatives, agribusinesses, and energy and communications companies with customized lease-financing solutions.

Krueger now oversees the unit's sales, operations and marketing activities. He reports directly to FCL CEO and President Philip J. Martini.

Krueger brings more than 20 years of equipment leasing experience to his position. He was most recently chief marketing officer of Savvybridges, Inc., a software and professional services company serving the leasing industry. Prior to that, Krueger spent 18 years with Cargill Leasing/Firstar Equipment Finance in various management capacities ranging from sales to operations.

Shaver Manufacturing Co.'s newest addition to StumpBuster lineup — SC-50-H StumpBuster.

Shaver Unveils New StumpBuster For Skid Steer Loaders

GRAETTINGER, Iowa — Shaver Manufacturing unveiled the newest addition to their lineup of top-quality StumpBuster tree stump cutters. The skid steer loader mounted SC-50-H StumpBuster is specifically designed for contractors, landscapers and maintenance departments looking for a simple, efficient, highly-maneuverable solution to tree stump removal.

The new StumpBuster, powered by a minimum 25 gpm high-flow hydraulic hookup, can cut up to a 45-inch diameter stump 12-inches below ground in a single pass without repositioning the unit.

The skid steer loader-mounted cutter allows the operator to easily maneuver around buildings, storage sheds, fencerows or trees to quickly eliminate a single large-diameter stump, or cleanup a whole grove. All operations can be performed without ever leaving the loader seat.

Shaver's unique "Fast-Tach" system allows the operator to quickly and easily hookup to the unit and provides excellent visibility. Simple hydraulic controls allow for easy vertical operation to adjust for tall or short stumps.

Young Farmers Hear About Silo Safety

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — "Safety" was the theme at the recent meeting of the Gettysburg Area Young Farmer's Association.

Bob Francis from Sollenberger Silos Corp. presented information concerning "Silo Safety," including safety around bunker storage. With taller silos, and deeper-packed bunkers, farmers must increase their awareness of potential safety hazards.

With the Big Jim silo unloaders becoming more popular among dairy and livestock producers, the need to climb upright silos is greatly reduced, also decreasing the time exposed to falls from tower silos.

Jeff Stouffer from Sollenberger Silos presented a Silo Operator's Manual from the International Silo Association, for use by the chapter members.

Research Shows Deep Tillage May Be Of Value

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Deep tillage, also known as subsoiling, may be beneficial in alleviating soil compaction and improving crop yields.

A culmination of 10 years of Ohio State University research on subsoiling has shown that certain soil types benefit from deep loosening, extending the benefits of tillage over time and increasing corn and soybean yields an average of four to five percent each year.

"The main factor is the soil type. Not all soils are equally susceptible to compaction, and hence, not all soils will benefit from deep tillage," said Randall Reeder, an Ohio State Extension agricultural engineer. "Research on some soils in other states has shown no yield improvement."

Researchers found that silty clay loam, most commonly found in northwest Ohio, responded the best to deep tillage. Reeder said the soil type tends to "compact naturally" creating drainage problems that are only compounded with additional compaction from heavy machinery.

"Probably 10 percent of the corn and soybeans grown in Ohio are planted in this type of soil," said Reeder.

The researchers intentionally compacted silty clay loam during the course of their 10-year trials with a 20-ton axle load to measure the effects of subsoiling on yield increases. "We saw benefits on the silty clay loam the first year of subsoiling and the benefits continued two years after tillage in areas not trafficked," said Reeder. "The biggest surprise was that subsoiling increased yields on soil that had never been abused by heavy machinery."

Subsoiling is a practice that breaks up soil, usually 12-18 inches deep, to allow increased water movement, better aeration of the roots and access to additional minerals and nutrients for plant growth. By comparison, conventional tillage breaks up the soil six to eight inches below the surface, and in areas of heavy compaction, such a practice is not adequate.

"In some situations, fields develop a plow pan, a layer of tight soil that acts like plastic that prevents water from getting down to the roots below that six inches of soil," said Reeder. "So the surface of the soil stays wet and below that plow pan it's dry. As a result, the roots tend to tunnel sideways and when the soil surface dries out later in the season the roots dry out as well and there's damage to the crop."

Like other production practices, subsoiling has its advantages and disadvantages. One of its attractive features is the ability for a farmer to practice no-till, a popular conservation practice whereby residue from the previous year's harvest remains on the surface and the following season's crop is planted directly into it.

No-till conserves and improves water quality and stores more carbon in the soil than tilled land. Hence it improves soil quality and helps reduce carbon inputs to the atmosphere that are thought to be the cause of global warming.

A disadvantage of subsoiling is the increased horsepower that is needed to reach extreme soil depths, raising production costs for the farmer. In addition, heavier machinery just recompacts the soil in areas that are not traffic-controlled, negating the long-term benefits of tillage.

"This is a situation where subsoiling would benefit the farmer more if controlled traffic was practiced," said Reeder. Controlled traffic involves keeping all farming equipment uniform in width, decreasing the surface area in the field that is impacted by heavily loaded tires or tracks. That could mean thousands of dollars gained from increased yields for the farmer each year.

"I don't think farmers realize how much compaction is costing them," said Reeder. Based on Ohio State research on Hoytville soil, compaction was leaving 10-15 percent yield potential in the field. For a corn crop that translates into $30,000-$45,000 lost, based on a 150 bushel-per-acre harvest at $2 per bushel for 1,000 acres.

Agway Announces 50 Percent Expansion Of Batavia Feed Mill

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — With its Batavia, N.Y. feed mill operating at capacity, Agway Feed and Nutrition is moving forward on a $750,000 expansion project that will increase the mill's capacity by 50 percent.

The expansion project includes eight additional bulk mineral bins, the installation of a Super Sac system, an automated batching system, and a new eight-ton mixing system, and an upgrade of its receiving system, said David E. Durr, the president of Agway Feed and Nutrition in his announcement.

"This expansion project is part of Agway Feed and Nutrition's continuing commitment to producing the highest quality feeds for our customers in western New York and throughout the Northeast," Durr said. It should be completed by the end of June.

The mill currently has a capacity to produce approximately 200,000 tons of animal feed per year. When the expansion project is completed, the mill's capacity will be 300,000 tons of animal feed annually.

By boosting the mill's capacity and efficiency, Durr said Agway Feed and Nutrition customers will see significant benefits. These include:

- A flexible and more cost-effective alternative to on-farm feed mixing.
- A broader selection of grains and byproducts that are available in the marketplace.
- An increase in the efficiency of the feed manufacturing process by simplifying the mechanical requirements.

Sterling Financial Chooses Scovill For CFO

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Sterling Financial Corporation (SLFI) has announced the appointment of J. Bradley Scovil as chief financial officer, effective March 1.

Scovil has been president and chief executive officer of the Bank of Hanover, an affiliate of Sterling Financial, since 1994. He will remain as CEO of the Bank of Hanover until May 1, when Chad M. Clabaugh assumes the post. After that, Scovil will also become a vice president of the bank.

As CFO at Sterling Financial, Scovil will be responsible for developing long-term financial plans for the company and will partner with Sterling Financial's new president and incoming CEO, J. Roger Moyer Jr. "I look forward to working closely with Roger and the rest of the Sterling executive team in shaping a successful future for Sterling Financial Corporation," Scovil said.

A 21-year veteran of the banking industry, Scovill has been with the Bank of Hanover since 1991. He serves on the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association and is former vice chairman of its legislative and regulatory advisory unit. He has been active in community affairs, having served as chairman of the Hanover Area Chamber of Commerce and the United Way of York County and serves on the executive committee and board of directors of the York County Economic Development Corporation.

Scovill is a graduate of Wyomissing Area High School and the Pennsylvania State University. He played tight end for the Nittany Lions football team from 1977 to 1980. He and his family live in Hanover.

Clabaugh has served as executive vice president of sales at the bank since 1996 and was named chief operating officer in September 2000. He will become president of the bank on March 1 and then add the duties of CEO on May 1.

Clabaugh has been with the Bank of Hanover for 21 years. "I understand the core markets we do business with," he said. "We're going to continue to be dedicated to serving those customers and deepening our relationships with them." Clabaugh serves as chair of the Greater Hanover Area Red Cross and chair of the advancement committee of the Brethren Home in New Oxford. He is a graduate of Delone Catholic High School in McSherrystown and York College. He is a York resident.

Study Of Illinois, Mississippi Rivers Confirms NCGA's Fears

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — A study sponsored by a coalition including the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) confirms what the NCGA has been saying for years — if the lock and dam system on the Upper Mississippi and Illinois Rivers is not updated, the nation's growers are looking at losing hundreds of millions of dollars in the next 20 years.

The study's author, Mike Evans, is professor of economics, department of managerial economics and decision sciences, Kellogg Graduate School of Management, Northwestern University. Other sponsors of the study include the Mississippi Area River Coalition (MARC) 2000, the Illinois Corn Growers Association and the American Soybean Association.

According to the study, the cost of transporting corn on the Mississippi River would increase an average of 17 cents per bushel. Since approximately 80 percent of corn is now exported through Gulf Coast Ports, the average increase in shipping costs for corn exports would rise 13.6 cents per bushel.

"Because of that price increase," said NCGA Production and Stewardship Action Team member Garry Niemeyer, "corn exports would drop by 68 million bushels per year, or 1.75 percent of the estimated exports of the year 2020."

In addition, the combination of lower real income, higher prices, and higher interest costs would reduce the Federal budget surplus by $1.5 billion per year in 2020.

"Basically, the findings of this report say due to the decline in exports of corn and soybeans, the trade deficit would increase by an additional $245 million in 2020," said Niemeyer, who farms near Glenarm, Ill.. "We can't wait around for that to happen. We have to make the Army Corps of Engineers realize the gravity of this situation and work on fixing this problem now."

Evans' study was commissioned to calculate the economic impact of increased congestion on the Upper Mississippi River — Illinois River waterway. A model of world corn imports, exports, and production constructed for this study was used to calculate the increase in the export price of corn at Gulf ports, the reduction in corn prices received by farmers, and the decline in U.S. corn exports and production for a given increase in Mississippi River barge freight rates for agricultural commodities.

Lower commodity prices aren't the only issue looked at in the study. "The increase in food prices caused by the higher transportation costs would reduce disposable income and employment in non-farm states by an additional 5,625 jobs," Niemeyer said. "So the total decline in employment would exceed 20,000 without even taking into account any negative impact of a reduced federal budget surplus or increased deficit."

The study goes on to say if the combination of higher consumer prices, higher interest rates, and a smaller budget surplus reduced real GDP by the same proportion as has occurred historically, employment would decline by an additional 9,375, causing a total reduction of almost 30,000 jobs.

"When you look at it that way," he said, "the loss of non-farm jobs due to higher food prices and a lower level of economic activity would actually be greater than the loss of jobs in farm states.

"This is why NCGA has been asking its members to attend the public forums concerning the rivers," concluded Niemeyer. "This issue isn't going to go away. In fact, if it's ignored, it's only going to be made worse, as we can see from the results of Evans' study. The time to do something is right now."

The study was released March 25 at a National Press Club press conference in Washington, D.C. Niemeyer also testified this morning on the importance of river infrastructure improvements before the Mississippi River Caucus on Capitol Hill.

More information about NCGA's work on this and other transportation issues is available on the NCGA web site: www.ncga.com.

New Ohio Ag Technologies Association Formed

COLUMBUS, Ohio — As the adoption of technology into agricultural and natural resource environments grows, so does the importance for farmers and industry leaders to remain abreast of issues, new developments and research advances that may impact the way they do business.

A new Ohio organization, driven by a range of individuals and industry representatives who recognize that need, has been developed to establish across-the-board relationships to share, inform and educate how agricultural technology can work to the user's favor. Known as the Ohio Agricultural Technologies Association, the organization brings together producers, consultants, agribusinesses, agri-retailers, dealers, state and federal agencies, educators and researchers to collaborate on a variety of technologies including precision agriculture, remote sensing, software, the Internet, e-businesses, GPS and GIS systems and biotechnology.

"The organization is a grassroots type of association that addresses the overall need of how technology can be applicable and economically profitable in agriculture and natural resources," said Nathan Watermeier, an Ohio State University Extension Technology program leader and the organization's advisory board member. "Technology is not changing agriculture. Agriculture itself is changing and the technologies are just a set of tools used to deal with those changes and enhance natural resource and agriculture decision-making. This is beneficial to all who use such technology in the industry."

Ohio State Extension is conducting information and discussion sessions throughout Ohio in Feb. and March to introduce the Ohio Agricultural Technologies Association to individuals and offer them the opportunity to participate in the organization.

The first session took place during the Conservation Tillage and Technology Conference in Ada, Ohio, Feb. 26.

The other sessions are scheduled for March 8 at Molly Caren Agricultural Center in London, and March 22, at the Ohio State Extension district office in Findlay, Ohio. Registration is free.

The sessions will include a presentation addressing the need for a technology association, followed by open discussions on the organization's future plans and current technology issues, specifically in the area of precision agriculture.

For more information on the Ohio Agricultural Technologies Association, contact Nathan Watermeier at (614) 688-3442, or watermeier.2@osu.edu, or visit the Website at http://agnr.osu.edu/oata.

JOHN DEERE 1560 NO-TILL DRILL

NO-TILL? NO PROBLEM.

- Here's the drill that truly outperforms the lengendary 750 Drill.
- Apply as much as 450 pounds of down-force per opener for penetrating tough no-till; turn off down-force to give openers 2 inches of float for accurate depth control in mellow conditions.
- Plain-grain seedbox capacity is boosted 25 percent... now 3 1/2 bushels per foot; boxes fill evenly, empty completely.
- Grass-seed capacity has doubled (plain-grain only).
- Available in 10-, 15-, and 20-foot widths; 7 1/2 - or 10-inch spacing.

JOHN DEERE

6 Row In Stock

- Choose from two productive models: 6Row30 and 8Row30
- Both fold to a slim 12-feet wide for hassle-free transport
- Rugged construction provides all-till planting capability
- New frame-mounted single-disk fertilizer openers are no-till tough
- Legendary MaxEmerge*Plus* row units deliver precision planting

AGCO WHITE PLANTERS

You've picked the perfect seed –

- Superior Seed Singulation
- 1 inch to 4-inch planting depth
- Improved Seed Meter Access
- Easy-to-View Seed Depth Indicator
- Quick Release Hoppers

INTRODUCING THE WHITE 8000 SERIES PLANTERS

You've done your research, prepared your field, and picked the perfect seed variety. Now plant that perfect row, with the 8000 Series planter from White With 49 models to match your needs, they're packed with features that save time and plant 4 to 31 rows of corn or soybeans with unmatched precision The 8000 Series features an improved seed meter design for outstanding accuracy with a wider variety of seed sizes And standard walking beam gauge wheels along with increased planting depth range of 1/ inch to 4 inches give superior depth control over larger surface irregularities. Select models feature "on-the-go" seed rate adjustment from your tractor cab FlexFrame designs range from 30' to 60' for an "acre-eater" performance from one end of your field to the other

It's time to plant the perfect row Stop by your White Planter Dealer today and get it right with WHITE

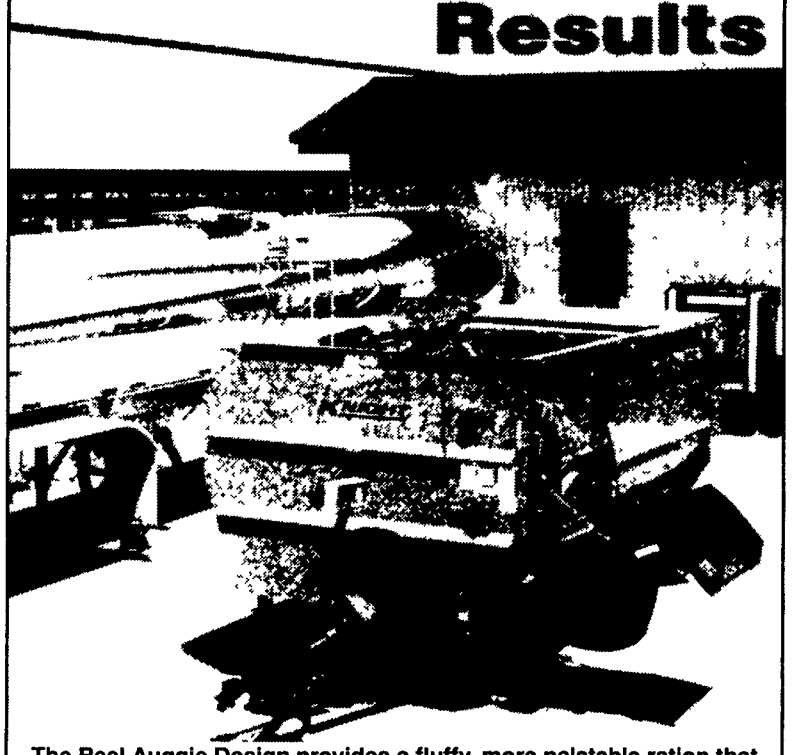
Reel Auggie = Results



The Reel Auggie Design provides a fluffy, more palatable ration that promotes feed consumption. When your cows consume more high quality feed, they'll produce more milk.

MORE MILK IN THE TANK, THAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE!

To see results, ask for a Reel demonstration from your local Knight dealer today.

1 FARM EQUIPMENT

Take a look at a Lease.

No down payment.	Keep your money working for you where you need it!
Tax deductible.	Your payment is usually 100% tax deductible
Lower payments.	Since payments are based on use during the lease, not the equipment's whole life, payments are generally lower.
Flexible terms.	Lease terms are custom fit to your situation. Length of lease — set up so you have the equipment during its prime. Payment frequency — monthly, quarterly, semiannually, or yearly, your payments match your cash flow. Purchase option — more choices! Buy the equipment, renew your lease or return it for a newer model.

NEW 3000 SERIES TELEHANDLERS

Take material handling to new heights

Lift more, higher, farther, and faster with the next generation of farm equipment. The all-new John Deere 3000 Series Telehandler gives you the ultimate in versatility and maneuverability. Reach up to 23 feet and lift up to 6,600 pounds. And, simultaneous hydraulic flow speeds up cycle times by letting you perform all functions at once.

Three steering modes wil get you in and out of cramped spaces, while the spacious cab offers unmatched visibiity. A patented attachment system lets you make fast changeovers from the cab, so you can dig, lift, scoop, sweep... anything imaginable! See us today and learn how to take your material handling to new heights.

Solid. Stable. Still John Deere.

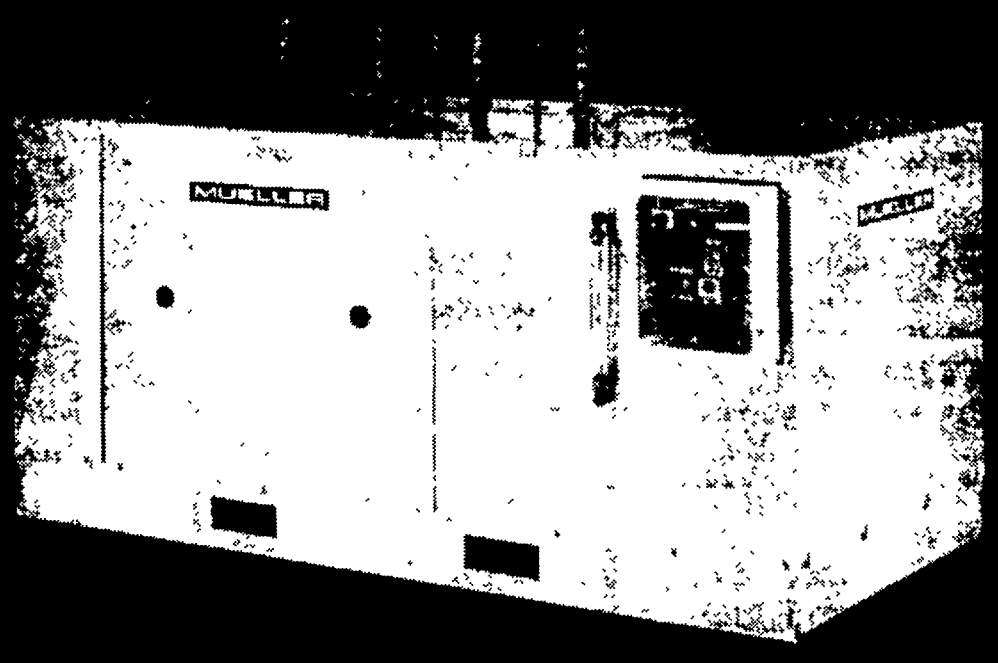
The Next Generation In Milk Cooling



It's new... it's improved... it's the next generation in chiller technology. Mueller's new and improved LS chiller is the most energy-efficient cooling system in the world. Compact in design, the LS chiller is easy to install in the smallest of spaces and it can be expanded as your cooling needs increase.

For instant cooling or additional cooling, the high-quality scroll compressor provides for lower electrical costs when cooling large quantities of milk. The LS chiller is the only chiller built specifically with the large dairy farmer in mind, and better yet, it's manufactured by Mueller.

Don't skip a generation. Call Mueller today at 1-800-MUELLER.

Studies Under Way On Organic Mulches

WOOSTER, Ohio — Organic mulches may offer hope in restoring fertility of degraded soils in urban areas.

Ohio State University researchers are studying the effects of composed yard trimmings, as well as a mixture of hardwood bark and composted manure on the health of disturbed soils in ornamental landscapes.

"Topsoil is often removed when new homes are built, and the subsoil that is exposed when digging the basement is often spread over the surface," said Dan Herms, an entomologist with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC). "Subsoil is virtually devoid of organic matter and nutrients, which makes landscaping and gardening nearly impossible without using pesticides and fertilizers."

In previous studies, Herms and his associates found that certain organic mulches stimulated the growth of beneficial microbes, increased soil fertility, boosted plant growth, and fought off insects and diseases. The researchers are now taking this research one step further by trying to determine if organic mulches can create the same cascade of effects in subsoil.

"We think certain mulches have the potential to function as organic fertilizers and pesticides in highly disturbed soils in urban landscapes," said Herms.

The researchers are focusing on mulches with a low carbon-nitrogen ratio, meaning that enough nutrients exist in the mulch to support the needs of both plants and soil microbes. The composted yard trimmings, which consist of wood chips, leaves, and grass clippings, have a carbon-nitrogen ratio of about 18:1. Hardwood bark has a carbon-nitrogen ratio of 70:1, but blending it with composted manure reduces that ratio to about 35:1.

By comparison, mulches with high carbon-nitrogen ratios, like recycled wood pallets, do not provide enough nitrogen to support microbial and plant growth. As a result, the microbes outcompete plants for nutrients, thereby reducing plant growth. Applying such mulches to soils that are already low in nutrients would severely stress plants.

The researchers are studying the effects of these mulches on the health and pest resistance of paper birch and rhododendron, common plants used in Ohio landscapes. They have just begun the second year of a five-year study.

Research Focuses On Starter Response

Shaun Heinbaugh
Department Of Crop
And Soil Sciences
Penn State

Starter fertilizer is a significant cost in many corn producers' budgets. The addition of a starter is known to be especially important during early, sometimes stressful planting conditions

Typically, a 2x2 application of fertilizer high in phosphorous at planting helps to jump-start the corn during adverse conditions. A standard application of MAP or 10-30-10 can cost anywhere from $10-$15 per acre.

Pennsylvania has an abundance of fields that are considered high in phosphorous (P), (more than 50 ppm), mostly because of a history of manure applications. At Penn State, I study starter fertilizer alternatives for corn on soils with high phosphorous soil tests with Doug Beegle and Greg Roth in the Department of Crop and Soil Sciences. In this study, we're questioning whether or not it's necessary for a starter on these high P soils at planting, or can our money be better spent on a nitrogen fertilizer such as ammonium sulfate?

In 2001, with the help of farmers and cooperators, we collected data from 19 on-farm sites throughout the state, and one in New York. Soil P tests in 2001 sites ranged from 52 ppm to 191 ppm.We also established three similar field experiments in Centre and Dauphin counties

At each of these high P sites corn was planted using three starter fertilizer treatments (no starter, 10-30-10, and ammonium sulfate). Plant samples were collected for nutrient uptake analysis and dry matter yield when the corn was between the V6 and V9 leaf stage. This was done to compare the impact of starter fertilizers on early season growth. We also measured their influence on moisture and grain yield on these high P soils.

Early Growth

In 2001 the early season growth response to starter fertilizer was quite variable across all locations. We found a significant increase in dry matter yield at the V6-V9 leaf stage at 11 of 22 locations when a starter was used. Averaged over all locations, the 10-30-10 treatment was 17 percent higher in dry matter when compared to the treatment with no starter.

The ammonium sulfate treatment also had a 23 percent increase over the no starter treatment. These results confirmed to us what we have seen in the past — despite high soil P levels, you will often notice a growth response to a starter fertilizer. We have also shown that you can get the same growth response with a N-based starter rather than one that contains P.

Grain Yield And Moisture

The grain yield response to starter fertilizers was generally smaller and less frequent than the early growth response. We found significant effects from a starter occurred at five locations, each of them having a soil P test between 52 and 75 ppm. There were no significant positive yield responses because of starter when the soil tested from 76 to 191 ppm. So far, our data seems to indicate a greater positive impact from starter fertilizer when the soil test P levels are at the low end of the high P range.

Averaged overall sites we saw a 3.7 percent yield advantage due to using a starter. We found a similar response using either the 10-30-10 or the ammonium sulfate starter. From this we conclude that the starter yield response is often small and the starter benefit can often be achieved with an alternative like ammonium sulfate.

Averaged over all locations, there was less than one percent difference in moisture between all treatments. Although a significant treatment effect was found at four locations, no conclusions can be drawn from this preliminary data. Generally starter fertilizers have resulted in slightly lower grain moistures in other studies.

Starter Formulation Study

In 2001, a starter formulation trial was conducted in conjunction with the farm operations staff at Penn State. A field was selected that tested 56 ppm P and 142 ppm K, with a pH of 6.0 that had been cropped to wheat in 2000.

Corn was planted no-till on May 2 in plots four rows wide and 700 feet long. Each treatment was replicated four times and harvested with a commercial combine in mid-November.

Early Growth

Differences in early growth were subtle and not statistically different, but there was a tendency for several treatments to have greater early season dry matter accumulation than the check. These included the pop-up treatments, the 10-30-10, and the 16-8-8. Conditions for emergence and early season growth were good at this site.

Everlast laps better.

Everlast II metal roofing and siding overlaps are stronger, tighter, and virtually invisibile. Lap edges are less subject to deforming bends during erection. Driving rain is less likely to penetrate at the laps.

Waterbeds for Cows

ALANTA® — A member of the LimPoly group of companies. Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

Attention: Swine and Poultry Producers

Announcing:

Crude Soy Oil Now Available

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:

- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems.

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:

- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:

- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program

- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40.
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

SEWAGE TREATMENT SYSTEM FOR SALE

Unused F.A.S.T (Fixed Activated Sludge Treatment) System. Biologically oxidizes organic matter to produce a clear odorless effluent which is then disinfected by an ultraviolet sterilizer This system was originally designed to be used onboard ships but is also usable on land. It is sized for approximately 125 people or 7000 gallons per day. The effluent could be directed toward a stream, or used for watering. Here is how it works.

Arrangement. This system includes two pumps, a Roots blower, UV Sterilizer, diverter valve, three float switches, control panel and remote alarm panel. All equipment except the remote alarm panel is assembled on the unit.

The tank is approx. 16' long x 8' wide x 9 ft high. Drawings and more detailed information is available. Although the system is unused and never run, bearings and seals in the motors may have to be replaced due to long storage. The original price was approx. $55,000.

Our price is $18,000.

FORAGING AROUND

'Industry, Farmer, Scientist — Working Together Toward A Sounder Grassland Program'

Berks County Grazier Maximizes Soil Returns

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

BETHEL (Berks Co.) — Eleven years ago, changes began taking place in the pastures of Papa Farm.

When Brian Mohn began his pasture-based program, "it was hard to find information on rotational grazing," he said. "I read Lancaster Farming articles and got ideas that migrated from Lancaster."

Mohn, along with his wife, Karen, and daughters Beverly, 12; Carolyn, 10; and Judy, 8, have managed the farm for 11 years for a Philadelphia businessman.

His investigation into grazing came because of a "concern for good usage of the ground,' he said. "I wanted to get the most out of this moderately productive ground.

"A lot of it was trial and error initially," he said. County agents helped in his education by conducting pasture walks and grazier discussions that helped to educate Mohn.

"In the initial days, I traveled to Lancaster for pasture information to learn about water quality projects," he said. Besides adding streambank fencing, Mohn has put in his own concrete stream crossings.

Now, "to get a profitable operation I don't see any other way you can be in the cow/calf business without being in the grazing business," he said. Because of smaller-framed animals with improved genetics — and carefully-maintained pastures that the animals do not have to be fed supplemental hay or grain, for the most part, the operation's costs have declined.

Pennsylvania Spokesman

A year ago, Mohn went to America's Forage and Grassland Council's conference in Springdale, Arkansas as Pennsylvania's spokesman. Every spokesperson gave a 12-minute presentation on what forages mean to them.

"The main audience is university researchers, USDA pasture management people, scientists, and extension agents," he said. "We were given the opportunity to teach the teachers. They wanted more information to take back to educate others.

"There were people from all over the country competing. There were very diverse speeches from graziers, hay producers, and dairy producers."

Mohn's speech addressed

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Richard Hann knows the history and workings of the Pennsylvania Forage & Grassland Council.

For 34 years, Hann has been a vital part in the organization, handling the finances and acting as chief coordinator of events, board meetings, and membership matters. He has served as secretary-treasurer since 1968. In addition to those responsibities, he assumed a new executive director post in 2000.

Hann recently reflected on PFGC's history, along with changes in agriculture and forage management that have occurred through the years.

First formed in 1960 as the Pennsylvania Grassland Council (PGC), the organization became affiliated with American Grassland Council in 1963. The name was changed to Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council in 1978 to more fully recognize its role in the state's forage/livestock industry.

Dr. John Baylor, then a Penn State Extension Forage Specialist, was the Council's first president, and Charles Wolgemuth, general manager of Milton Hershey Farms, GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Producers were recognized during the two-day 2002 Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference at the Grantville Holiday Inn in early March.

The conference is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC) and the Penn State Grazing Research and Education Center.

At a recognition banquet Wednesday evening, several producers and agri-industry representatives were recognized.

The PFGC Awards Program was established to recognize individuals in Pennsylvania who have made an outstanding contribution to some aspect of forage and grassland improvement in the state. Awards are made annually when there is a worthy candidate. Awards were presented during the Pennsylvania Forage and Grazing Conference in Grantville. Those who were recognized include:

PFGC Special Award

The Special Award is the highest recognition given by PFGC. It is presented to an individual or company that has made a major contribution directly to the PFGC as well as an outstanding contribution to Pennsylvania's forage and livestock industry and/or conservation farming. The recipients' contribution may have been in production agriculture, industry, research, extension, teaching, or other public service.

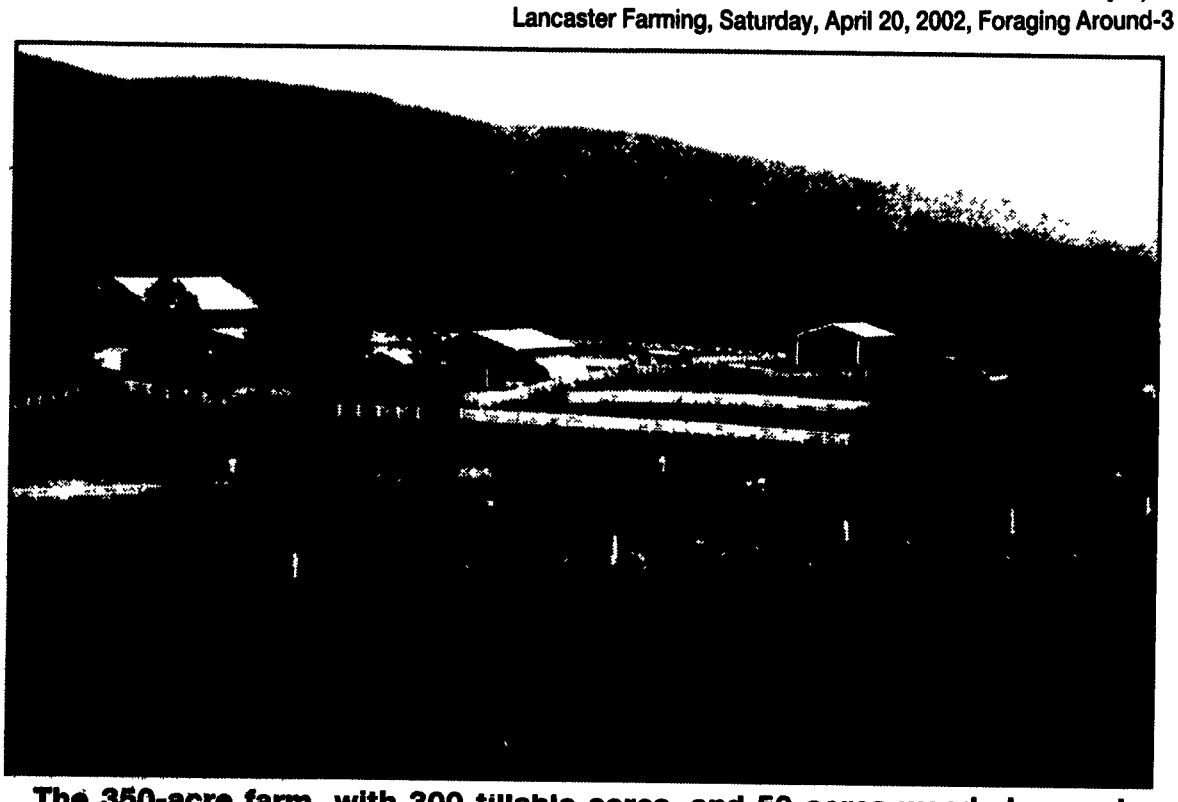
managing the summer slump for the northeastern cool season grass producers.

"I talked about needing to grow annuals to make it through the hot, dry summer," he said. Mohn was asked to go to the national conference after he gave a presentation at Pennsylvania's grazing conference.

"I would encourage anyone to take the opportunity. More than anything, it opened me up to the different situations that people from other parts of the country have to address." he said. "From the southern farmers to the Great Lake producers, everyone faces different challenges."

A former farm consultant and grain cooperative manager, Mohn approached the farm owner to ask about helping to set up a production and operation plan for the farm. The farm owner instead offered Mohn the position of manager, which he accepted after he discussed the idea with his wife because of the scope of the task.

The cattle are moved every 36 hours to prevent overgrazing.



The 350-acre farm, with 300 tillable acres, and 50 acres wooded or under buildings, includes 60 acres in intensive rotational grazing and 60 acres of late-season grazing.

"Going into farming full-time is your lifestyle, it's not just a job. It's seven days a week," he said.

The farm is a good fit for Mohn, who has an agronomy degree from Delaware Valley College. At college, Mohn met Karen, who has a degree in ornamental horticulture and landscape design. Besides working on the farm, she also does private consulting.

Karen performs not only the groundskeeping work but also takes care of the 15-acre shade tree nursery on the farm. She also helps rake, bale, and store hay — another emphasis, besides the Angus herd, at Papa Farm.

The 350-acre farm, with 300 tillable acres and 50 acres in wooded area or under buildings, includes 60 acres in intensive rotational grazing and 60 acres of late-season grazing.

The Angus cow-calf herd was once up to 87 cows but has since dropped and is now in the rebuilding stage. "We'll have 52 cows calving this spring," said Mohn, who added that approximately 60 cows make a feasible number for he and his wife to effectively manage.

In the intensive rotational grazing acres, the Mohns move the cattle every 36 hours. "They get as much as they can eat in that time of the highest quality feed," he said. "Moving them allows that section of pasture a month to regenerate."

Although the sections are generally three quarters of an acre in size, in the springtime

CropSaver™ BUFFERED ACID

THE ADVANTAGES OF CROPSAVER-TREATED HAY VS. DRY PRESERVATIVE-TREATED HAY.

CropSaver-treated hay is greener and more moist
Improved hay bale quality brings a higher sale price
Cows love it and produce more milk when they eat it
CropSaver is chemically buffered, minimizing equipment rust
Dry hay preservatives are weaker, usually labeled only up to 25% moisture, and are more difficult to apply evenly and consistently

With Mohn's modified central watering systems, the cows drink at a centrally-located water tank, which sits on used cattle slats to prevent the ground from getting muddy. "If it's too muddy, the calves can't get in to drink," he said.

Berks County Grazier

the cows and calves get three to four acres to graze in to keep the quickly-growing grass from going to head, according to Mohn.

"Normally, when I'm pulling them off after a 36-hour period, there is still 4-6 inches of grass left," he said. Preventing the grass from being grazed too close to the crown shortens the grass regrowth

Paragon BR
alfalfa

You may be asking, "What does BR mean?" BR stands for a Branched Root characteristic in alfalfa. Chemgro Seeds Paragon BR is an alfalfa with a branching root system. In tough wet conditions, Paragon BR will utilize a branching root system in poor areas. A taproot is utilized under normal conditions. BR means longer lasting stands of alfalfa in fields with less than perfect soil conditions. More of the root system stays above the water table, better securing the plant in the soil when freezing and thawing occurs. This branched rooted trait will adjust accordingly as the moisture stress intensifies. Paragon BR is a must for those uneven fields with low wet areas. Places where conventional alfalfas tend to die early, Paragon will provide you with high quality, even stand of alfalfa for a full four years. Paragon BR is a fall dormancy 3 alfalfa, with an excellent winter hardiness of 1.6. It is well adapted to the soils, conditions and diseases we face here in the Northeast.

was its first secretary-treasurer until Hann succeeded him in '68.

A native of Lititz, Hann worked on area dairy farms as a youth, and went on take a dairy science degree from Penn State in 1958.

He worked in dairy feed sales in the Lebanon and Lancaster areas until receiving an unexpected proposal from Milton Hershey School Farms.

Hann was visiting the school farm on a feed sale call when Wolgemuth made him a career-changing offer.

"Instead of talking about feed, he sold me a job," Hann said.

PFGC history has always been linked to the school. Hann was hired as superintendent of the school farm programs in 1968, inheriting the position of PFGC secretary-treasurer from Wolgemuth at the same time.

A fact many people don't know about the PFGC is that the forage field days it sponsored in the '60s and '70s were forerunner to Ag Progress Days, the huge, diverse event that takes place near State College each August.

Originally, these forage field days were conducted in various parts of the state, with a focus on corn silage, haylage, and hay. According to Hann, however, it became too costly to keep changing the location, so organizers settled on the current Centre County location at Rockspring.

In earlier years, PFGC partnered more extensively with Penn State, along with private industries, to conduct corn and alfalfa test plots, many of them at Milton Hershey Farms. Over time, PFGC has shifted its focus more toward hay and grazing management and away from corn.

Hann said that one of PFGC's "most interesting programs" was the Pennsylvania Alfalfa Grower's Program that ran from the mid '70s through the '80s in partnership with Penn State extension. Participating growers had their alfalfa analyzed and received recognition for exceptional yield and quality. An overall champion was named each year.

The PFGC maintains a vital relationship between producers, industry, and education (including research,) with the nine-member board evenly divided among the three areas. The president's position is also rotated annually between the three.

According to Hann, an increase in grazing production throughout the state is likely more than just a trend.

"It's going to be here a while," he said, noting that graziers "are interested in learning as much as they can" about these low-input, environmentally-oriented practices.

With all the challenges facing agriculture, farmers need to be involved in education as much as possible, according to Hann. While consolidation of agribusiness has brought some good to the industry, surviving family farm operations have shown "a lot of perseverance," he said. One of his goals is to "get different grazing groups working together.".

Hann and his wife, Elise, live in southeast Lebanon County, with three grown children and their families living nearby.

Although he retired in the mid-1990s from his management position with the Milton Hershey School ag program, he serves as director of special projects at the school. He is also president of the Dauphin County Land Preservation Board, and of course, continues his work with the PFGC.

According to Duane Pysher, PFGC president in 2001, Hann's work behind the scenes makes the president's job easy.

"He does all the work for you," Pysher said.

Cove Mt. Farm Pasture Walk This Week

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The Franklin County Graziers will host a spring pasture walk at Cove Mt. Farm in Mercersburg, Thursday, April 25 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Cove Mt. Farm is a seasonal, grass-based dairy now in its fifth year of operation, with a 200 cows and 200 acres of pasture managed by the Moyer Family. Participants will be able to tour the farm with experienced graziers from Franklin County and the surrounding area and participate in discussions about grass management strategies for the 2002 growing season.

In addition to the pasture walk, Dr. Steven Washburn, dairy extension specialist for livestock reproduction and systems management, will lead an afternoon discussion on the information needs of graziers and ways to help meet them. Washburn is currently exploring options for creating farmer groups that meet on a regular basis to talk about regional grazing issues.

A limited number of complimentary box lunches will be available the day of the pasture walk for those who call Cove Mt. Farm at (717) 328-4400 prior to April 23. Callers should leave a message with their name, phone number, and the number of people who will need a lunch.

Cove Mt. Farm is located in southwest Franklin County, on Rt. 456, 10 miles south of Rt. 16. The site, owned by the American Farmland Trust, is used to demonstrate the economic and environmental benefits of dairy grazing to farmers and landowners. For more information, contact Bryan Petrucci at (815) 753-9351 or bpetrucci@mindspring.com, or Kate Francis at (814) 349-9856 or katepasa@psu.edu.

❖ PRESIDENT'S CORNER ❖

John Pergosky
PFGC President

Greetings from Lehigh county.

As this spring breaks, the PFGC is into its 41st year of forage crop and pasture advancement.

As the newly elected president, I would like to first briefly introduce myself. A commercial hay and baleage producer in eastern Pennsylvania, I am conscious of the needs of the end user of forages as well as the demands of producing quality forage products. Since graduating from the Penn State College of Agriculture in 1985 I have been continuously active in various agricultural service institutions.

As an organization, we strive to continue our primary mission of advancing the interaction of each segment of the forage industry, with the hopes of achieving useful and profitable solutions to the needs of the entire industry.

We have been looking at ways to develop greater interest and membership in the PFGC. As I'm sure you are aware, the consolidation of the seed, chemical, and implement industry has resulted in fewer corporate sponsors. The overall decline in numbers of producers has also reduced our membership. This is not to say that forages in Pennsylvania are on the decline, but quite the contrary. Forage is among the largest agricultural crops produced in the state. Forage production is among the most environmentally friendly crops grown . With the help of researchers such as those at Penn State, producers are able to squeeze ever more out of a seemingly simple blade of grass.

We invite users of forage products to join our ranks and close the circle in the forage cycle. Whether you bale hay, chop silage, manage pastures, or feed dairy or beef animals, sheep, horses, or more exotic animals, we provide the link to the best and brightest ideas and research affecting your business.

The world stops for no one and even the most basic of forage crops is continually being upgraded. New production techniques enhance the quality of nutrition available in forages and pastures. This, in turn, profits your operation.

"Make hay while the sun shines!" Remember that old adage? Well, it may have been true as little as 10 years ago, but today some of the best forages harvested are made without regard to prevailing fair weather . Science and equipment have teamed together to reduce weather risk exposure and increase the quality of forage produced. I'm confident that our members know how to use this technology and how to feed it to their optimum advantage.

The board of directors of the PFGC is a dedicated group of individuals who strive to make the PFGC benefit all in the forage business Your ideas and comments are always welcome. Your participation at our events is strongly encouraged, and of course your membership is appreciated immeasurably.

May the up coming growing season offer the best nature has to offer , and may you and your family stay safe and healthy through out the year.

Best regards,
John Pergosky

PFGC Accepts New Members

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC) has announced membership rates for 2002.

The Council, with your membership and support, can accomplish much toward a better forage industry, environment, and community.

It's a big challenge and the PFGC needs your help. By becoming a member now, PFGC can serve an even more active role in support of the forage industry.

The PFGC, formed in 1960, is made up of individuals and organizations that are interested in forage and grassland-based agriculture. The PFGC is dedicated to the production and utilization of quality forage and grassland.

The PFGC works in a variety of ways to promote the industry, through publication of Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland News, through the publication of Foraging Around, and sponsoring individual workshops, training events, field days, Ag Progress Days, leadership, and other activities.

Every member receives the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland News, the Hay and Forage Grower magazine, and a PFGC membership directory.

So to become part of a growing industry, use this membership form included here to sign up now.

75X2, 75X2RR (Roundup Ready®) and 75X2CL (Clearfield®) @ 116 days RM are great performers in all types of conditions. Attractive, dark green plants, they're ideal for ear picking.

636XY and 636XCL (Clearfield®) @ 109 days RM are two of Doebler's most popular hybrids. Drought tolerance and consistent yield are why!

469XP and 469XRR (Roundup Ready®) @ 97 days RM are BIG hybrids with excellent grain and silage yields as well as early vigor. They display good late season appearance & rapid dry down.

383X @ 87 days RM has great stalks, consistently high yields, good late season intactness and does well under stress. Excellent test weight and early vigor make this a great early hybrid.

All of the above hybrid recommendations work best in moderate populations.

"If it's too close, it make take two weeks, instead of three days, to grow because it's regrowing from the crown versus from the shoots,' he said. Immediate regrowth is important to the overall health of the pasture, said Mohn.

"More vegetation will shade over and help keep soil moisture," he said. "Also, the taller you keep the grass, the cooler it is when the cows lay down."

Alfalfa and orchardgrass makes up most of the pastureland. Ladino Clover is the preferred legume, and Mohn has "started putting in more of that.' he said. "It does better in dry weather."

Rye, brome, and fescue grasses are also in the pastures.

The cattle are fenced in with high tensile and board fence perimeters and polytemporary fencing for the inside fence.

The grazing system allows the cattle to work their way in a full circle around the homestead. Moving the fence daily, a 20-minute task, allows Mohn and his wife time to check the animals' health or if they are in heat, he said. "Some observation — a daily check — is required anyway," he said.

After beginning by moving the fence every 24 hours, the Mohns switched to moving the fence in the morning one day and the evening the next. "That works with getting other chores done," he said.

Modified central watering systems are Mohn's choice for watering the cattle. The cows come back to a centrally-located water tank, which sits on used cattle slats to prevent the ground from getting muddy. "If it's too muddy, the calves can't get in to drink," he said.

In recent years Mohn has been experimenting with managing the summer slump. "I've tried grazing maize, and this year we had sorghum Sudan and millet as an annual forage crop for when the cool season grasses shut down." Mohn has been learning toward the sorghum Sudan grass, which he can "graze more often than the corn," he said.

Late season grazing is accomplished by opening more pastures to the animals. "I save areas where I've made second and third cutting, and instead of running the machine over for the fourth time for a small amount of hay, I put the cattle on it," he said.

From the time of a killing frost until snow, the cattle "graze what would have been machine harvested," he said.

Sixty acres are in the intensive rotational grazing program and 60 acres are in hay pasture/late season grazing. The remainder of the acreage is in dry hay production.

Mohn is averaging 2.2 pounds of gain per day on the young animals at weaning. "It's pretty much a closed herd," he said. "We're keeping the better heifers. We have six registered animals and are slowly getting more. Every other year we buy a good registered bull. We mostly look for low birth weight and high weaning weight. Calving ease is important," he said.

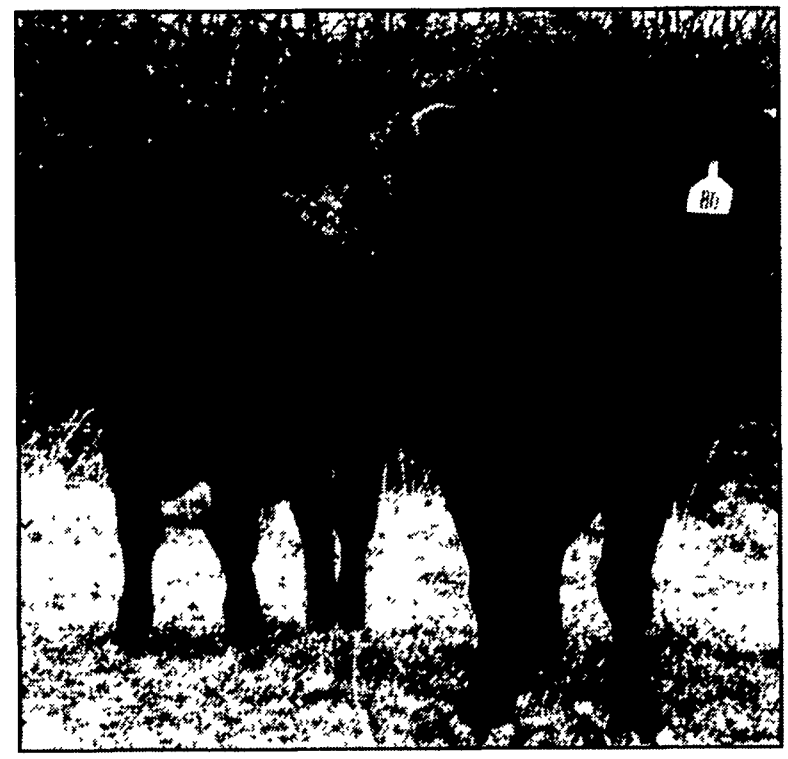
"We're striving to get a mid-frame-size animal and we always try to get more in the hindquarters of the animal," he said. The calves are held on the farm until February or March, when they are sold as 700-800-pound animals.

The grazing program the Mohns have set up is now in its fourth year without additional help on the farm, he said. "We used to have more and smaller enterprises which resulted in us needing employees," he said. "We sat down and discussed what was making us money, and what fits us."

The grazing program and a few smaller projects have remained. In addition to the cattle, they also have 180 laying hens and raise approximately 75 pasture-raised turkeys for Thanksgiving.

In the cold months the animals are pulled into two sacrifice areas near a large barn and corral that act as windblocks. They are given free choice hay, a vitamin and mineral mix, and corn during a prolonged cold period.

The Mohn's daughters are also assuming responsibilities of the farm and "enjoy the lifestyle, but wonder about some of the work and long hours," said Mohn. The girls also enjoy dance classes, soccer, and Girl Scouts — activities that were made possible, in part, by the grazing system.



Besides a moderately-framed animal, Mohn considers low birth weight and high weaning weight with breeding decisions. "Calving ease is important," he says.

"One reason I like grazing so much is that it allows for more family time," said Mohn. "We're letting the animals do the work. That's 60-80 acres we don't have to cut, bring in, store, and then feed."

He has also been able to host several pasture walks.

The wintertime, a pause in the pasture action, gives Mohn an opportunity to do maintenance on buildings, sell hay, or do cross-country skiing with his family. Mohn also enjoys trapping and presents educational programs for schools, youth groups, and trapper training schools.

2002 Alfalfa Weevil Update

Paul H. Craig
Dauphin County
Forage Agent

Entomologists from Penn State are reporting that the 2002 winter has been ideal for survival potential of adult alfalfa weevils and fall laid eggs. The unusually long fall and the extremely mild winter without heavy snow cover and relatively mild temperatures have set the stage for potential high survival rates of alfalfa weevils this spring. In addition, Del Voight, Lebanon County, is coordinating the collection of growing degree day (GDD) information across the Capital Region. Del's records indicate that as of April 4, our area is approximately 10 to 12 days ahead of normal for our area. These 2 factors combined should alert all alfalfa producers to anticipate high populations of weevils this spring and to expect them to arrive earlier than the past three years.

The alfalfa weevil starts its life cycle in the fall when many adults come out of summer dormancy, mate, and lay eggs in the stems of alfalfa shoots. These fall-laid eggs will develop over the winter and start to hatch when a 48-degree base GDD reaches 200. As these eggs are hatching, other surviving weevil adults begin to lay eggs that will hatch after seven to 14 days, depending on temperatures. A note of interest for you is that each female weevil can lay up to 1,500 eggs.

Due to the long period of hatching and development of the weevil larva, control materials can be applied too soon for the most effective treatments. If controls are applied at the time of first hatch of fall-laid eggs, the later laid eggs will hatch and develop uncontrollably. Heavy infestations can quickly develop and consume all of the leaves on the developing first cut. Growers are urged to begin to monitor alfalfa stands in early April, but control materials should not be applied too soon. As the weather patterns continue, spring-laid eggs has initiated hatching sometime around the 5th to 10th of April. Check with your local extension agent for your local conditions. Treatments will probably need to be applied, beginning close to April 15 to 17.

Other situations have resulted in poor control of weevil larva. These include: reducing the rate of insecticides; using insecticides with short residual periods; not getting sufficient coverage of the alfalfa foliage with water carriers, (minimum spray rates should be 20 to 25 gallons/acre); too low spray application pressure to drive the insecticide into the crop canopy (minimum 30 psi); proper boom height needs to be 20 to 30 inches above the crop canopy; and the use of flood type tips that do not provide good crop coverage (use flat fans).

However, the number one reason for poor controls is applying control materials too early.

Alfalfa producers are reminded that during the last two years of heavy alfalfa weevil pressure, this insect pest has caused significant injury to second crop regrowth. Growers should check harvested fields three to five days post-harvest to check for feeding injury to newly developing shoots. If regrowth shows signs of injury, a stubble treatment will be necessary.

Research Summaries

Iowa State University agronomists seeded alfalfa with and without an oat companion crop, comparing results to alfalfa seeded with and without herbicides. While oats suppressed weeds quite well, it also suppressed alfalfa during the seedling year. However, by the second year, there were no significant differences in alfalfa yield or quality.

A new technique, drilling oats in the fall and seeding alfalfa into the winter killed oat stubble, didn't work well either. The researchers concluded that establishment methods should depend on weed populations, erosion control and the farmer needs for forage during the year of establishment.

QUALITY HAY EQUIPMENT TO PRESERVE QUALITY HAY CROP

Tanco AUTOWRAP

THE WRAPPER THAT WARPS BALES OTHERS WON'T

A Complete Range of Round, Square, and Rectangular Wrappers

Patented advantages like the unique "Deep Cradle" continuous full width belt, and fully supported turntable where four polyurethane wheels provide Tanco's reowned even and balanced operation, even with overweight and misshapen bales. Quality wrapping and quality machines that has made Tanco among the World's leading manufacturers.

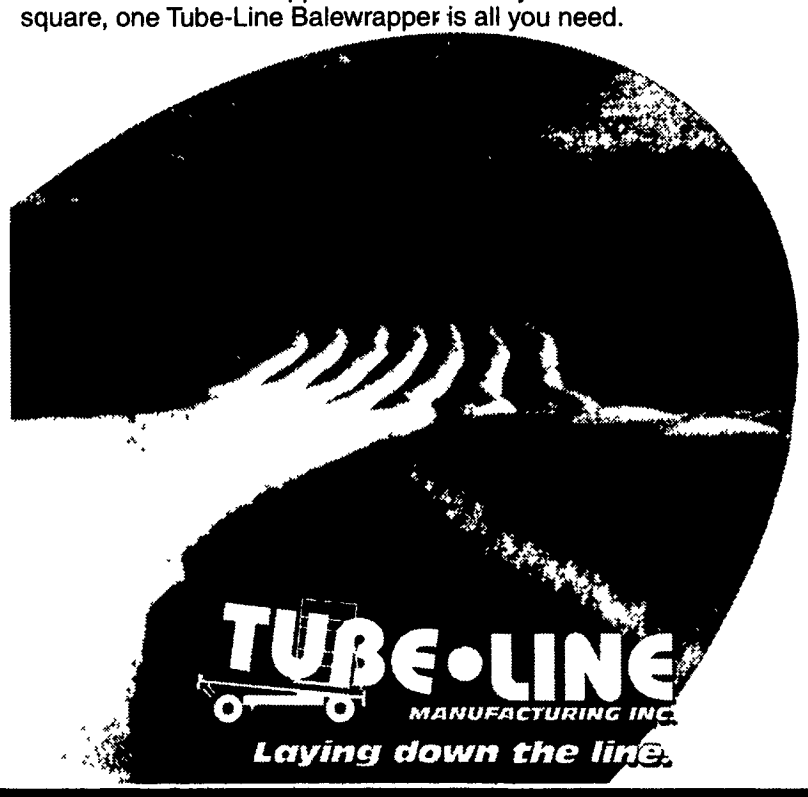
BALEWRAPPER
TL5500A TL5500S TL6500A

The Tube-Line Balewrapper gives you the power of control. Everyone knows the biggest enemies to baling hay is time and weather. The Tube-Line Balewrapper helps eliminate your dependence on the weather, saves you time and ensures you get the best quality forage.

High quality feed can now be made with a low investment in equipment. Forage is cut, wilted, baled and wrapped air tight with the Tube-Line BAlewrapper. This eliminates the 2-4 days of drying time or expensive silo equipment.

Because the Tube-Line Balewrapper wraps the bales in a continuous line, only the outside circumference of each bale is wrapped. This saves up to 40% of the film used to wrap individual bales, and saves time when unwrapping. The Tube-Line Balewrapper also gives you hydraulic control of the film overlap letting you decide how much to protect your bales.

Time is the other enemy when trying to collect forage. The Tube-Line Balewrapper will wrap up to two bales per minute. And various options are available to match the speed of wrapping to your needs. This frees up your time and allows more time for forage growth. There is a Tube-Line Balewrapper available to fit your needs. From round to square, one Tube-Line Balewrapper is all you need.



Performance

ATS Advanced Tension System
The Advanced Tension System provides a consistent 55% stretch on the film allowing the best possible seal

Hydraulic Brake Design
Tube-Line's unique hydraulic brake design allows the bales to be packed tighter together than other methods.

Film Overlap Control
Tube-line's hydraulic overlap control allows you to adjust the amount of plastic overlap, you decide just how much protection your bales need

Heavy Duty Construction
The Balewrapper is constructed overall to endure the challenges of field use, with features such as a double reinforced hoop you will be wrapping for years to come.

Treaded Hoop
The treaded hoop gives better traction to the drive wheel providing you with consistent performance

Nylon wear bars
To prolong the life of your Balewrapper, Tube-line uses nylon wear bars at critical points. This prevents pre-mature wear caused by metal to metal contact.

Safety

Shut-Off
The Balewrapper can be shut down quickly from the main panel or, with the remote control option from 100 feet away

Safety Cage Interlock
The safety cages are interlocked with the automatic cycle. When the cage is open the Tube-Line will not run. (Automatic modus only)

Easy to use

Remote Control Steering
Operation of the Tube-Line is further simplified with the addition of the remote control option eliminating the need to get off the tractor repeatedly

Automatic Operation
With the automatic feature, the Tube-Line can easily be operated by one person freeing up man power for other tasks.

Final Bale Push Off
Tube-Line has solved the hassle of the last bale in a row. The patented system allows the last bale to be removed safely and without damage

Set up & Towing
Unlike other wrapping systems, Tube-Line's adjustable tongue is located opposite the end the bales are wrapped, making moving and repositioning a simple task.

PFGC ❖ PASTURE PONDERINGS ❖

Duane E. Pysher
Grassland Management Specialist
Natural Resources
Conservation Service

In February, I appeared on the program of the "Innovative Technology Forum" sponsored by the Pennsylvania Departments of Agriculture and Environmental Protection. The title of my topic was "Pastures are Interesting and Cool." Yes, grazing was included as innovative technology. Let's just think about that for a moment and try to determine when or why did grazing become new technology.

I can recall grazing and the use of pastures from my days of growing up on a dairy farm in Northampton County. This type of grazing system was anything but innovative. The fencing system was three strands of barbed wire and the watering system was a trough at the barn or the creek. The management system was very simple. You opened a gate and let the cows out of the barnyard to walk down the lane to the pasture, which consisted of one large field. The cows were turned into the pasture when they would get grass stains on their brisket, which means the grass was rather tall, and at a hay crop stage. They would graze some of the grass but most of it was trampled and wasted because it was mature and of poor quality.

My Dad was treating the pasture as if it were a hay field, which is different than we treat pastures today if we are seeking to get the most quality from the forages.

I don't believe that I described any high technology concepts or innovations in my discussion of grazing on the Pysher farm in the 1950s and 1960s. So why would grazing be listed as innovative technology? It is primarily because of the work of a man by the name of Andr Voisin. Voisin published his work in 1959 in a book titled "Grass Productivity". Voisin took the time to observe cows grazing and to understand why they did what they did. He studied their eating habits and how the cow harvests the forage with tooth and tongue.

Voisin also looked at the forages and determined that they had physical needs that had to be met just the same as the cattle had. He concluded that forages required a rest period to replenish their energy reserves. Cattle needed to be removed from these pastures during the rest period and thus he developed his system of rational grazing which involves four basic laws. The European nations and New Zealand have taken these basic four laws and developed them into the concepts that we use today know as rotational grazing. No matter what we call it, the "Voisin Grazing Management" system is the basis of all grazing systems, with minor changes to meet local conditions.

Now you're saying: If this is technology based on 1959 principles, how can it be considered new innovative technology? Let's just think about that for a moment. What is it that makes a grazing system work besides the management of the producer? Think about the components of a system. They are the fencing system, the watering system, and all the other things that make a grazing system work. That is where all the new technologies are. We will discuss a few of these items and what makes them innovative.

The type of fencing materials on the market today make grazing a much easier and simpler process than the type of fencing I earlier described of three strands of barbed wire. Today's high tensile steel and aluminum clad wires are much easier to put up and as far as that goes they can even be taken down and moved without a great amount of difficulty. The use of step-in plastic or fiberglass posts and spools of polywire or small gauge wire makes paddock subdivision fences an easy task. They are also quite inexpensive. There are many different types and designs of temporary posts on the market and your only limitation is your supplier and which ones they have available. Types of wire are more standard and range from 12½ to 16 gauge high tensile wire being the normal types used in perimeter and sub-division fencing. The high tensile wire is generally zinc-coated or even aluminum-coated. Aluminum wire is capable of carrying at least 2½ times the electrical charge of steel wire and should often be considered in making long runs of wire. There is also a wide array of plastic fencing materials that contain stainless steel filaments that carry the electric charge. They are either in the form of braided plastic wires or tapes.

The category of fence chargers on the market today make possible the use of many of the types of fencing materials that I just described. If we were using

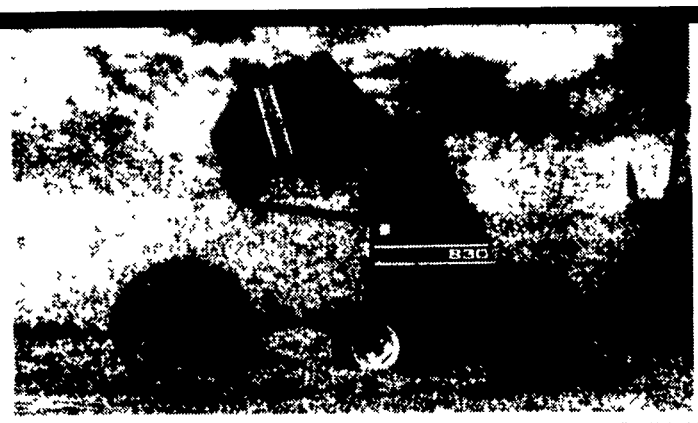
HAY TOOLS



It's Not Just For The Big Boys.

Maybe you run a few beef cattle. Or you've got a small breeding operation. Nothing big. But big enough to wish you could put up your own hay.

'Til now, you figured that was strictly for big-time operators. Well, think again.

Hesston's got a complete line of hay tools built to work with tractors no bigger than 30hp. The Model 1004 disc mower, with its low-profile cutterbar and segmented hex driveshaft, delivers fast 5-1/2' cuts, easier maintenance and less wear.

The rugged Model 5008 V-rake boasts 55" diameter wheels on tapered bearings and 40 stout teeth on every wheel, so you don't miss a single stem. And the Model 830 round baler, with low-profile pickup and windrow gathering wheels, lets you control bale size and density to build 39"-wide bales up to 54" in diameter.

many of the old-style chargers often referred to as "weed burners," we could not begin to use many of these materials as the charge would be too hot and burn through those fine stainless steel strands. The new type called low impedance, high output chargers are capable of charging many, many miles of fencing and do it consistently under varying load resistances.

Watering systems also have changed a lot over the years. Many types of portable troughs are available today as well as all types of floats, valves, plus piping to get the water to the troughs. This has added an awful lot of flexibility in providing water in every paddock to the grazing livestock. No longer do we have to rely on a stream for water. In fact when we consider the problems associated with using water from a stream to water livestock from an animal health perspective, it is not a good thing to do. Many disease organisms can be spread very easily through water and infect a herd in addition to the environmental problems associated with livestock having uncontrolled access to a stream.

So, when we analyze all the new concepts and technologies that are being used in today's grazing systems we can really say they are innovative technology. Last time, I discussed Mr. Charlie Opitz's 1,200 cow grazing operation in Wisconsin. When he was at the Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference he made a statement about what he called "grass fever." He said, "Once you catch it, it'll stay with you till you're dead." I have seen a lot of Charlie's "grass fever" and I expect to see more as I see more producers getting interested in grazing all the time.

If you would like information on any aspect of grazing or if I can help you catch "grass fever" please contact me. Give me a call at (717) 237-2221, e-mail me at duane.pysher@pa.usda.gov, or write to me at NRCS, One Credit Union Place, Suite 340, Harrisburg, PA, 17110-2993.

Until next time, happy grazing and hope to see you at some of this season's pasture walks.

Foliar Sprays For Alfalfa Poor Investment, Study Shows

Several companies are marketing products that are applied to the stubble or foliage of alfalfa after harvest. These products reportedly stimulate alfalfa growth and/or increase forage quality. Research was conducted to determine the effectiveness and economics of these products. Four commercially available products were compared with traditional soil fertilization practices.

Uniform stands of established alfalfa at three locations were divided into four replicates and soil amendments were applied to bring lime, phosphorus and potassium levels up to 6.5, and 32 and 146 pounds/acre, respectively, in all but one area of the study. Beginning in the spring and continuing throughout the growing season, foliar treatments were applied. Alfalfa was harvested from all treatments when the average maturity was one-tenth bloom.

Differences in yield between treatments occurred only once when the no lime or dry fertilizer treatment yielded less than all other treatments. When lime was added, yields were not different regardless if dry fertilizer, foliar fertilizer, or growth stimulants were added.

Number of stems and leaf:stem ratio were not effected by any treatment.

Treatments had no effect on forage quality. Averaged across all treatments and locations CP, ADF and NDF were 22.2, 32.6 and 42.9 percent, respectively.

The foliar-applied products used in this research did not increase alfalfa yield or quality, or alter plant morphology when soil pH and fertility were at recommended levels. Consequently, additional cost of these products ($60 to $234/acre/yr.) cannot be justified over maintaining adequate soil pH and fertility.

Research on this project was conducted by Marvin Hall at Penn State.

Did You Know?

Pennsylvania forage producers harvested 1,800,000 acres of hay with a value of nearly 500 million dollars in 2000.

National Forage Conference Set For July

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — The 2002 American Forage and Grassland Council Annual Conference and Trade Show is scheduled for July 14-17 at the Best Western Thunderbird Hotel and Convention Center in Bloomington, Minn. The annual conference includes four days of educational seminars, research presentations, contests, farm tours, and field demonstrations. A trade show features exhibitors offering forage and livestock products and services.

The conference is scheduled in conjunction with the Minnesota Alfalfa and Forage Expo on July 17 at UMore Park, Rosemount, Minnesota.

The 2002 AFGC Annual Conference and Trade Show theme is "Forage: The Star of the North." On Sunday afternoon, July 14, the conference opens with the Emerging Scientist Program, an informative session presented by young scientists on their latest, cutting edge forage research. Sunday evening offers a relaxing dinner cruise down the Mississippi River.

Monday is packed with activities, starting with the opening general session that has topics on forages and soil, forage production in Minnesota, and forages and livestock. The Monday afternoon schedule has forage research presentations and a nutrient management symposium that will provide continuing education CCA and ARPAS credits. On both days, Sunday and Monday, poster presentations will be on display.

Tuesday morning, July 16, Jim Prokapanko, senior vice-president of Cargill, will speak during the affiliate/industry breakfast. Next on the program is the forage spokesperson contest featuring top forage producers from all over the U.S. Tuesday afternoon offers a conference highlight — a farm tour of three Minnesota dairy farms. An educational program will be part of the tour. The tour ends at Wolf Creek Dairy Farm near Dundas, MN for an evening barbeque and live auction.

On Wednesday, July 17 AFGC Conference attendees board the buses for the Minnesota Alfalfa and Forage Expo at UMore Park. The Minnesota Alfalfa and Forage Expo features a full slate of activities: field demonstrations, educational program, diagnostic clinic, hay sampling demonstration, and forage research plot tours.

For more information on the 2002 AFGC Conference and Trade Show, check out the Web site: www.afgc.org.

The American Forage and Grassland Council is an international organization comprised of 34 affiliate councils in the United States and Canada. AFGC promotes the profitable production and sustainable use of quality forage and grasslands.

Poisonous Plants Of Pennsylvania

Penn State Veterinary Science Extension

Many plants are potentially poisonous to livestock. The conditions for causing plant poisoning are, in most cases, more important than the plants themselves.

Factors Contributing To Plant Poisoning

A. Undernourishment, Starvation — This is the most common reason why animals eat poisonous plants. Pennsylvania woods and natural meadows contain many species of plants which are capable of killing animals. These woods and meadows are not good sources of forage for livestock. In early spring, late fall or during dry seasons when forage is scarce, animals may eat plants they would not eat under normal circumstances. This reason is one of many good reasons why domestic animals should never be turned into woodlands for "pasture."

B. Accidental Poisoning — Some very poisonous plants may be accidentally eaten as animals graze. Water Hemlock is one of these. In early spring, animals hungry for green grass seek young grass growing along water courses where Water Hemlock lives. The Water Hemlock plants at this season are a small whorl of leaves growing on a heavy carrot-like root. One crown of such a root bitten off by an animal and eaten, as the animal eats grass, will kill a large horse or cow. Similarly, the two-leaf stage of the common Cocklebur is extremely poisonous when accidentally eaten by hogs foraging in old cornfields. Corn cockle, formerly a very common weed in wheat and barley fields has poisonous seeds which can produce symptoms of poisoning when enough of the seed contaminates grain fed to poultry.

C. Browsing Tendency of Animals — Well-fed animals in dry lots or the best of pastures may become bored with the same constant diet. Out of sheer boredom or a craving for variation in diet they may browse weeds or shrubs available along fence rows. All grazing animals like to vary their diet with a little browse and many ornamental and wild plants may be consumed — not because they are palatable, but simply because the animal craves variation in its diet.

D. The Amount of the Plant Eaten — The amount of the poisonous plant consumed may be the most important factor in determining why animals are poisoned. This is particularly true of cyanogenetic plants, nitrate-accumulating plants and those causing photosensitivity. This will be explained in the section where those plants are discussed. Some plants capable of severe poisoning can be very well utilized if they complement a good diet. This is particularly true of nitrate-accumulated or cyanogenetic plants.

E. Conditions Under Which Plants Grow — Cold, dark weather greatly increases the nonprotein nitrogen content of many warm-season plants. Sorghum-sudan hybrids, many grasses, alfalfa and corn may have dangerously high levels of non-protein nitrogen under such conditions. Excessive application of N fertilizers

Project Grass Announces Field Day

NEEDMORE (Fulton Co.) — Western Project Grass and Southcentral Project Grass, consisting of 29 Pennsylvania counties, will conduct a grazing field day May 8 at the farm of Ed and Sandy Swope, Needmore.

The Swope farm is a grass-based, seasonal dairy operation, featuring 80 Holsteins that are pastured and milked from March through November.

Speakers and topics scheduled for the field day include Darrell Emmick, Cortland, N.Y., dry matter intake, and Glenn Moyer, Mercersburg, Cove Mt. economics.

Know What Customers Expect When Selling Horse Hay

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Yes, horse feeders use hay, and there's a big market for it.

But what horse feeders have come to understand is that it is critical "to look at hay first, and if that doesn't meet the horse's nutritional needs. supplant it with concentrate," said a horse-feeding specialist.

Donna L. Foulk, Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Warren County, spoke to a standing-room only crowd in March during the 2002 Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference at the Grantville Holiday Inn.

Her topic, producing hay for horses, emphasized that horses can get most of their nutritional needs from good quality hay or pasture and don't need grain,

In actuality, daily feed in hay should equal about 1.5-3 percent of the horse's body weight.

The horse industry in New Jersey and Pennsylvania is large. In New Jersey alone, the value tops $682 million, with 49,000 horses. And these numbers are probably conservative, she noted. "Those numbers are double, at least," she said. She believes the total value between the two states exceeds $1.2 billion.

In Pennsylvania, the numbers are also conservative, with about 170,000 horses and a value of $620 million.

Horse owners are "fussy, concerned, appreciative of good hay, and opinionated," Foulk noted. Tending for horses is a large financial investment, with many willing to pay $5,000-$20,000 a horse and keep the animal 30 years.

That means hay growers have an opportunity. And hay is an excellent feed simply because horses "fed may foster toxic accumulations in weather unfavorable for plant growth. Drought may similarly affect cyanogenetic plants (sorghum, sudan grass, prunus species) so that toxic concentrations of cyanide are present.

Kinds of Poisonous Plants

A. Cyanogenetic Plants — Those which contain poisonous amounts of hydrocyanic acid (HCN). Hydrocyanic acid ties up blood hemoglobin and a sufficient amount of HCN intake quickly kills animals by suffocation. Lesser amounts may be sufficient to kill a fetus or cause shortness of breath (dyspnea) when the animal exercises.

The Prunus Family — All wild and domestic plants of this family — The Cherry Family — contain a glycoside in the green leaves. When leaves wither, the glycoside breaks down into HCN and sugar. Animals which are not especially fond of green cherry leaves will seek out and eat withered leaves, because these are more palatable, with disastrous results. At times, a few handfuls of choke cherry leaves may be capable of killing a mature cow. This type of poisoning should always be suspected when animals dies suddenly following violent storms during the pasture season. Control — The only safe way livestock owners can eliminate wild cherry poisoning danger is to pull out the plants or cut them down and treat the stumps anytime there are no leaves present. Spraying wild cherry leaves with herbicides will make them deadly until the leaves are completely dry.

Sorghum, sorghum-sudan hybrids, and sudan grass are cyanogenetic plants. Research at Penn State has shown that sorghum and sorghum-sudan hybrids under 36 inches in height may contain deadly amounts of HCN. Aftermath of these plants is extremely dangerous after a frost or dry spell. Sorghums and sorghum-hybrids can be safely fed to livestock if:

1. They are at least 36 inches tall when fed.
2. They are not showing recent frost damage.
3. They are not used within five days following a rain during a drought period.
4. Aftermath material is made into silage before feeding it.

Whenever there is any possibility that these plants may be toxic they should be put in a conventional silo (not an airtight silo) and allowed to ferment for at least two weeks before using as feed. During dry periods it is not wise to feed these plants alone as the sole source of forage. Sudan grass is much safer than sorghum or sorghum-sudan hybrids. Toxic levels of HCN are usually only present immediately after a killing frost has damaged the green leaves. Thoroughly frost-killed sudan grass pastures have been eaten to the ground with no ill effects if the grass has been allowed to dry out for a few days before feeding it. Sudan grass growing between 12 inches and 36 inches tall have insignificant amounts of HCN. The margin of safety using sudan grasses during dry periods is much greater than for sorghum or sorghum-sudan hybrids for both HCN and nitrite-nitrate poisoning.

B. Plants Containing Poisonous Alkaloids. — Textbooks list a host of native and ornamental plants of Pennsylvania which contain deadly alkaloids. Alkaloids usually produce symptoms affecting the nervous system. Convulsions, teeth grinding, abnormal movements or conduct, abnormal heart rate, diarrhea or constipation may be observed. Fortunately, most of these plants are extremely unpalatable.

1. Kinds of Alkaloid-bearing Plants

a. Water Hemlock and Poison Hemlock — contain a potent, deadly alkaloid — conine. It is rare, indeed, that animals which eat this plant (usually the root crown in early spring) are observed sick or dying. They are usually found dead not far from where they have eaten the plant.

b. Poison Hemlock — is a more attractive plant than Water Hemlock. This is the "hemlock" that dispatched Socrates so swiftly. It is often used as an ornamental plant in farm gardens. The flowers, resembling Queen Anne's Lace, are often used for large mixed flower arrangements in country churches and social events. In fertile, moist soil, both Water Hemlock and Poison Hemlock may reach massive proportions. Plants six to eight feet tall are common.

Control — The only safe time to remove these plants is in the summer when they can be found easily and pulled out. Be careful not to contaminate drinking water with juices from damaged roots. This plant is common in all of the central, northern and pelletized feed develop problems," said Foulk.

Know What Customers Expect

Feeding horses hay is good throughout the year, and especially when the pastures are really lush in the spring and fall.

The problem is, hay buyers "don't trust hay," said Foulk. They know little about hay, other than the standard hay for horses, timothy.

But they purchase it. A recent survey noted that for one year, feeders used about 11-100 tons of hay per year, or between one and 2,000 bales. And most farms buy from local growers.

Though horse hay buyers sometimes don't like to purchase alfalfa, Foulk has noted that research has "never correlated growth problems in horses with alfalfa hay," she noted. When the horse gets stick, for some reason, horsekeepers automatically blame hay.

But yet, moldy hay is sometimes the culprit. "Never sell moldy hay to customers," said Foulk. "And toxic plants in the pasture are toxic in hay."

Hay sellers would do well to analyze and label hay. Even though many hay feeders don't understand the label numbers, they believe "it's important to them," she said. "It's a marketing tool to pass along to your customer."

The key: educate the customer and develop that essential "band of trust." And Foulk noted to never sell yourself short. "Most horse people believe the more expensive it is, the better it is," she said.

Keep the bale size small, since that's what horse feeders prefer, about 35-40 pounds in size. They prefer also second cuttings, with good protein and high calories to feed less, especially in wintertime.

Few are buying big bales. But they are paying about $150 per ton, or higher.

Hay prices have jumped a lot in the past six years. Some tips:

- If using hay preservatives or drying agents, don't tell the customer. About two-thirds of customers won't purchase the hay.
- If treated with herbicides or insecticides, don't tell them. And the least put on hay, the better off you'll be, for a lot of feeders.
- The most critical component: an absence of mold. Don't slip in a moldy bale, because the horses can experience respiratory problems.
- Keep out weeds. They are more toxic than almost any material used. Hemp dogbane is incredibly toxic to horses — monitor what's in the field and what ends up in bales.
- If you're storing hay for customers, charge them.

At the conference, hay was on display for identification and quality sampling.

Improved Alfalfa Varieties Show Leafhopper Resistance

COLUMBUS, Ohio — New developments in alfalfa cultivars have proven to be effective in controlling potato leafhopper, an insect that can cause serious damage and yield loss to the forage crop.

Ohio State University 2001 evaluation trials have shown that the use of glandular-haired alfalfa varieties cut yield loss 82 percent compared to smooth, susceptible varieties in the seeding year. In a single alfalfa cutting, yield loss was reduced nearly 67 percent. Anywhere from a third to one ton more of dry matter per acre was harvested in the seeding year with resistant varieties.

Researchers speculate the minute hairs on the resistant varieties aid in reducing potato leafhopper feeding. The cultivars may also exhibit antixenosis, a plant defense mechanism that modifies the feeding behavior of the insect without affecting plant or insect metabolisms.

"The industry has come a long way in increasing the level of resistance in alfalfa cultivars. Where a few years ago, at best, varieties showed 35 percent resistance, now varieties have over 75 percent or better levels of resistance," said Mark Sulc, an Ohio State Extension forage agronomist. "There's no question farmers should be growing resistant varieties if they are not carefully scouting and managing their alfalfa for leafhopper damage."

The potato leafhopper is a small insect that overwinters in Gulf Coast regions. It is carried north each spring via weather fronts and finds its way into alfalfa fields throughout the Midwest. Feeding stunts the growth of the plant, thereby reducing yields. In severe cases, feeding can kill seedlings. Yield reduction can be as high as 20-25 percent for the entire growing season and 30-50 percent for a single cutting depending on the severity of leafhopper populations. There are usually three to four alfalfa cuttings per year.

"Natural enemies of the potato leafhopper exist, but they develop too late and are generally ineffective in controlling the insect," said Sulc. "The best ways to control the leafhopper are to use insecticides, resistant varieties or a combination of both."

In the evaluation trials, conducted at South Charleston, Ohio, researchers analyzed yield potential, growth rate, insect injury and insect populations of unsprayed commercial resistant and susceptible varieties. They found that the use of resistant varieties increased growth rate and reduced leafhopper feeding and insect numbers compared to the susceptible varieties.

Update On Cereal Rust Mites In Timothy

Paul H. Craig
Dauphin County
Forage Agent

Pennsylvania hay producers have developed a very profitable hay market for timothy grass hay. Timothy hay is the favored species of grass hay for most horse producers throughout the state and into neighboring states. It has been estimated that there are nearly 175,000 acres of timothy in Pennsylvania and 75,000 acres in Maryland. Recent hay prices reveal a range of $90 to $170 per ton for timothy hay. At top production levels and price, timothy can gross $400/acre.

In recent years many timothy producers have noted decreased yields and thinning stands across southcentral Pennsylvania. In spring of 2000, the cause was identified as a new pest in the state, the cereal rust mite.

Travels across southcentral PA revealed that the problem is widespread and that most stands of timothy more than two years old have some level of infestation of the mite, commonly, but incorrectly, referred to as the timothy mite.

Reports from across the region indicate that the winter of 2001-2002 was a very favorable season for development of the cereal rust mite. This winter, warmer than normal conditions and the lack of snow and ice cover provided the cereal rust mite an early jump on development. As a result, agronomists are reporting heavy infestations already this spring. Before simply loading up the sprayer and taking after the pest, timothy producers should understand some basic knowledge about the mites.

Identification

The cereal rust mite is an extremely small pest, actually 1/16th the size of a spider mite. These mites cannot be seen without the use of a 16-power hand lens or a microscope. The mites are shaped like a grain of rice, soft bodied, with four legs located near the head of this critter. They can move fairly easily up and down the leaves of the timothy plant but they prefer to feed on the youngest tissue of the plant. They are not commonly found on other grass species.

The cereal rust mite feeds on single cells at the base of the grooves between the veins on the timothy leaves. The mite can be found on other grasses but does not prefer these grasses and will move in search of timothy. The mite inserts a "needle-like" mouthpart into the cell and draws out the cell contents, leaving a shrunken cell. It then moves to another cell and continues feeding. Very rapidly, the plant displays a "rolled" characteristic that is very similar to drought stress. The tip-off to an infestation is the droughty symptom in April or May when adequate soil moisture is available.

Severe mite infestations have two negative impacts on timothy producers.

First, severe feeding causes substantial yield losses. Yield loss estimates range from 30 to 70 percent. Severe feeding has resulted in stressed stands that are not able to endure extreme summer growing conditions, especially droughts and high temperatures.

A second impact of the mite is related to forage quality. Under high mite pressures, this hay cures with a brownish discoloration. This off color makes horse producers reluctant to pay top dollar.

History

In the mid 1990s, this pest was first brought to the attention of forage researchers at the University of Maryland. Entomologists Galen Dively and Terry Patton quickly noted the widespread occurrence in western Maryland and initiated small research trials to evaluate control materials and to gain additional knowledge on the mite. In the spring of 2000, ag service representatives in southern Pennsylvania informed members of the Capital Region Extension Agronomy Team of the possible spread of this pest into the state.

In travels across the region, the pest has been noted from western Franklin County to eastern Pennsylvania and north to Tioga County. It has also been noted in southern New Jersey and Delaware.

Biology

Unlike most crop pests, the cereal rust mite prefers colder conditions to summer weather. The mites overwinter in the crown area of timothy plants as adults and eggs. Maryland has recorded breeding activity as early as January. Each female can lay 20 to 30 eggs that rapidly reach maturity in 16-18 days. As a result, populations can rapidly increase. Eggs and young larva are found on the higher leaves. Adults move down into the plant crown where they prefer to feed on the youngest growth.

As the mites mature, they will move out and then "stand up" on their tails and are dispersed by winds. The mites have such a great preference for timothy that if they land on a different species of plant, they will stand up and move again. By mid-April, mite populations are rapidly building. By May, signs of heavy feeding can be noted by looking for the curled or droughted characteristic. When summer temperatures arrive, the mite enters a dormancy period and is rarely observed on regrowth.

Scouting

Growers of timothy should begin to monitor their stands of timothy for this pest. Scouting procedures have not been fully developed, but producers can collect representative samples from across their field.

Hand lenses are available from most camera stores or mail order catalogs. A minimum magnification power of 20 is recommended. Costs for a good lens is less than $25.

Look for the mite on the surface side of the leaf. Immature and adult mites are similar in shape, like a rice kernel. In many instances, eggs can be seen. The egg resembles an extremely small, round ball and will be evident across the leaf surface. Most mites and eggs will be seen between the veins on the leaf. Remember that because of population dynamics, a few mites can rapidly develop into an economic problem. If you do not have access to a hand lens, look for curled leaves. Some curled leaves were evident in fields with low soil moistures. Since the recent rains, curling is no longer as evident on these smaller plants.

Controls

There are no "natural" enemies of this pest, primarily due to the fact that it develops during the winter time and is dormant during the summer. Plant resistance is the long term solution, hopefully.

A supplemental label use was granted for Pennsylvania timothy producers to use Sevin XLR as a temporary solution for the cereal rust mite in 2001. This approval Castle-Henry Farms — Bob and Cindy Harrington, 5816E Jefferson Pike, Frederick, MD. Forty-cow grass-based dairy. Discussion will be conducted on organic milk markets. From the 15/340 exit in Frederick, go west on Jefferson Pike 1.5 miles. From Route 340's Mt. Zion Road Exit, go east on Jefferson Pike 1.1 miles.

May 30

Bobby Prigel, NOTE: Time change 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., 4851 Long Green Road, Glen Arm, Baltimore County. One hundred thirty-cow season dairy, swing parlor. Walk will concentrate on surplus grass management. Car/van pools from Hagerstown and Frederick available. Lunch reservation by calling (301) 631-3578 or (301) 791-1304.

June 20

Rights-of-Man Farm, Charlie Montgomery and Carol Myers, 9224 Ball Road, Frederick, MD. One hundred sixty-cow grass-corn silage hybrid dairy farm. New laneways and water system were installed in 2001. From Frederick, go south on Maryland Route 355. After crossing the Monocacy River, take the first left onto Ball Road. Go approximately three miles to the farm on the left.

July 18

Holterholm Farms — Ron and Kathy Holter, 5903 Holter Road, Jefferson, Frederick County. One hundred twenty-cow seasonal, grass-based dairy. Walk will concentrate on soil health and water quality. Dr. Ray Weil, Agronomy Professor, University of MD, will be our resource person. From Jefferson, take Holter Road two miles to farm on the right. From Middletown, go south on Route 17 to immediate left onto Franklin Street/ Holter Road three miles to farm on the left.

August 15

Tour to South Central Pennsylvania.

September 5

Heirland Farm — Steve and Ruth Anne Derrenbacher, 11021 Renner Road, Woodsboro, Frederick County. Grass-finished beef, stockers, warm season grasses and stockpiled fescue. Between Woodsboro and Johnsville. From Route 75 (Green Valley Road) in Johnsville, go 1.6 miles on Renner Road to farm on the right.

September 19

Tour to Lancaster County, Pa.

October 17

Steve Coblentz, 4320 C Cherry Lane, Jefferson, Frederick County. Eighty-five-cow dairy, new grass-based startup in 2001. From Jefferson, take Holter Road two miles to Cherry Lane on the right. From Middletown, go south on Route 17 to immediate left onto Franklin Street/Holter Road. Go three miles to Cherry Lane on the left.

November 21

Cereal Rust Mites

Refer to label directions for application. Treatment is recommended approximately four weeks after green up to fields with a past history of mite infestation or when 25 percent of plant tillers exhibit curled tips. This spring, waiting for four weeks post green-up may be too late. Application is restricted to one time per cutting and must be made at least 30 days prior to harvest. Follow all application directions and safety requirements.

Research is continuing into alternative control methods. Suggestions include flaming, burn-down herbicides, timing of fall harvest, and possibly new miticides. There is some thinking that late fall, extremely low cutting discourages population buildups during the winter. Trials were established last fall, but populations are present this spring. Investigation studies into possible timothy variety resistance were established last spring in Maryland and Landisville. Scientists are monitoring population dynamics very closely this spring in an effort to learn more about this new pest. His Farm 'Came Alive' With Extended Rest

Lancaster Farming Staff

Art Thicke, Enchanted Meadows Farm, LaCrescent, Minnesota, believes in rest.

A speaker at the Southeast Pennsylvania Grazing Confernce in February, he presented his experience — and success — with extended rest in pasture management.

Thicke manages pasture which includes 500-foot rolling hills well suited for grazing. A shallow silt loam with a limestone base serves as the basis for his pasture.

Thicke, his wife, and nephew milk 85-90 Ayrshires. The cattle have adapted well to the hills and have proven themselves in efficiency and longevity, said Thicke. The family has used the managed grazing system for 17 years. The farm is comprised of 90 acres.

Extended rest is key in his grazing program. "When I did that, my farm just came alive," he said.

"This system works better on my farm. That's not to say it's going to work on your farm," he said, encouraging producers to decide for themselves which forages and rotation times work best for their own farms.

"You have to find what's right for you."

Much of the farm is 15-20 percent slopes, which lends itself to grazing. Thicke has 40 pastures and begins grazing early for Minnesota — April 15-20. At that time he gives each pasture a 20-day rest.

While the springtime means a 20-day rest, by June the rest is extended to 40 days, followed by a 60-day rest in the fall. He usually gets a 220-day grazing season.

The extended rest is made possible because of the type of diverse forages grown in his pastures. Thicke examined the best forages on his land and noticed that they needed extended rest. "I used to do eight to nine rotations and now I do four to five rotations," he said.

The idea of rest is only reasonable, according to Thicke. "If we were raising grasses for hay, we'd never cut it five or six times, so why would be harvest it more with cows?

"I try to push the envelope on the time of rest," he said. "The longer they're out there, the more they deposit manure and the more they get good vegetative feed."

As the grasses decrease in cooler weather, Thicke adds feed and hay and "keeps grazing as long as possible," he said. December is usually an ending point for the grazing season.

The farm has almost two miles of lanes, made from six to eight inches of limestone, "one of the most important investments," he said. Blue 55-gallon barrels and floats serve as water sources for the pastures.

Benefits include a diverse offering of forages for the cows, herd comfort in the longer grasses, and less food purchased because of the increased tonnage. The cows do not have a problem eating the longer grass, said Thicke, "But then, they've never been off of the farm, so they don't know anything else," he said. Additionally he supplements the lactating cows' diet with 10-12 pounds of grain and the dry cows with four pounds.

From the health standpoint, having too-lush grass, which may be characteristic of shorter pastures, may lead to food rot, said Thicke. "It's too good of feed," he said. "A nutritionist wouldn't recommend that kind of concentration." Thicke has noticed that his cows do not crave hay as they used to, and he does not have any more problems with bloat.

Maintaining pastures with proper management is important to Thicke. In 1976 was the last time he fertilized a pasture and has not reseeded 20-25 years. "I figure, every time I plow my pasture I'm going back," he said.

Another benefit is the increase of wildlife and birds on the farm with the longer grasses. Also the biological activity of the soils and grasses can be maintained even during summer heat with the bigger canopy.

As for pasture health, he clips all pastures once a year. "if you want to have life in your soil you have to feed it," he said. Waiting until the burdock and thistle are just coming into head will help in weed control.

Clipping also allows all plants to have equal footing, so the shorter plants are not continually overshadowed by other faster- or taller- growing plants.

Beside extended rest, other key elements include using bulls from his own cows and wintering cattle on the farm's pastures.

After he noticed that the calves from his clean-up bulls, animals from his farm, were superior to the AI calves, Thicke began to save three to four bulls a year from this best cows.

In breed selection, he does not look for extremes, which has led to uniformity in his herd. but does put emphasis on a good disposition and a shallow udder, important for a grazing animal.

Working up the soils is not necessarily bad for the pasture. "Don't be afraid of rain," he said. If the animals are only in the area for one day and the area gets enough rest, a mud-riddled area can come back even stronger than before as the plants put down strong root systems.

One example of the animals working up the land to the benefit of the pasture is Thicke's wintering system.

Wintering his animals outside has proven to be not only economical but also healthy for the animals.

The Cost of Delaying Alfalfa Harvest

Marvin Hall
Prof. of Forage Management
Penn State

Typical spring weather in Pennsylvania means that the window of opportunity to complete the spring field work is narrow. This ultimately means that some farm operations will get done at the optimum time and others will get delayed. As a farmer, you must prioritize what will and what won't get done on time. To make an informed decision, it is important that you have information about the costs associated with delaying alfalfa harvest.

The first cost associated with delaying harvest is reduced forage quality. Comparing the average cost/ton of alfalfa hay at different levels of quality suggests that this cost can be very high. With average declines in quality from bud to 10-percent flower, it is estimated that delaying harvest costs between $4 and $5/ton/day. If the annual yield per acre is five tons, then approximately 2.5 tons will be harvested in the first harvest. This would translate into a cost of $12.50/acre for each day spring harvest is delayed.

The second cost associated with delayed harvest is reduced yield potential. If the spring harvest is delayed, it may cost one potential harvest during the year. When the time between 1st harvest and the last harvest is shortened, it reduces the potential to squeeze in an additional harvest. This lost harvest may translate to reduced annual yield for the alfalfa stand. If one less harvest is taken during the year and it causes a one ton reduction in yield/acre, then the loss would be equivalent to the value of hay (in excess of $80/acre). However, this reduced yield aspect of delaying harvest will really only affect those producers that are utilizing an aggressive harvest schedule.(harvesting prior to 10-percent flower.)

His Farm 'Came Alive'

ber he moves his round bales to a designated pasture, when he removes the net wrap at that time. "There's not much rain from that time on," said Thicke, and the snow does not degenerate the hay to a great degree.

He spaces 145 bales in two rows and removes places temporary posts between each pair. The tractor stays in the barn all winter and the fence is manually moved back each day to allow the cows new feed and a clean place to lie. In addition, the cows spread the manure evenly across the pasture.

He has also added the heifers to this outdoor wintering system, and has found that they perform well in the outdoor conditions. Although both the cows and heifers have access to a pole barn at all times, they prefer to be outdoors most of the time. A calving shed and new open-sided calf barn are also nearby.

Since the pasture has had high animal impact all winter, the following growing season the animals are only allowed to graze on it a little and Thicke returns carbon to the ground by clipping the pasture. "The second year it is the best pasture on the farm," he said. "It's a cheap way to renovate your pastures," he said.

National Forage Meeting Contests Participants Sought

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — A national hay contest and photo contest will be conducted at the 2002 Annual American Forage and Grassland Council meeting in Bloomington, Minnesota.

The national hay contest includes various classes for both grass and legume samples. Judging will be based on relative feed value, physical appearance, and crude protein. Awards will be presented to the top three entries in each class and up to seven champions of show will be awarded. Entries can be mailed to Stearns DHIA, AFGC Contest, 825 12th St. South, P.O. Box 25, Sauk Centre, MN 56378.

The national photo contest has the purpose of recognizing the multifaceted use of forages through photography. Photos will be displayed at the annual meeting. Cash prizes will be awarded to the best photo. Photo classes include production, utilization, research, people, and other. Two submissions per photo class are allowed. Mail color print negative or slide and a $10 check for each entry to the AFGC office, P.O. Box 94, Georgetown, TX 78627. Entrants for both contests must be AFGC members and entry deadline is May 1.

Entry details for the national hay and photo contests and information about the other annual meeting events can be obtained by calling the AFGC headquarters at (800) 944 2342 or from the web site at HYPERLINK http://www.afgc.org.

The annual meeting of the American Forage and Grassland Council will take place July 14-17 at the Thunderbird Hotel and Convention Center in Bloomington, and UMore Park, in Rosemount, Minnesota.

The American Forage and Grassland Council is an international organization comprised of 34 affiliate councils in the United States and Canada. AFGC promotes the profitable production and sustainable use of quality forage and grasslands.

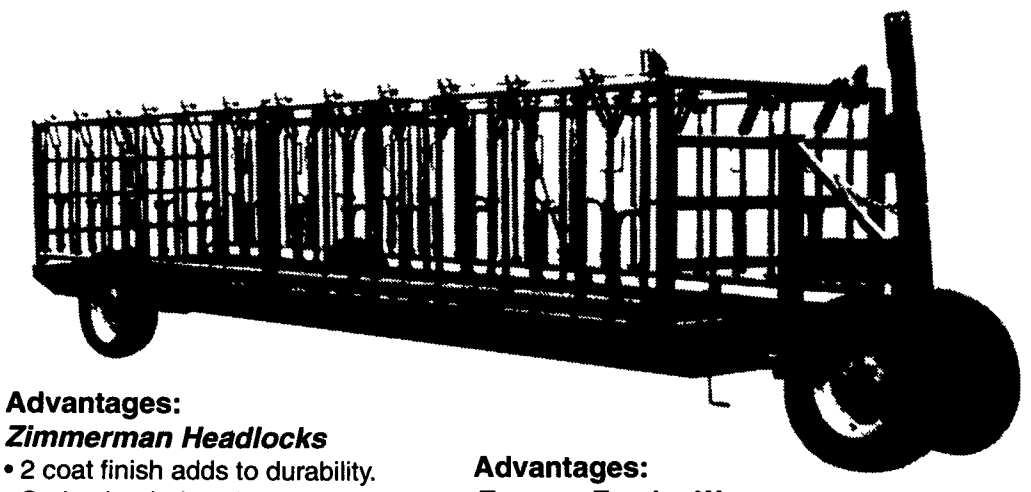
Mounted on a 5' x 20' or 24' trough with an adjustable tongue.
All headlocks finished with a zinc rich undercoat & TGIC polyester powder topcoat.



Advantages:
Zimmerman Headlocks
- 2 coat finish adds to durability.
- Spring loaded neck bar for easy removal & adjustment.
- Individual lock on each yoke for retaining individual animals.

Advantages:
Farmco Feeder Wagon
- 15" implement wheel (6 bolt).
- 2 jacks on front corners for added stability.

Two Coat Process!

Added Value With Our 2 Coat Process!
1 Five step metal preparation, including iron phosphate conversion coating, to enhance adhesion & prevent undercoat corrosion
2. Zinc rich epoxy powder undercoat.
3 TGIC polyester powder top coat, baked at 400° to fuse coats, forming a cross link molecular bond

Cimarron SR

ALFALFA

Cimarron SR is the latest advancement on the popular Cimarron line of alfalfa varieties. Cimarron SR combines high yield and quality with one of the most advanced pest resistance packages available.

High Yielding
Cimarron SR is the highest yielding Cimarron alfalfa ever released. In university testing this variety is consistently at the top of the trials.

Extra Leafy
Cimarron SR produces large leaves, and it holds its leaves better in the baling process. So you get more leaves in every bale. Break open a bale of Cimarron SR alfalfa and you will see the difference.

Advanced Pest Resistance
Cimarron SR offers one of the most advanced pest resistance packages available. High root rot resistance gives this variety longer stand life in problem soils. Cimarron SR offers several other advances including sclerotinia resistance and weevil tolerance.

Sclerotinia Resistant
Sclerotinia crown rot attacks fall planted alfalfa in the early spring, weakening or killing stands. In some areas, farmers quit planting in the fall because of this disease. Cimarron SR's sclerotinia resistance provides protection against spring stand loss.

HayGrazer

The High Yield Alfalfa For Hay and Grazing

HayGrazer is an advanced new alfalfa bred for hay and grazing. HayGrazer combines the high yields and forage quality of a top hay variety with excellent persistence under grazing.

Aggressive Branching Root System
HayGrazer was derived from a cross between a creeping-rooted alfalfa used for pasture in Siberia and our highest yielding hay variety. The Siberian creeper contributed winter hardiness, a heavy crown, and an aggressive branching root system, which resists trampling by grazing animals.

High Yield
HayGrazer has been a top yielding variety in university trials. HayGrazer combines high yields with top forage quality.

Advanced Pest Resistance
HayGrazer has a superior pest resistance package including tolerance to the alfalfa weevil. This advanced variety persists well in cold wet soils.

Herbicide Options for Weed Control in Forages

Dwight Lingenfelter
and
Penn State

Alfalfa: The best weed control (over 95 percent) in an established forage stand is achieved by maintaining a dense healthy stand through proper fertilization, cutting management, and insect control. Controlling weeds in established forages is normally of greatest benefit in the first cutting. Weeds generally contribute much less to yield in the second and succeeding harvests. Before using an herbicide in established stands, evaluate the forage to ensure it is worth the cost of the herbicide.

Below are some general rules to follow before using an herbicide in established forage stands: Thin or irregular stands do not thicken once weeds are removed. Be sure there are sufficient desirable species to fill in the gaps. A minimum of five alfalfa plants per square foot should be present.

Weeds tolerant of the herbicide may invade the space left by susceptible species, ultimately creating a more severe weed problem.

Treat only well-established, vigorous stands with herbicides.

If the forage stand is at least two years old and 25-30 percent of the plants are weeds, removing them with an herbicide application is of questionable value.

If 50 percent or more of the plants are weeds, it is time to rotate to a different crop.

If weeds become a problem in established forages, several herbicide options are available. Chemical control in established forage legumes often is limited to late fall or early spring applications.

For additional information on weed management in pastures, refer to the Penn State Agronomy Guide or the fact sheet "Weed Management in Pasture Systems." PFGC ❖ SPECIAL REPORT ❖

Winter Grain Mites Blamed For Orchardgrass Stunting

Paul Craig
Dauphin County
Forage Agent

I had the opportunity April 8 to travel to Franklin County to view the orchardgrass stands that are experiencing severe dieback. Galen Dively, University of Maryland, previously gave notice of this problem.

What I saw was beyond my expectations.

Jere Wingert and I saw pure orchardgrass stands and mixed orchardgrass/alfalfa with dead orchardgrass. These spots appeared to be on hill tops or south facing hill sides. I would also associate droughty soil conditions with the most severe injury. What we observed was as noted previously - winter grain mites. In fact, on one farm the infestation level was severe.

I visited RayAnn Lehman, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture entomologist, and got the following information from a book entitled "Mites Affecting Major Crops," 1975.

Winter grain mites, also called the blue oat or pea mite, is widely distributed around the world. Small grains and grasses are favored hosts but also affects legumes and various weeds.

Mites feed primarily at night time or on cloudy days and seek protection from the sun by going into the soil or under foliage. (In the day time you really have to look hard to find them.) Heavy feeding causes a grayish or silvery cast as a result of the removal of plant chlorophyll. They do not cause the yellowing characteristic of spider mites. Tips of infected leaves appear scorched, then turn brown and the entire plant may die. Other plants will be stunted. Damage can be severe on young plants and nitrogen fertilizer can increase severity. The drought and poor soil moisture conditions this winter seem to have combined with the mite to cause significant problems.

The mite eggs are laid on sheath leaves and stems and on the soil. Eggs are fastened to plants by a glue like substance secreted by the females, singly or close together. Eggs are spread by adhering on plant materials or spread on debris by the winds. Temperature and moisture are the most important factors influencing mite development and abundance. Cool, rather than warm temperatures, favor their development. Mite activity in the spring drops rapidly when daily temperatures exceed 75 F, so the book says.

The affect of moisture is also unique. Adequate moisture is needed to keep eggs "fresh" but this mite can survive dry soil conditions. Aestivating eggs will not hatch in the fall until rains provide adequate moisture.

Jere Wingert reports finding the winter grain mite in ryegrass, bluegrass and timothy stands. Jim Welshans has reported finding this mite on an athletic field in Lebanon County.

I cannot make any recommendation for controls at this time. I doubt if the orchardgrass will survive in many areas. The grower we visited plans to interseed sorghum sudangrass later.

I would be interested in hearing from anyone who has seen this problem in other areas of the state. I have not seen it in Dauphin County to date.

Built To Your Specs:

Hydraulic Fold Booms · Rinse Tank · Fence Row Kit · Chemical Inductor · Raven Radar · Foam Marker

Hay Buddy™ power mergers speed harvest and improve hay quality. Forage is lifted with a gentle sweeping motion and cascades forward onto a wide, endless belt conveyor.

Hay Buddy™ Power Merger Benefits
- Speeds harvesting so more hay is put into storage at peak quality
- Moves and fluffs hay to promote drying
- Gentle action saves more leaves
- Fewer stones and rocks are found in the windrow than with wheel rakes
- Greater volume of material in a merged windrow means that harvesting equipment:
  - makes fewer passes over the field
  - operates at a lower ground speed
  - has fewer hours of operation
  - uses less fuel
  - requires fewer man hours
- Reduces soil compaction with fewer trips over the field made by large machinery and heavy loads

...which adds up to big savings!

Keeping Transgenic Pollen In Its Place

PULLMAN, Wash. — How far can bees carry pollen? At least two-thirds of a mile, according to ARS plant geneticist Daniel Z. Skinner in Pullman, Washington.

Why is that important? Because pollen acts as a vehicle to transport genetic material throughout a plant population or into a related species.

"In 2004, we can expect to see the first transgenic alfalfa variety on the market, and others are expected in following years," says Skinner. "We need this kind of information so that problems don't arise from the accidental dispersion of transgenic alfalfa pollen to wild populations of alfalfa."

Skinner and Kansas State University alfalfa breeder Paul St. Amand conducted a 3-year biorisk assessment study. This type of information has never been obtained for alfalfa. The study was conducted in Manhattan, Kansas, and in Prosser, Washington, near the ARS Irrigated Agriculture Research and Extension Center.

Alfalfa, Medicago sativa, has no other close weedy relatives. It relies on honey bees and leafcutter bees for pollination. The amount of po*tential* pollen flow between adjacent alfalfa seed-production fields is a key factor in setting isolation requirements.

In production fields, Skinner and St. Amand planted alfalfa that carried a rare but naturally occurring molecular marker, which allowed the pollen to be tracked as if it contained a new gene. They tracked pollen movement from the marker-bearing alfalfa plants to trap plots planted up to 3,280 feet (1,000 meters) away.

Also, they found volunteer alfalfa plants along roadsides and measured the distance between them and the production fields with an optical rangefinder or an automobile odometer.

Seeds from volunteer plants and the trap plots were collected and were sprouted, and the sprouts were tested for the molecular marker. If the marker was found, that seed must have originated from pollen carried by bees from the production fields.

Leafcutter bees, used in commercial seed production, flew from their hives for a distance of two-thirds of a mile and back home. According to St. Amand, the bees would likely have moved pollen even greater distances, but the test ended at 3,280 feet.

He and Skinner used statistical models to estimate that a minimum isolation distance of 5,109 feet from the hive to any other alfalfa field may be required to prevent gene flow.

The researchers recommend that producers consider changing their seed-production practices.

They suggest placing bee colonies in the center of the alfalfa field instead of along the side and surrounding the field with flowering crops like birdsfoot trefoil or sainfoin so that bees would become covered with other pollen and no longer transmit alfalfa pollen if they leave the field.

These practices are expected to limit pollen dispersal, but Skinner cautions that more testing will have to be done.

This research is part of Crop Production, an ARS National Program (305) described on the World Wide Web at http://www.nps.ars.usda.gov.

Poisonous Plants Of Pennsylvania

western parts of Pennsylvania. No livestock owner can afford to take the risk of harboring this plant on his farm.

c. The Nightshade Family — This large family of plants of which the common potato is a member, are all poisonous to at least some extent. The leaves of most species are poisonous, and the unripe berries are especially toxic. The alkaloid present, solanine, produces both severe nervous system and digestive system disturbances. A few interesting and important members of this family in Pennsylvania: Black Nightshade (Deadly Nightshade) is a common weed. The green berries of this plant are deadly, but the ripe berries are used in some parts of the country to make a delicious jelly. A cultivated form, the "Wonderberry" is an improved variety of this weed. European Nightshade — This attractive vine is common throughout the state. It produces clusters of green berries which ripen through yellow and orange to a beautiful translucent red color. The berries and foliage are poisonous. Children eating the berries develop severe gastrointestinal symptoms. Prickly Nightshade (Horse Nettle) — The poisonous plant textbooks give this common spring pasture plant a very bad reputation. Actually animals refuse to eat it even when they are very hungry. Jerusalem Cherry — This common and beautiful house plant has brilliant orange berries which are poisonous to children and pets.

The green berries of the common potato have a reputation for being quite poisonous when eaten. Both the sprouts and green potatoes which grow at the soil surface have been responsible for fatal poisoning in humans.

2. Other Common Alkaloid-Containing Wild Plants

Blood Root, May Apple, Lupines, Aconites (monkshood), Jimson Weed, Pokeweed and Anemone.

3. Some Cultivated Plants Which Contain Deadly or Medically Useful Alkaloids

a. Belladonna — The source of atropine, used to dilate the eye, slow down peristalsis, dry up bronchial mucous, etc.

b. Digitalis — (Foxglove) — Important heart medicine. The drug slows and strengthens the heart rate and action.

c. Delphinium — (Larkspurs) — Both wild larkspurs and garden varieties are poisonous.

d. Lily of the Valley.

C. Photodynamic Plants — Those which produce photosensitization. Conditions necessary:

1. The animals must have white areas of skin (unpigmented).

2. The animal must eat a sufficient quantity of the plants.

3. The animal must be exposed to bright sunlight.

The typical history usually reveals that animals suddenly become sore on the white areas of their bodies. Whole areas of white skin may raise up and slough off. White pigs and white cattle may die from this condition.

Common Plants Which Cause Photosensitization are:

Rape, Alsike Clover, Buckwheat, St. John's Wort, ornamental hypericums. Both St. John's Wort and ornamental hypericums have showy golden-yellow flowers. They are not readily eaten by animals. White hogs frequently become badly "sunburned" when they are on rape pasture in bright, sunny weather with little or no shade. Alsike clover frequently produce symptoms in dairy cows. White sheep which are turned into buckwheat stubble in bright fall weather may develop severe "sunburning" of the areas unprotected by heavy wool coats. Black-faced sheep are said to have originally been developed in pastures in Europe where St. John's Wort is a very common weed and the severe burning became a serious problem.

D. Plants with Poisonous Seeds — These seeds usually contain a high percentage of poisonous material. Some examples:

Corn cockle — the common rose-colored flower found in grain fields. Small amounts of cockle in poultry or animal feeds may produce intestinal irritation, diarrhea or vomiting.

Castor beans — the seeds of this common ornamental plant are very toxic to all species of livestock.

E. Ornamental Plants — Generally speaking there are very few exotic and native plants and shrubs for ornamental purposes which are not poisonous to at least some extent.

Yews — all species are very poisonous. The toxic principal, taxine, is extremely powerful; it produces a slow, weak pulse and violent convulsions. Yews are especially dangerous for goats and sheep.

Oleander — a beautiful houseplant often set out along the garden fence for the summer. Very deadly. Eating .005 percent of the animal's body weight is enough oleander to be fatal.

Snow on the Mountain, Larkspur — these two plants commonly escape cultivation and become naturalized in pastures adjacent to gardens. This plant has a milky sap resembling that of milkweed. It is safe to say that any ornamental or wild plants which contain a milky latex-like sap should be considered dangerous. Both are poisonous.

Broad-leaf Evergreens — Laurels, Rhododendrons.

Poisonous Plants Of Pennsylvania

Pieris and most others of the group will poison domestic animals, particularly goats.

F. Miscellaneous Important Poisonous Plants for Pennsylvania

Black Locust — The bark and leaves of this plant are especially poisonous for horses and goats. Animals show depression, weak heart action and severe gastroenteritis.

Red Maple — Consumption of bark and leaves can induce a serious or fatal anemia in horses.

Bracken Fern — this "fern on a stalk" is extremely common in Pennsylvania. Animals eat it only when they cannot find anything else. It is interesting that bracken poisoning symptoms are quite different in different animals. Monogastric (one-stomached) animals such as the horse and pig suffer poisoning from the thiaminase principal of the plant which destroys thiamine (vitamin B_1). Large amounts of bracken in hay must be consumed before the horse shows symptoms, but the green fronds and especially the fresh rhizomes are much more toxic. Horses show incoordination, jaundice, muscular twitches and convulsions. Emergency treatment with vitamin B brings about dramatic recovery.

In ruminant animals such as the cow and the sheep, much more bracken fern can be eaten before poisoning develops, and the symptoms are quite different. Bracken has an accumulative effect. Cattle can eat a small amount of this plant for an entire season with no visible effect. In Pennsylvania, it is an important problem where young cattle are turned onto dry woodland areas for pasture. They soon eat the available safe herbage, and then consume increasing daily amounts of bracken. Symptoms may occur within a few weeks, but several months is the more common situation. Sheep and cattle develop fever (104°), are listless, dull coated, and small hemorrhages may be seen on the mucous membranes. The animals die from massive internal hemorrhages. Treatment of cattle poisoned by bracken-fern is not successful as it is in the horse. Most animals showing symptoms die.

Pokeweed (Pokeberry, Inkberry) — Berries of this common weed will cause severe inflammation of the digestive tract when they are eaten by animals. Heifers in drought stricken pastures may develop a severe body diarrhea from eating pokeberries.

White Snake Root — This plant is very much like ageratum in leaf and flower form. It is taller and has looser heads of white flowers. It is very common throughout most of Pennsylvania. Cattle eat it only when there is no other forage available. This plant causes "trembles" and weakness in cattle and the poison is carried over through the milk. In humans, the condition is known as "milk-sickness." Numerous fatal cases in humans were reported in the Midwest around the turn of the century.

Jimson Weed — This weed is extremely common in hog yards. All parts of the plant are very poisonous, but they are only eaten by starving pigs or cattle. Symptoms: nausea, staggering and circulating, loss of sight and death in convulsions.

Molds — Mycotoxins which are poisonous principles produced by molds may, for the most part, escape recognition. Certain molds in silage or grain (moldy corn poisoning) appear to cause severe brain damage, and affected animals show central nervous symptoms (circling, incoordination, staggering, paralysis and rapid death). Other fungi are less toxic, but they produce varying amounts of damage. The rhyzoctonia mold which is commonly found on rain damaged red clover hay may produce severe irritation of the tongue and mouth affect-

Economic Benefits Of Improving Pasture Management

Jerry Martin
Penn State
Dairy Environmental Agent

Several years ago, a research study (Feedstuffs, Jan. 13, 1997) evaluated a variety of dairy herd health and production issues in a comparison of freestall confinement herds and herds utilizing some type of outdoor confinement — pastures, exercise lots, barnyards, feedlots, etc. Significantly, the study found that cows that spent time outside consistently had lower production levels and higher somatic cell counts than cows that were totally confined indoors. The most important point to take away from these results is the awareness that when cows leave the barn they face a unique array of conditions that could negatively impact production and health.

Even on operations where milk cows are confined in freestall buildings, heifers often spend some time on pasture. A lot of time and management is devoted to designing and maintaining our dairy buildings to maximize the health and production of the animals. However, the areas we call pastures are often the least managed areas of the farm, both from a crop production standpoint and from the well-being of the animals that utilize these areas.

The focus of this article is to explore the economic benefits of improving the management of pasture areas on dairy operations. The production of milk is the primary source of income on a dairy. Milk production is the product of adequate nutrition and health of the lactating cow. A cow producing 55 pounds of milk needs to consume approximately 45 pounds of dry matter and 30 gallons of water. Anything that causes a reduction in what is consumed will result in lower milk production. To produce that 55 pounds of milk, the cow must pump 3,000 gallons of blood through her mammary glands. Anything that affects the health of the cow — sickness, lameness, heat stress, etc. — will likewise impact milk production negatively.

What is pasture? A quick survey from farm to farm quickly reveals a wide variety of conditions and areas. Frequently pastures are used as exercise lots or loafing areas. The "pasture system" often includes barnyards, feeding and watering areas, shade areas, and access lanes. These areas may or may not be vegetated. For the purpose of this discussion, we will define "pasture" as the area cows are confined to when outside the barn. It is understood that not all these areas are vegetated areas that we would normally term pasture.

To realize the economical benefits of improved pasture management, attention should be given to the following five areas:

- Maximize feed value of pastures
- Eliminate wet, muddy areas
- Eliminate congregation areas
- Maintain vegetation on pastures
- Provide adequate high quality water

Maximize Feed Value Of Pastures

One simple way to improve our pasture areas is the implementation of a Rotational Lot Management System. This involves dividing the existing pasture area into three or more paddocks and a sacrifice lot. The primary objective is to maintain vegetation in the paddocks. Cows are rotated systematically through the paddocks. When conditions are too wet, the cows are confined to the sacrifice lot. Vegetated areas reduce accumulations of bacteria, are cooler during high temperatures, and provide additional feed.

Many pastures would benefit from the same management attention we devote to other crops. Soil testing, fertilization, weed control, and the introduction of new varieties will greatly improve the health of the sod and increase their productivity.

Eliminate Wet Muddy Areas

Areas that accumulate water and become wet muddy slop holes need to be addressed with a vengeance. Keeping cows out of these areas will reduce:

- foot problems
- mastitis and somatic cell counts
- exposure to water-borne diseases
- cleanup time at milking

While hard to put a dollar figure on these benefits, there is no question that eliminating these areas is putting money in the bank.

Eliminate Congregation Areas

During the summer when it gets hot, cows suffer. Cows will congregate in shade areas if provided. In fact, it is a common practice to plant trees to provide these areas. Don't! Eliminate them! These areas only accumulate manure, and after rain are wet and muddy — the ideal environment for growing all the bugs we don't want cows exposed to. Studies have been found that congregation areas under trees are the areas highest in bacteria and pathogens. Saw them down and sell the firewood. On extremely hot days, it is better to keep the cows in a well-ventilated barn.

Improving Pasture Management

Maintain Vegetation On Pastures

Another benefit and reason to maintain vegetation on pastures is that they are cooler. Throughout the summer, bare areas range from eight to 15 degrees hotter than adjacent vegetated areas. Eliminating bare areas and maintaining vegetation means reduced heat stress.

Provide Adequate High Quality Water

Finally, provide lots of high quality water. Water is the most important nutrient in a dairy cow's diet! If a cow's water consumption drops by 20 percent, dry matter intake will drop by 2-2.5 pounds. This will lower milk production approximately five percent. Remember, clean water doesn't always equal quality water. Stream water, while accessible on pasture, is most often not high quality water. Water must have low bacteria counts, low mineral content, and taste good. Anything less will affect your cow's nutrition, production, and health. In conclusion, provide easy access to high quality water. Don't compromise.

Conclusion

Most of these pasture improvement suggestions are relatively inexpensive. In fact, they are cheap practices to implement when evaluated in light of increased milk production, improved herd health, lower somatic cell counts, and improved cow comfort.

Poisonous Plants Of Pennsylvania

ing the appetite and profusing copious drooling of saliva. This is particularly true with horses in which it is difficult to feed any red clover hay for this reason.

Ergot — This fungus disease of many native and domestic grasses is found most frequently on rye and rye grasses. Black masses along the seed heads are usually produced by this fungus. Wet, dark weather favors the formation of this fungus on these plants. Ergot causes disintegration of red blood cells, sloughing of the ends of the ears and tail, abortion and, in severe cases, death from exhaustion.

Mushrooms — There are many so-called rules by which one is supposed to be able to distinguish safe from *deadly poisonous wild mush*rooms. Even the experts disagree on how to tell the edible from inedible species. Do not eat wild mushrooms unless you are absolutely certain that the species is non-poisonous. Some poisonous species are rendered safe by cooking; others are rendered unwholesome by cooking. The safest mushrooms to eat are domestic mushrooms grown under cultivation. Even these may not be wholesome if stored too long or harvested when too old and partially decayed.

Nitrate-Nitrite Poisoning — During periods of stress, many plants accumulate toxic quantities of nitrate or nitrites within their tissues. Sudden cold weather, drought, for the first four or five days after a good rain following drought, excess nitrogen fertilization may produce an accumulation of nitrates or nitrites. Excessive intake of these compounds ties up the oxygen-carrying capacity of the red blood cells and symptoms are directly proportional to the amount absorbed. Also important is whether or not the nitrate bearing forage forms the major part of the diet. Cattle seem to be able to handle much more nitrate if they are receiving at the same time high-energy supplement or other forage. The symptoms may vary with the amount eaten, stage of gestation and the activity of the animal. Stabled animals or those fed in a dry lot appear to tolerate larger amounts of nitrate than those which are free to exercise. Cows receiving too much nitrate may show only shortness of breath when forced to walk for a few hundred feet. Abortion results if the amount eaten results in asphyxiation of the fetus. Many other symptoms are described: indigestion, poor rumination, milk depression, ketosis, and failure to come into heat, etc.

Nitrate Accumulating Plants — Annual Grasses — Oats, corn, wheat, rye, sorghum, sudan, etc., in approximately that order. Most broad-leafed weeds (lambsquarter, pigweed, smartweed, plantains) may accumulate large quantities under stress. Common shrubs which may be browsed during dry weather may accumulate excess nitrate levels. Ordinary Canada Thistles, rarely eaten by cattle, are readily eaten when cut and wilting. These have been incriminated in several herd abortion problems.

How to Handle Forages Suspected of Excess Nitrate Content — Wait until weather conditions return to normal before feeding. For example: Corn dangerous for green chopping or small grain for pasture, if still alive after growing conditions return to normal, will quickly use up excess accumulated nitrate. Five days after a good rain, drought-stricken corn — if still alive — will use its excess nitrate.

NEW! Vermeer 554XL Baler:

This is the baler that loves to eat hay!

Here's why:

- 5-bar pickup handles bigger windrows, faster speeds.
- Simple, horizontal bale-starting system is designed for fast starts.
- Bottom drum design lets you pull in hay faster; often allowing you to drive a full gear faster.
- Best HaySaver Wheels in the field.
- Up to 1200 lbs. in a single 65" dia. x 48" wide package; 2000 lb. capacity with silage baler option.
- Silage option lets you bale wet or dry without changing a thing.
- Makes bales 17% larger* than a standard 5' dia. x 4' wide baler at virtually the same price! ****

Cut-Out Clutch Protection
No more burnt or hot discs to wrestle with Greater protection for those times when your baler's pulling harder on the outside rows, the tractor's overpowered, or you accidentally overfill when trying to bale that last strip of hay

* determined by comparing volume measurement of a standard 60" dia. x 48" wide bale versus a 65" dia. x 48" wide Vermeer bale

PFGC Honors Graziers, Educators

PFGC Special Award. Hileman has been a very dedicated and strong supporter of the PFGC and its many programs. He served the PFGC as member of the board of directors and in 1996 he was president of the PFGC. Hileman's advice as a farmer and leader was always sought by the board of directors.

An outstanding dairyman, Hileman has made major contributions to the forage and dairy industry in Blair County, in Pennsylvania, and across the country, according to the PFGC. Dave's farming operation includes a milking herd of 420 high-producing Holsteins and 720 crop acres, including 190 acres of alfalfa (all stored as hay crop silage).

His contributions both locally and nationally include the following:

- Past president of Master Farmers Association
- Board of Directors of Hollidaysburg Trust Co.
- President of Genex Cooperative
- Vice president of Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania
- Vice president of Cooperative Resources International
- Member of Sinking Valley Grange, St. John's Lutheran Church of Sinking Valley, and Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders.

Hileman has also received numerous awards for his contribution to Pennsylvania agriculture, including:

- 2001 Outstanding Conservation Farmer of the Year from the Blair County Conservation District.
- 2001 Association Director Award, National Association of Animal Breeders.
- 1985 Master Farmer Award from the Master Farmers Association.

Research/Extension/ Teaching Award

This year's Research/ Extension/Teaching Award recipient is Dr. John Comerford. Comerford has been the extension beef specialist in the Department of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State since 1987. In the area of research, he has led and collaborated on trials that include the evaluation of forages in the diets of Holstein and beef steers, evaluation of liquid protein feeds with grazing steers, using pasture as a resource for weaning beef calves, evaluation of hay feeding equipment, extensive evaluation of grazing systems for beef cattle in Pennsylvania and the Northeast, and using byproduct feed supplements for grazing heifers.

Comerford's extension programs have focused on profitable management tools for beef production, which have included some 25 invited talks on pasture and forage management. This has included leadership in the implementation of the Blueprint for Success initiative for cattle feeders, the Pennsylvania Feeder Calf Roundup calf marking program, and the Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance Program. He serves on the board of directors for the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association, the Pennsylvania Beef Council, and the Pennsylvania Grazing Land Conservation Initiative.

Comerford serves as vice president of the Northeast Section of the American Society of Animal Science, as a member of the review board for two scientific journals, and as chairman of an ad hoc committee of the Great Lakes Grazing Network charged with the development and production of a national grazing database.

He is also project leader for a Northeast SARE-funded program to train extension agents in Pennsylvania and Maryland in grazing and pasture management. This effort has provided hands-on training for a number of extension professionals from several states.

Forage Conservation Farmer Award

Robert Oswald has been selected to receive the PFGC Conservation Farmer Award this year. Oswald has implemented numerous conservation practices on the 1,500 acres he farms in Northampton County.

The key to his conservation plan is 200 acres of forage. The remainder of his land is divided between beans and corn that are 100 percent no-till. He has installed sod water ways, diversion channels, subsurface drainage, and contour strips to minimize water erosion on his land. In addition to these conservation practices. Oswald installed two waste storage units to handle waste from his 110 dairy animals.

Outstanding Pasture Producer Award

James and Barbara Warburton, Sullivan County

Jim and Barbara Warburton exemplify a commitment to life-long learning and self improvement on their pasture operation in Sullivan County. Jim has been a sustaining force in the Northeast Grazing Network and has provided direction and encouragement to his fellow graziers to do the same, claiming that there is always something to learn by getting together with counterparts to discuss management. They are initiating discussions in hopes of obtaining a regional Project Grass (pasture and grazing program originally begun in Somerset County) program. The concern shown by the Warburton's for others goes beyond the Grazing network as they are both involved with the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and cooperative extension among other groups, according to PFGC.
